They Alone Insure a Foreign Market.

BY ALBERT D. LASKER,
Chairman, United States Shipping Board.

Senator Borah of Idaho, speaking in the senate on Wednesday, Dec. 27, 1922, made the following statement:

"Our markets in Europe are indispensable to the prosperity of the American producer. We sell from 23 to 25 per cent of our wheat abroad. Unless that amount finds a market, it is impossible for the American farmer to realize a price which will justify his raising the wheat."

This one statement contains in a few succinct words the entire argument for an American merchant marine.

It may be stated to contain three essential truths which the producers, especially the agricultural producers, of this country should take to heart: First, the well known fact that we have a surplus of agricultural products above the domestic needs; second, that the surplus must be marketed abroad— in the case of agricultural products, in Europe chiefly—and third that the domestic price is vitally affected by the ability to move this surplus abroad.

Concedes Importance of Market.

The distinguished senator from Idaho, a prominent member of the farm bloc and a determined friend of the agricultral interests of the country, is arguing in favor of cooperation of the United States with the nations of Europe looking toward a stabilization of their economic conditions.

Why? Because these nations form our great market for the exportable surplus of farm products and, as he says, "unless that amount finds a market it is impossible for the American farmer to realize a price which will justify his raising the wheat."

Now, of course, the markets are there. Probably a greater number of people in Europe are in need of American wheat today than at any other time in their history. Yet Senator Borah fears that our wheat will not "find a market."

Exchanging Surplus Output.

Of course, he meant that while the market was there, he feared the prospective purchasers would not be able to buy, and that our produce would remain unsold. Lack of buying power among our outside consumers is only one of several factors which can in fact destroy those markets "indispensable to the prosperity of the American producer."

It is a basic economic fact that our present civilization rests largely upon the exchange of surplus output. This exchange in turn depends upon the essential element, transportation. Without the power of moving a surplus from its point of production to the place where a demand for such commodity exists, both the producer and the potential consumer would suffer; the former heaviest because he has invested his capital and his labor in the product only to face the possibility that not only is he unable to realize from his surplus, but that this very surplus remaining on his hands demoralizes even the market for that portion which is consumed locally.

Land Transportation Not All.

The farmers have realized that transportation is the important link in their chain of commerce, as far as the railroads are concerned. This link is before their eyes and comes within their personal dealings, yet obviously, if Senator Borah's statement that "our markets are overseas" be accepted—and no child would doubt it—the bridge over which our produce must pass to reach its markets must cross water as well as land.

Ships sailing the seven seas, not bound down to rails of iron, but capable of leaving on a moment's notice for any part of the world that offers them the best return; ships not subject to the rulings of an interstate commerce commission, but of many types and as many flags; ships that the farmer never sees and rarely hears of—their rates, their adequacy, and their dependability are what the farmer relies upon to reach his markets.

A Question for the Farmer.

Now, suppose that there were no railroads in the United States, but that in place of them all transportation was carried on by motor trucks—huge and extremely economical vehicles, which knew no fixed right of way, but could move freely in any direction according to the demand for their serv

Now, further, suppose that because of international reciprocity these trucks were not alone American, nor the majority American, but say

BOY OF 13 SLAYS CHUM OVER CARD DISPUTE, FLEES

Walter Melowitz, 13 years old, St. Charles road and 42nd avenue, Hillside, in Proviso township, was shot and fatally wounded early last night by Robert Rutkowski, 13 years old, his chum, when they had a dispute over a card game being played in the Rutkowski home during the absence of the boy's parents. The Rutkowski boy fled after realizing that he had killed his friend and he is now being sought.

When the parents left the house Robert Rutkowski called to the Melowitz boy, who lived next door, to come over and play. They were joined in the game by Albert and John Rutkowski, brothers of Robert.

"Now who is right?" he is alleged to have asked.

Walter smiled, looked into the muzzle of the revolver, and called out:

Robert Rutkowski pulled the trigger and Walter sank back in his chair, shot in the left shoulder. The bullet is believed to have struck a bone, for it was deflected downward, piercing his left lung. He died before a physician arrived.

Sergt. Laird and Policeman Locke, both of the highway police, were called and they questioned Albert and John Rutkowski and from them learned details of the shooting.

"Walter and Robert had an argument and Robert shot after Walter said the gun would not go off," Albert Rutkowski told the highway police.

The parents were questioned, but could not account for the presence of the revolver in the house. The body was removed to Paul W. Senne's undertaking rooms, Maywood.

PRAISE INSULIN, DIABETES REMEDY

Doctors Here Honor Two Who Discovered It.

The discovery of Insulin, a pancreatic extract used in the therapy of diabetes, is one of the most remarkable advances made in the medical world, according to a statement made last night before the Institute of Medicine of Chicago at the City club by Dr. Russell Wilder of Rochester, Minn. The monthly meeting of the medical society was in honor of Dr. F. G. Banting and Prof. J. J. R. McLeod of the University of Toronto, who discovered and perfected Insulin.

The meeting was attended by Dr. William T. Belfield, Dr. Ernest Irons, Dr. Joseph Capps, Dr. George H. Weaver, Dr. R. T. Woodyatt, and many other prominent physicians and surgeons. Following a dinner at which Drs. Banting and McLeod were guests, a general discussion of diabetes and Insulin took place, during which the two Canadian physicians related the history and the effect of the extract.

Dosage Not Fully Fixed.

"We have had remarkable success in the use of Insulin," said Dr. Banting, the young Canadian in whose mind the Insulin "germ" was born. "Our chief difficulty has been in administering proper doses. We have perfected the manufacture with the help of some United States chemists and doctors and all that stands in the way of the complete success of this cure for diabetes is to determine the proper dosage.

"I will tell you of one case that has been under our care. The patient was a 12 year old girl. Since coming to our hospital we have doubled her weight. She now does not need Insulin and her diet contains as high as 1,400 calories a day. She is now able to take violent exercise, her appetite is good and she is a healthy girl. She was almost ready to die when they brought her to us."

Give Detailed Account.

A detailed account of the two physicians' experience with diabetes and the claimed cure they have found was given, Dr. McLeod taking up the question from the physiological viewpoint and Dr. Banting relating the experiences had in treating humans for diabetes.

At the close of their addresses Dr. Woodyatt of Chicago opened the discussion. He related some experiences he had had with Insulin and pronounced it a successful medicine.

"The discovery of Insulin ranks with the discovery of the diphtheria anti-toxin and the perfection of salvarsan, which is used in the treatment of syphilis," said Dr. Wilder, who is connected with the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn. "We owe much to these two men. The gratitude of the entire medical world should go out to them."

Some phases of the treatment of diabetes with Insulin remain undetermined it is said. In the working out of these Drs. Banting and McLeod are having the coöperation of many scientists in Canada and the United States. All questions concerning the remedy should be cleared up within a few months.

PACIFIC FLEET PREPARED FOR BIG MANEUVERS

BY LINTON WELLS.

At Sea Aboard the U. S. S. California, Feb. 9.—[By Naval Radio.]—The mastodons of warfare are beginning their preparations to engage in naval problems early next week while en route to Panama.

This morning the vessels of the base force here combined with the superdreadnaughts off Coronado islands. Tactical exercises ensued and will continue until the fleet is joined by thirty-seven destroyers and eight submarines at Magdalena bay Sunday.

Immediately the combined fleet will proceed toward Panama, where it will engage with the Atlantic armada, becoming the greatest fighting machine the world has ever known.

There is not a man jack in the fleet but is pleased with being at sea again, though the weather is squally and cold. Admirals Seberle and Hutchinson and other high ranking officers paced the deck with whole hearted enthusiasm, regaining their sea legs and sniffing the air tinged with salt spray with unconcealed pleasure.

INSURANCE MAN, MISSING, FACES FORGERY CHARGE

Mystery surrounding the disappearance on Jan. 2 of Alfred Alexander, dapper agent for the New York Life Insurance company, with offices at 39 South La Salle street, was partly cleared last night when a warrant was sworn out against him charging him with a $5,500 forgery.

When her husband disappeared, Mrs. Alexander, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Kantor, living at the Cooper-Carlton hotel, employed a private detective agency to find him. It was feared that he had been the victim of foul play.

Last night Mr. Kantor, who is a wealthy tobacco manufacturer of Tampa, Fla., admitted that the private search had been called off. "We don't know what his peculations amount to," he said. "They may total $25,000."

HOUSE PASSES DEBT REFUNDING BILL, 291 TO 44

63 Democrats Join G. O. P. in Vote.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—The administration bill approving the British debt agreement and authorizing the debt funding commission to make similar settlements with other nations was passed by the house today by an overwhelming majority. The vote was 291 to 44.

The bill will be considered tomorrow by the senate finance committee. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will be called before the committee. Passage of the bill in the senate is certain as soon as it is considered wise to present it, taking into consideration the effect it might have on the ship subsidy situation.

Support from All Parties.

In the house today only one Republican, Representative McCormick [Mont.] voted against the bill. While forty-three Democrats were recorded against it, sixty-three of them voted in favor of it. The single Socialist in the house also voted in the affirmative. Republicans supporting it numbered 227.

Middle west Democrats voting against the bill were Representatives Rainey and Sabath [Ill.].

The only amendment adopted was one clarifying the language which was offered by Representative Burton [Rep., Ohio], member of the debt funding commission, who sponsored the bill.

Amendments Voted Down.

No other amendments were seriously pressed. Two or three of a minor nature were rejected by almost unanimous votes and a motion to recommit by Representative O'Connor [Dem., La.] was ruled out on a point or order.

No attempt was made to present an amendment providing for the use of intereste payments in financing a soldiers' bonus. Those who had talked of such an amendment found that it would have been ruled out on a point of order and there was no prospect of reversing the speaker's ruling by a majority vote.

Garrett Speaks for Bill.

An overwhelming vote in support of the bill was assured in the house when Representative Garrett [Dem., Tenn.], minority leader, in a rousing speech declared himself for it. Both sides gave him an ovation as he sat down.

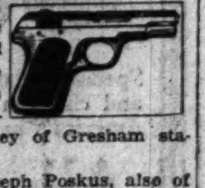
Previously it had been made apparent that there would be but few defections on the Republican side when Representative Frear [Rep., Wis.], who was chiefly instrumental in causing the house to impose restrictions on the funding commission in the original law, spoke for the bill. Mr. Frear highly praised the work of Representative Burton as a member of the commission.

Resents, but Supports It.

"I share the resentment of my colleagues toward the way the administration has handled this subject," said Representative Garrett. "I share the resentment of all fair minded men at making this commission the representative of one party alone in a purely business transaction. I share the resentment against the attitude the majority maintained against the great after war program laid down by the Democratic administration. But this does not justify my opposing this bill. I will support it."

Democrats who opposed the bill included Representatives Collier [Miss.], and Oldfield [Ark.], both members of the ways and means committee. Mr. Collier declared that "Great Britain's I. O. U.'s are not worth the paper they are written on and the bonds they propose to give us for them will not be worth any more."

POLICEMAN KILLS MAN WHO TRIES TO SHOOT HIM



John Kolpus, 27 years old, 8543 Gibbons court, after indulging in "moonshine" last night, according to the police, attempted to "shoot up the town" and was killed by Patrolman Peter Crowley of Gresham station.

Kolpus and Joseph Poskus, also of 8543 Gibbons court, were at Vincennes and Lowe avenues. Kolpus pulled a revolver and fired several shots in the air. Crowley and Patrolman John Collins started to disarm Kolpus, who fired one shot at them. The bullet missed its mark and Crowley fired, killing Kolpus almost instantly.

Racquet Club Booze Leads Four to Jail

New York, Feb. 9.—Jail sentences for bootlegging were imposed today on four La Montagne brothers, distillers, all of them socially prominent and one internationally known as a polo player. Bail of $15,000 each was continued until Thursday that they might wind up their business affairs before entering the Essex county, N. J., penitentiary.

The quartet recently were indicted by a federal grand jury which investigated a dinner at the fashionable Racquet and Tennis club on Park avenue at which liquor was alleged to have flowed freely.

The charges against the brothers were conspiring to violate the Volstead act and defrauding the government of taxes through removal of liquor from bond on forged permits.

Change Pleas to Guilty.

Charged with having released 30,000 gallons of liquor, the brothers at first entered pleas of not guilty to both charges against them. Today, however, they appeared in Federal court and changed their pleas to guilty.

A jail sentence of two months and a fine of $2,000 was the punishment given Montagu La Montagne, president of the corporation which the four controlled. Four months in jail and fines of $2,000 each were imposed on the other three—Rene M., the polo player; Morgan E., and William A.

Montagu was in France on business when the offenses were committed, but admitted general knowledge of them.

Distinguished lawyers appeared in court to plead for the brothers. The defendants, they asserted, had suffered all the public disgrace possible; had had their lesson, and should be freed with fines.

Society Women Grieve.

The court was filled with men and women, many of them socially prominent. Friends of the brothers showed almost as much emotion as the "society bootleggers."

The day's proceedings opened with the statement of United States Attorney Hayward that the pleas of guilty would have no effect on the cases of nine other defendants indicted with the Montagnes. These defendants, except two who had not surrendered, would be placed on trial immediately, Col. Hayward told the court.

Then the pleas for the defense began. Joseph Auerbach asked the court to consider the recent pronouncement of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university that the prohibition laws did not represent the common will and that, therefore, violation of them was not a crime against society.

Former Deputy Attorney General Wade Ellis declared any sentence greater than a fine was an unjust and cruel punishment of the "splendid wives and innocent children of the defendants."

Milburn Makes Strong Plea.

John G. Milburn Sr., president of the bar association, said he had for years "known these four boys and their fathers before them. They are not mere aggressive business men, striving for the dollar," he said. "They were interested in the generalities of things. This business had been in their family for years.

"Over night their legitimate business has been turned into a crime. Yesterday, it was within the law for these men to conduct their business. Today the law makes them criminals.

"Men do not adapt themselves to these sudden changes. Such changes must come slowly."

Col. Hayward said it was not his duty to debate prohibition in or out of court with Dr. Butler, whom he described as a "justifier of crime."

He urged jail sentences on the ground that the people must be taught that the majesty of the law must not be defied.

RECKLINGHAUSEN, Feb. 9.—I came to Recklinghausen from Essen in one of eight tanks sent by the French command to take charge of the serious situation here. This is the first German town which has gone on strike.

The boycott against the occupational forces is complete here. The population is idle on the streets. The tension is increasing and trouble may come at any moment.

As the tanks lumbered into the city I looked upon the public square, where many thousands of persons were gathered. The crowds were holding demonstrations, singing patriotic songs, shaking their fists against the French infantry, and manifesting the most bitter feeling I have found during a month in the Ruhrland. It was tantamount to a bloodless revolution.

All Set for Explosion.

Whether blood will yet flow on the streets of Recklinghausen depends upon whether the present enmity increases on one or both sides. Certainly the material is ready to blow up.

Clashes between the military and civilians have already occurred—shots fired, blows struck, and direct threats made.

The French have ordered the merchants to reopen their stores, all of which, with the exception of one drug store, are closed, and that the German police salute the occupational officers. The police have taken off their uniforms rather than obey this order. The shopkeepers absolutely refuse to sell food to the French, and the French have arrested numerous shopkeepers without breaking the boycott. There is a food crisis for the German population also, and a serious conflict is expected unless one side gives in soon.

50,000 IN REVOLT

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Feb. 9. — Every report reaching the German government from the Ruhr today indicates the French are tightening the screws and the German resistance is passing into an active or violent state.

The town of Recklinghausen is in a state of open revolt. Revolver, rifle and machine gun fire continued through the night. There have been clashes between troops and civilians, resulting in bloodshed, and the government fears the situation may get beyond control at any minute.

About 50,000 persons are in the streets of Recklinghausen, taunting the French and singing the war song, "Siegrich Wollen Wir Frankreich Schlagen," or "Victoriously We Will Defeat France." The French insist that the boycott is broken, but not a single store will supply fod to the French, the shopkeepers maintaining their resistance at the point of the bayonet.

Merchant Beaten to Death.

In one of the score of conflicts between the soldiers and shopkeepers the crowds joined against the soldiers. According to reports received by Burgomaster Hamm of Recklinghausen, a vegetable dealer named Borkenstein was beaten with rifle butts and died later, while his assistant was stabbed. Numerous wounded persons were taken to the hospital.

Burgomaster Hamm, who was banished last night, arrived in Berlin today to protest to the American ambassador, Alanson B. Houghton, the Italian and other ambassadors.

Burgomaster Hamm gave THE TRIBUNE a description of the Recklinghausen revolt, which he said is based upon his own experiences or are from the accounts of eye-witnesses whom he brought with him.

"I was banished from my town because I refused to carry out orders from the French against my own people," he said. "I believe The Hague conventions support my stand. First of all, the French troops confiscated the meat supply from the municipal abbatoir. I protested to Gen. Degoutte and he upheld me, but the local commander sent four soldiers in an automobile for me, who took me outside the occupied zone and told me never to return.

"The French had placards saying, 'We come to fight the German capitalists but to help the German workingmen.' I thereupon issued a placard secretly, asking whether the numerous persons who have been killed throughout the occupied zone were workers or capitalists. The rights of free speech and free press were abolished.

Use Whips on Hotel Guests.

"Last night troops in small groups entered the hotels and with riding whips and flourishing revolvers drove out the guests. Later troops numbering twenty-five entered the city theater, where "King Lear" was playing. They ordered the performance to cease and the public to leave, but on account of the narrow exits the crowd was slow. The troops thereupon whipped and beat the theater crowd. A doctor friend had his jaw broken and men and women had their heads beaten. The panic spread and most of the crowd ran without getting their wraps from the cloak room. I have here a list of more than twenty persons who were injured—their names and addresses as well as witnesses.

"This afternoon I received by telephone a report that students were beaten up by troops while demonstrating in the street. Prof. Guettler was so injured he was taken to a hospital.

"I am making a second protest to Gen. Degoutte over the conditions in Recklinghausen and I believe Gen. Degoutte will again declare me right. Meanwhile, the inhabitants of my town are so enraged that they have determined to maintain the boycott until starvation breaks either the French force or themselves."

Troops Seize Saar Mines.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 9.—The Echo de Paris announces that French troops arrived yesterday in the Saar valley, which is held by France under league mandate, and occupied the coal mines where 75,000 miners are striking. The strikers immediately instructed the pumpers and watchmen to leave the mines. All the railway men in the Saar have demanded increased wages.

COAL BEGINS TO MOVE

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

HARBOR OF RUHRORT, Feb. 9.—Duisburg again is full of life. This inland barge port, from whence more freight is cleared every year than from many seaports, again is working, loading coal for shipment up the Rhine to Strassburg.

Three trains left Weigau yesterday for Aix La Chapelle, each composed of more than 100 cars. Three left today and an increased number of trucks.

Shipments from the Ruhr, however, amount to little compared with those moving by water from the coal loading platform at Ruhrort. This morning most of the big steam loading shovels were busy putting piles of fuel which have been growing for weeks on barges. Tugs with French sailors are ready to take them away. One Rhine barge holds nearly a trainload of coal.

Seize Nine Coal Trains.

Four seizures of trains were made today at Herne, each composed of 120 wagons, and five at Wanne, representing 135 trucks each. Of these 146 were filled with coke. The Germans tried to get these trains to unoccupied Germany.

A report states that the driver of a train at Wanne was attacked today by French soldiers, who beat him with the butts of their rifles. The man is said to be dead, but the report has not been confirmed by French headquarters tonight.

OWNERS FIGHT BAR TO FLATS IN SHERIDAN ZONE

Complaining that the tentative zoning ordinance as it pertains to Sheridan road between Bryn Mawr and Devon avenue, is an unjust discrimination and will prevent upwards of $30,000,000 in contemplated improvements, a delegation of property owners will appear before the zoning commission this morning to protest. It is understood that their protest will be backed by a majority of frontage consents.

This section of Sheridan road is zoned for single family residences in the ordinance and the property owners want it put in the classification of permitting high apartment buildings and apartment hotels.

Those protesting are members of the Owners' Progressive Association of Sheridan Road and Vicinity, of which C. E. Date, 6038 Sheridan road, is president. They have employed John J. Healy, former state's attorney, to represent them.

Woman Wins $4,000 for Shock on Elevated Train

"Runaway" electricity in an elevated car will cost the Northwestern Elevated Railroad company $4,000 as the result of a jury's verdict in favor of Mrs. Josephine Kaumanns of Wilmette, yesterday, in Judge John J. Sullivan's court. Mrs. Kaumanns' right arm was paralyzed by shock in October, 1920, according to her testimony, when she gripped a metal handbar and simultaneously allowed her wet foot to come in contact with an air compression tank under a seat.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 9.—Adnan Bey, nationalist spokesman at Constantinople, today informed the allies that the ultimatum to allied warships to leave Smyrna would be prolonged until Saturday night.

He explained that the Turkish note was badly interpreted. He said he hoped an accord would be reached. His explanation, it is said, made a favorable impression on the allied high commissioners.

The allies handed a collective note to Adnan Bey last night demanding that the Turk government conform with international courtesy and lift the extraordinary measures imposed at Smyrna and Ismid ports.

Mines Laid at Smyrna.

The Turks have laid mines both at Smyrna and Ismid ports, and commercial boats, although permitted to enter, must have special pilots.

The Turkish press declares the Mudros armistice and Mudania convention have lost their validity since the Lausanne conference broke up and asserts that the situation is most delicate.

Adnan Bey made his statement to the allies after the Turkish grand national assembly decided today that the ultimatum closing Smyrna and Ismid ports is decisive, according to dispatches received from Angora.

Turks Call Situation Critical.

At Angora the situation is regarded as critical. The leaders point out that Turkey is in much better shape now to fulfill the nationalist pact by armed force, if necessary, than when it was adopted in 1919 after the defeat in the world war, when the army was without arms or ammunition and when the French, British and Italians maintained strong forces of occupation in Anatolia.

Although Anatolia is in a high state of excitement, with the grand national assembly favoring direct action, Mustapha Kemal Pasha is at Panderma awaiting the official report on the Lausanne rupture from Ismet Pasha, who will pass through here on Saturday.

It is understood that after hearing Ismet's report, which will probably be made Sunday, Mustapha Kemal will go to Angora, where a decision as to war or further negotiations will be taken by the assembly.

Fortifying Smyrna.

In the meantime the Turks are improving their military position in every possible way, especially at the strategic points. Reliable sources indicate that the Turks already are fortifying Smyrna to prevent the landing of large allied forces. The Ismid region is being fortified also. The British are still holding Chanak, but defenses have been erected in the interior.

The military position of Turkey has been immeasurably improved with the Greek defeat, giving the Turks control once more of strategic places like Smyrna and Broussa, where landing of troops would be a costly operation for the allies, even against greatly inferior forces.

Kemal's Strength Grows.

As the external danger reappears, Mustapha Kemal's strength increases. This is remarked on favorably in neutral circles as Kemal probably will prevent incidents which might lead to war. While propaganda chooses to refer to the Turkish bluff, those who understand the Turkish psychology assert that instead of bluffing the Turk usually is too impetuous for his own good, even plunging into war when his best interests obviously would be served otherwise.

Refuse Pilot to French Ship.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 9.—[By United News.]—The Pierre Loti, a French warship, which was dispatched to the Smyrna harbor by the Paris government, was forced to turn back and proceed to piraeus today when the Turks refused to provide a pilot. The ship was commissioned to take the French inhabitants of Smyrna on board.

In allied circles here it is believed that the Turkish tactics at Smyrna are the result of the desire of the Angora government to force further peace concessions from Great Britain.

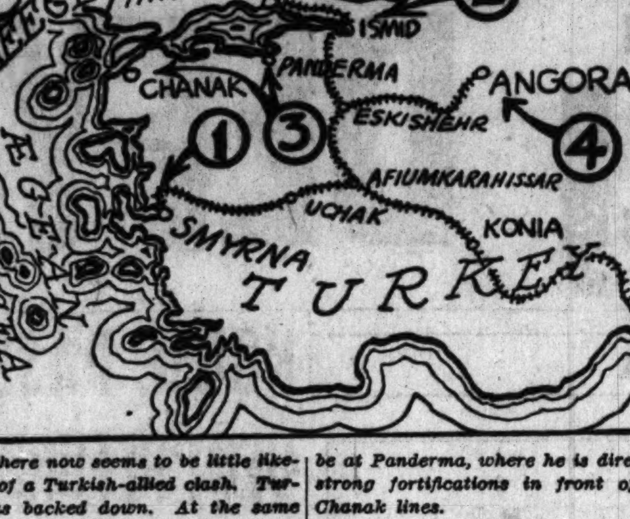
TURKS MARK TIME



1—There now seems to be little likelihood of a Turkish-allied clash. Turkey has backed down. At the same time it is reported that the harbor of Smyrna has been mined behind the allied war vessels.

2—The harbor of Ismid is also reported to be mined.

3—Mustapha Kemel is reported to be at Panderma, where he is directing strong fortifications in front of the Chanak lines.

4—The Angora assembly is said to have acted in a hasty and rash manner in ordering the allies out of Turkish waters, and it is not disposed to insist on its resolve.

EX-CROWN PRINCE PLOTS REVOLT IN GERMANY, REPORT

Meets Monarchists in All Night Parley.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DUSSELDORF, Feb. 9.—Will Germany see another monarchist attempt this spring?

Labor leaders, Socialists, and other staunch supporters of the German republic are asking this question as the Ruhr occupation drags on.

When Chancellor Cuno indicated to friends Tuesday that a monarchist coup is probable if the present government failed in its fight with the French he was not expressing a hysterical fear, but a grave probability which might almost become a certainty. All winter the monarchists have been developing plans for the coming spring and have discussed the question involved with emissaries of the former kaiser and the crown prince himself.

Prince Meets Leaders.

Last Sunday the crown prince went to Doorn. He had a conference with his father all afternoon. Toward 8 o'clock in the evening he left in his motor car.

At the same time three German monarchist leaders left Wesel for the Dutch frontier. Shortly after midnight, THE TRIBUNE learns, these three men, whose names are carefully guarded by monarchists' councils, passed the frontier into Holland. They returned to Wesel Monday morning and the crown prince reappeared at Doorn shortly before noon Monday. After a long conference with the former kaiser he left for Wieringen.

What transpired during the midnight drive and after? What were the monarchist leaders doing in Doorn? Why did two motor cars draw up in the dead of night at a little Dutch farmhouse not far from the border? Why before dawn did the two motor cars travel mysteriously in opposite directions?

These questions probably never will be answered. I have found nobody who actually saw the meeting and I have been unable to prove beyond fear of contradiction that the crown prince did meet the German monarchists, but a strong belief exists here that the meeting was held and that it bodes no good for the republic of Germany.

Revolt Would Aid France.

The monarchists are able to do little at present. The people of Germany, too, are solidly behind the government in its resistance against the occupation of the Ruhr, but if it fails they probably will swing the other way. A successful revolution would be a great help to the French in their plans to form a buffer state of the Rhineland.

Socialists and other republican groups in the Rhineland and the Ruhr will not hear of the return of the old monarchial régime. An immediate reaction to a successful monarchist coup would be the declaration of a Ruhr republic.

"IN LOVE? SILLY," SAYS PAULINE OF LAWYER'S SUIT

Boston, Mass., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—The fervid telegrams addressed by George E. Joseph, Los Angeles attorney, to his client, Miss Pauline Frederick, as "Pauline Loved and Lovely Queen of All the Land That Might Have Been," were branded today by the stage star as greatly exaggerated expressions of ordinary friendship.

With considerable warmth Miss Frederick denied that Joseph, who is suing her in Los Angeles for $36,000, alleging she owes him for professional services, was ever in love with her.

"Such a thought is ridiculous!" she cried. "He never was in love with me; never! Those telegrams meant nothing, absolutely nothing. Joseph and I were close friends, but as far as love was concerned, O, the very idea is silly!"

At the conclusion of her local engagement Miss Frederick is going on a trip around the world with her mother, sailing from San Francisco May 9.

CONDUCTOR WINS FLAPPER FARES AND LOSES WIFE

Herbert M. Kane, conductor "de luxe," hero of flapper passengers on Illinois Central suburban trains and the envy of south side sheiks, was unmasked yesterday in a bill for divorce filed in the Circuit court by Mrs. Mellvine Kane, 1604 Prairie avenue.

"Bobby" Roberts and "Pearl," members of loop cabaret choruses, are included in the list of Kane's feminine conquests in the bill filed by Attorney Frank J. Link, which asserts that Kane "prides himself on his ability to fascinate women of the underworld."

Kane, in addition to his savings from thirty years' service as a trainman, is said to have accumulated considerable money as an automobile salesman, and injunctions were issued tying up his deposits.

"He complained that I was too old for him," says Mrs. Kane in the bill. "He said he must have younger companions, chorus girls and girls he found on his trains."

POET MASTERS' SON WINS DECREE FROM COAST GIRL

Revealed as an unkissed husband, deserted on his wedding day, Hardin W. Masters, son of Edgar Lee Masters, the "Spoon River Anthologist," was divorced from Mrs. Thelma Kenyon Masters of Los Angeles yesterday by Judge Walter P. Steffen.

Their marriage on Oct. 4, 1920, according to young Masters' testimony, was the culmination of a six weeks' romance at Spring Lake, Mich. Masters was 21 years old and his bride, a direct descendant of the Duchess Georgianna of Devonshire, a famous beauty, was only 18.

"Ex-service men and women desiring to avail themselves of the benefits of these scholarships should make application to the colleges direct," is the advice of the trustees to prospective applicants. It is also stated by the trustees that the foregoing list completes their assignments of La Verne Noyes scholarships for the college year of 1923-'24.

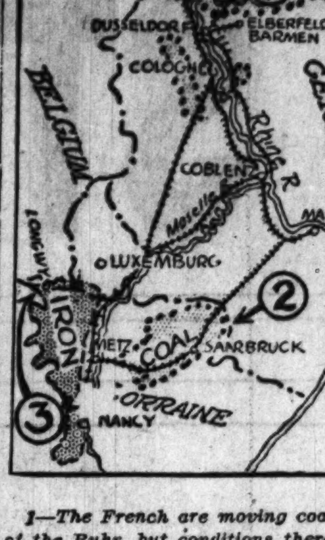
COAL COMING



1—The French are moving coal out of the Ruhr, but conditions there are said to be getting worse. They have Essen cut off from the world. The whole city of Ricklinghausen has gone on a strike.

2—France has sent 75,000 troops into the Saar valley to quell the German miners who are striking there.

3—In the meantime French industry in Lorraine is closing down. The Ruhr coal is not coming fast enough to stave off a partial collapse of industry. At the same time, however, the French are optimistic.

MAN RISKS LIFE ON ICE TO SAVE FRIGHTENED PUP

Somebody's little hungry dog, first and last name unknown, caused great excitement out on the ice covered lake at the foot of Ohio street yesterday and finally made a hero of Thomas Berg, a chauffeur employed by the Anti-Cruelty society. Berg, who lives at 509 North Wells street, risked his life to save the animal.

More than 1,000 persons assembled during the three hours the pup was out on the ice. Scores walked out on the lake's cover, but none could get close enough to capture the animal.

The dog, apparently afraid of all humans, was discovered on the ice by Hugo Krause, superintendent of the Municipal pier. Mr. Krause notified the Anti-Cruelty society, who organized the rescue party. Finally Berg, who cannot swim, walked more than two city blocks off shore and threw his overcoat over the animal and carried it to safety.

GERMANY ASKS JAPAN FOR LOAN OF $12,500,000

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 9.—The Osaka Mainichi reports that Chancellor Cuno of Germany, through the Japanese embassy at Berlin, has requested the Japanese government for a loan to Germany of 50,000,000 gold marks ($12,500,000) with security of an equal amount now on deposit in the reichsbank. The paper comments sympathetically on the German position vis a vis France. It points out that the balance of trade was in favor of Germany in 1922 by 99,000,000 yen ($49,500,000) and urges Japan to "grasp the opportunity of increasing its export capital abroad."

SLAYS, PREPARES GRAVE AS WIFE STANDS GUARD

Strange Murder Found on Hootch Trail.

Policemen seeking moonshine stills walked into a basement home at 1011 Larrabee street yesterday, found the room in disorder, blood stains upon the furniture, and a woman partly dressed. They investigated.

Jammed into a dark and narrow closet they found the mutilated body of Frank Farina, Italian laborer, employed by the Saddle and Cycle club. The murderer had hacked it until recognition was almost impossible. The skull had been crushed—later investigation revealed a flatiron had been the weapon.

Watches Killing, Police Say.

The woman, who had been preparing to leave when Sergeants Thomas Roche and Patrick Burke of the East Chicago avenue station arrived, was arrested. At first she denied knowledge of the crime, but later confessed, the police say, that her husband, Cicero Tylo, a Mexican laborer, was the slayer and that she witnessed the murder.

In the rear of the house the police found an excavation, freshly dug, some three by six feet in dimensions. This, Mrs. Tylo confessed, was to have served as a grave.

Stands By as Grave Is Dug.

"Farina came to the house early this morning," Mrs. Tylo said. "He attempted to attack me and my husband killed him. I stood guard at the basement door while my husband dug the grave. Then my husband left. He said he would come back at night and bury the body."

The murdered man was identified by James Ingraffia, superintendent of the gardeners of the Saddle and Cycle club. He was married, had five children under 12 years of age, and lived at 1147 Cambridge street. Neighbors said he had a reputation for being a quiet, industrious man.

Italian Quarter Aroused.

Reports of the murder spread rapidly through the Italian district. Mrs. Tylo is said to be a Negress and this intensified the bitterness of Farina's countrymen. Special police squads were sent into the Twenty-second ward.

The police say they doubt Mrs. Tylo's version of the motive for the slaying. They believe Farina went to the basement home to buy moonshine and got into a row with Tylo.

Detectives are searching for Tylo.

Spring Is Approaching? Flock of Geese Gives Sign

Add signs of spring.

A large flock of geese, flying in V formation, flew over the edge of the lake yesterday on their way north. Passengers of early loop bound Illinois Central railway trains observed the geese flying above and ahead of the railway caravans.

Prof. Henry J. Cox of the weather bureau warned against putting faith in the geese. No real break in winter is in sight, he said. And added that the geese may have been gulls.

DRIVES THROUGH CROWD GETTING OFF CAR, FLEES

License Traps 'Vampire'; Aged Man Hurt.

A boy was killed and an aged man probably fatally injured in two automobile accidents yesterday, in one of which the alleged "vampire" driver, Joseph Goodman, a chauffeur, was captured an hour after he had fled from the scene. The year's toll of motor fatalities now is 69.

Goodman, according to witnesses who observed his license number and reported it to the police, drove his car into a crowd of passengers alighting from a street car at Wentworth avenue and 73d street. James P. Houl, years old, 7305 Vincennes avenue, suffered a fractured skull and right leg.

Boy, 15, Fatally Injured.

Hundreds of persons saw Leo Ahern, 15 years old, 6050 South Michigan avenue, run down and fatally injured by a heavy motor truck at Adams and State streets yesterday afternoon. Oscar Windblad, 2954 North Halsted street, driver, was held.

Two "vampire" autoists, Fred Jensen, 1045 Barry avenue, and John Christensen, 3702 Concord place, were fined $200 and costs and $50 and costs respectively, when arraigned yesterday before Municipal Judge Henry Walker, charged with assault with an automobile.

Smash Doctor's Car.

While speeding in Belmont avenue on Feb. 2, the pair are alleged to have driven on the wrong side of the street crashing into an automobile owned by Dr. Edward C. Helfers, 4701 North Western avenue. After demolishing the physician's car, Jensen and Christensen were pursued many blocks and captured by Sheffield avenue police.

Judge Francis Borelli reduced a traffic fine imposed upon John Conley, contractor at 4627 Kildare avenue, to $5 after West Park Policeman Fred Murphy asserted that the contractor was "'the most polite man I ever arrested.'"

RISH REPUBLIC HEADS HESITATE AT PEACE OFFER

Reject Deasy Terms, but Omit Truce Reference.

BY THOMAS RYAN.

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DUBLIN, Feb. 9.—Like a salvo answering Liam Deasy's appeal came Liam Lynch's terse note today: "On behalf of the government and army command of the republic I inform you that the proposals contained in your circular letter and inclosures cannot be considered. As in the case of all officers captured by the enemy, an officer has taken charge of Liam Deasy's command."

Despite the inference that Gen. Deasy no longer is deputy chief of staff, Gen. Lynch's reply does not reject the peace negotiations. The wording carefully refers only to terms.

Cosgrave Sees British.

President Cosgrave is in London today. While the government explains that he has gone to transact financial business, Dublin asks why he chose the present critical moment for matters which High Commissioner McNeill is capable of administering. Instead he probably is asking the British government to allow Ireland to raise more than the 35,000 troops allowed by the Free State treaty.

It is recalled that Gen. Deasy's peace appeal was addressed to sixteen republican leaders, many of whom are in distant corners of Ireland. Individual replies are still lacking.

A well informed Free Stater said: "We hope politicians like Eamon de Valera will now take command, riding over Mr. Lynch. Mr. de Valera wants peace."

Republicans Quit Rebels.

Apparently a number of republicans would surrender their arms, if the government offered means whereby they would escape the accusation of cowardice. Many recent desertions are reported. It is stated that republicans in Munster and Connaught accuse their comrades in Leinster of letting them down.

Commandant General John T. Prout, former American officer, who stormed Waterford last summer, was the officer to whom Gen. Deasy made his proposals on the eve of his intended execution. All through the bleak January night, while Gen. Deasy's life hung in the balance, wireless messages flickered between Gen. Prout in Clonmel and Richard Mulcahy in Dublin. Just before dawn word reached Clonmel which brought Mr. Deasy a new lease on life.

Mulcahy Defends Deasy.

Gen. Mulcahy's speech before the Dail Eireann today was in defense of Gen. Deasy's action.

"Gen. Deasy being a responsible man, he refused to indorse a lie by dying for it," Gen. Mulcahy said. He added that Gen. Deasy was permitted to send a confidential letter to each of his sixteen comrades, and he chose his own messenger, who met with no interference from the government. The remainder of Gen. Mulcahy's speech was an appeal to the republicans to follow Gen. Deasy's advice.

"When the people know they are big enough to lay down their arms for a principle it will restore them in Irish hearts. The sores opened by the last eight months could heal in one month," he said.

FIVE MEN HELD FOR THEFT OF $3,000 IN BUTTER

The "great butter mystery" was cleared up last night, police say, with the arrest of five men. They are charged with being implicated in the theft and sale of 116 tubs of butter, worth some $3,000, from a cartage house truck on Aug. 21.

The men arrested are: Morris Pritikin, 1355 North Leavitt street; Henry Blumberg, his son-in-law; Edward Terman, 321 West South Water street, and James Maloney and H. Gertenberg, partners, 1134 Fulton stret.

The latter pair are alleged to have bought the butter for $2,097.07. They admit the purchase, but deny that they knew the butter had been stolen. The other three are charged with having engineered the sale.

LONESOME, FLIT IN BRIGHT LIGHTS HER "THRILLER"

A well dressed woman, who refused to style herself other than as "Mary Doe, 24 years old; residence, a loop hotel," caused a stir yesterday in the South Clark street court, whither she was haled by Policeman Stephen Lyons of the Stanton avenue station. The officer said he had arrested her the night before for being intoxicated.

A traveling husband, a trip to the south side in a taxi to have a "time" all by herself, a "couple of drinks"—this was the cause of it all, she told Judge Joseph Schulman.

But, "if you'd sentence me for a hundred years, I wouldn't tell you my name," she declared. "If my name is published, it would ruin me."

SHIP BILL GETS SENATE TRACK; SEEKS TO KEEP IT

Foes Still Active as Jones Opens Debate.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—The ship subsidy bill was given the right of way in the senate today, and administration leaders announced that they were determined to oppose its displacement until acted upon.

Senator Jones [Rep., Wash.], chairman of the committee on commerce, made an extended speech in favor of the bill following the passage of the army appropriation bill. He served notice that he would resist any further effort to lay it aside in favor of other measures.

Expect Margin of Two.

It is expected that night sessions will start next week. By keeping the bill continuously before the senate, the administration forces are hopeful that they will be able to break down the filibuster against it. Opponents of the bill, however, continue to predict that the bill will not come to a vote.

As the situation now stands, it is claimed, the bill can be passed by a margin of two votes, if action can be obtained at all.

"This bill," said Senator Jones, "is opposed because it is said to embody a policy rejected over and over again by congress. Grant it may have been wise then; it is unwise now. Conditions are wholly different. Never before has congress been confronted with a problem of doing something to get a substantial sum out of a $3,000,000,000 war investment and to put ships already built into active operation.

Deceive "Man on Street."

"When senators who ought to know better say this bill simply means more money for the shipping trust, it is no wonder the plain man of the street and the farm repeats it. It appeals to a public sentiment founded on prejudice and false assumptions. There is no shipping trust in American ships, and certainly none that will benefit from this bill. Even if there were, it would not be very large. There are 60,000,000 tons of shipping in the world and only a little over 1,000,000 of it under the American flag."

TRIBUNE MAN PROVES MEMEL PEACEMAKER

BY DONALD DAY.

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MEMEL, Feb. 9.—The little Lithuanian government today decided to comply with the allied ultimatum that the armed troops which are occupying the Memel district should be returned to Lithuania. The ultimatum expired at noon today and the compliance at the last moment was the result of ceaseless efforts by the English and Italian delegates to reconcile the French with the little Lithuanian government.

A unique feature of the settlement was the fact that a suggestion advanced by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE correspondent was accepted as a temporary solution to the situation by both sides after two weeks of fruitless negotiations. The suggestion was that the city of Memel be divided into three zones, the French, English and little Lithuanians occupying them respectively. This was done, and tomorrow the extraordinary commission which the council of ambassadors sent here will return to Paris with delegations from both Lithuania and little Lithuania.

Meanwhile, 1,500 members of the little Lithuanian volunteers will be reorganized into a police force.

CARVETH WELLS TELLS OF SIAM'S NATURE FREAKS

Siam, the land of marvels, where truth becomes in fact stranger than fiction, was described by Carveth Wells, fellow of the Royal Geographic Society of England, who lectured yesterday at the Art institute before the Geogaphic Society of Chicago.

Some of the freaks of nature Mr. Wells said he has found there follow:

Women who can change their costumes in forty-five seconds flat.

Crocodiles that live forever.

Yellow lizards that live on ceilings and fall into your food.

Fish fighting as a gambling game.

Leeches small as a toothpick before they bite you, and as big as a cigar afterward.

Deer seven inches high that are cooked and served whole.

HUGHES DECLINES TO MEET SENATE ON REPARATIONS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—Secretary Hughes declared in a letter today to Senator Lodge [Rep., Mass.], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, that written statements and documents he had recently submitted to the committee constituted all the information compatible with the public interest to divulge on the reparations question and therefore any "oral explanations" before the committee by the secretary would be unnecessary.

The appearance of Mr. Hughes had been requested by Senator Robinson [Dem., Ark.], in connection with the latter's resolution for the appointment of official American representatives with the reparations commission. Mr. Hughes' letter was interpreted as a virtual refusal to appear.

BRANDED SELF TO SHOW KLUX EVIL, GIRL CONFESSES

Carved Crosses on Body to Impress Her Father.

Kluxers did not cut nine crosses into the flesh of Miss Mildred Erick, 613 East 75th street, she confessed yesterday. She cut them herself, she admitted, "to show her father what a bad organization the klan is."

The two day mystery blew up when her father, Henry Erick, 822 East 89th street, swore out a warrant for her arrest, charging disorderly conduct. She was taken into custody and finally told this story:

"I live with Miss Margaret Alexander, a nurse. She lived with us when I was home with my parents. When my father put her out I went wih her.

Changed Her Religion.

"Recently I changed my religion. I understood my father joined the klan and I wanted to let him know they opposed my new religion. I cut a cross in each of my palms, one on each of my thighs, front and rear, and one on my back, all with a safety razor blade.

"I wrote myself the letter in red ink which was pretended to be an order from the K. K. K. to change my religion. Then I invented the whole story of how the klan seized me, stripped me, and branded me."

The father told the police yesterday he believed there was something unusual in the friendship of the two girls. He said Miss Alexander buys clothes for his daughter and gives her money when she is out of work. She holds a peculiar influence over his daughter, he said.

Admits Fondness for Girl.

Miss Alexander admitted to the police a great fondness for her girl companion. She is helping her to a musical education, she said, just because she has remarkable ability.

Miss Erick will be sent to the psychopathic laboratory today to be examined by Dr. William Hickson.

BRITISH AWARD GOLD MEDAL TO PROF. MICHELSON

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 9.—[Tribune Radio.]—Prof. A. A. Michelson of the University of Chicago was awarded tonight the gold medal of the Royal Astronomical society. The award was made at the annual meeting of the society in Burling house, London, for the "application of the interferometer to astronomical measurements." Prof. Michelson, it was said, has accomplished one of the most amazing successes of modern astronomical science — the measurement of the discs of stars, which first was applied in the study of the gigantic Betelgeuse. Prof. Michelson, being unable personally to attend, was represented by Post Wheeler, chancellor of the American embassy.

DAY BY DAY, COUE FOUND, LECTURES DIDN'T PAY HIM

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—The return of Emile Coué to New York today found friends of the famous expounder of auto-suggestion considerably concerned over financial affairs in connection with his American tour.

These friends were upset because they considered M. Coué was getting far too little of the proceeds of his lectures to take back to France for his Paris clinic.

It was the opinion of those in close touch with M. Coué today that a difference had arisen between the former management of M. Coué, under Oliver S. Lyford of Englewood, N. J., and his present management, Lee Kedick, over the financial settlement for the lecture tour.

M. Coué will depart for Europe tomorrow noon if he can extricate himself from his income tax difficulties in time. The little doctor gave his last lectures today to crowds here. Late tonight he sent for two expert accountants to help him psychoanalyze his books. His tax must be paid before he sails.

Secret Oleo Coloring Methods Told at Trial

Secret methods of coloring oleomargarine were revealed yesterday before Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe, where the government is endeavoring to collect $213,000 in taxes alleged to be due on oleo manufactured in 1911 by the G. H. Hammond company. The government contends a steaming process, in which sulphur was used as a dye for the first time, was employed by the manufacturers. Had the coloring been from yellow cotton seed oil, the tax due would have been ½ cent a pound. With the sulphur process coloring, 10 cents was due.

ENTER, FIFI, INC., MILLINER, HAT PSYCHOLOGIST

Will Helmet Women for "Life's Battle."

"And whether or not it is a becoming hat and one that suits her personality is no small part of her armor in which she goes to fight the world.

So it is that the head of the new firm of Fifi Potter Stillman, Inc., who has herself fought successfully so long and hard a battle, shows that she is an adept in feminine psychology.

Going Into Business.

Now that Mrs. Anne Urquhart Stillman has finished her legal battle with her husband, James A. Stillman, she has announced that she will not betake herself to the Chaise-Longue school of relaxation. She intends to go into the millinery business and she intends to make her venture spell success.

As Mrs. Stillman's car sped toward Tiffany's today she talked of the psychology of women's hats and of her new shop and the exhibition which will open it in a few weeks at the dressmaking rooms of Mary Laird, Inc., 10 West 38th street.

Quite unconscious of the irony of the declarations, Mrs. Stillman made a confession in connection with her new business.

The head of Fifi Potter Stillman, Inc., herself prefers no hat, as a simple handkerchief fastened about her thick auburn hair has proved far more satisfactory.

A Woman's Armor.

"In town, however, one of course must wear a hat," she added smilingly, and then proceeded to talk of hats in general.

"They say that clothes are merely part of woman's vanity, but they are far more than that," she said. "They are her armor, and the hat, or helmet, is no small part of it.

"A woman's mood is more or less according to whether or not she knows that her hat is becoming and suits her personality and her face.

"Too often line is not considered in the buying of a hat. A saleswoman wants to sell a woman a certain hat whether or not it really suits the customer. I want to sell to my customers the hat that will best suit them and in which they will look their best."

North Side Supply Nipped After Long Watch.

While the city council health committee late yesterday was launching an investigation into the drug traffic in Chicago, Detective Sergeants John Lowe and William Bowler of the detective bureau, together with Operatives Michael Burns and Dennis O'Brien of the federal narcotic squad, raided a "commercial dope cache" at 755 North Clark street, third floor rear, through which they state the north side has been flooded with morphine, cocaine, and other drugs.

Four men were arrested and more than 100 "customers' packages" and $700 worth of loose drugs seized.

Those arrested were Thomas Reynolds, Herman Ulrich of Philadelphia, Guy Wyant, and Gilbert Guiggs, all said to be connected with the distribution in the north side traffic.

Once Jailed by Landis.

Reynolds, the detectives say, is an ex-convict, having been sentenced by former Judge Landis to the federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth for distributing drugs.

"This," said Sergt. Bowler, "cleans up the big north side dope distribution on which we have been working for months. We captured a list of the 'locations'—places at which runners met other runners—and we are prepared to lay before the commissioners evidence of extensive dope operations of a big ring, of which these men are members."

Break Under Long Grilling.

The arrests and raid came about through vigilance of Detectives Lowe and Bowler, who "picked up" Reynolds and Ulrich in the neighborhood of Grand avenue and Clark street late yesterday afternoon. After several hours of questioning the two men told of the "north side cache." The detectives there found Wyant and Guiggs, who, they state, are both addicts, busy making up more "customers' packages."

Dr. Frank L. Nathanson, 4015 Washington boulevard, was another arrested yesterday for alleged violation of the Harison anti-narcotic law.

ALD. WOODHULL FAVORS FIXED RIVER BRIDGES

Cites Congestion, Cost, and Other Factors.

ALD. R. C. WOODHULL.

Agitation and discussion of a new policy of bridge construction to include the erection of fixed instead of moveable bridges found a champion yesterday in Ald. Ross C. Woodhull, chairman of the council committee on harbors, wharves, and bridges.

An order for a bridge at Wabash avenue, fathered by Ald. Coughlin, is now pending before the city council finance committee. It is proposed that the Wabash avenue span and the La Salle street bridge, which is to be built in connection with the widening of La Salle street, shall be the first of the fixed bridge type across the main channel of the river.

River Traffic Decreases.

The annual decrease in the tonnage using the Chicago river, which has dropped off 75 per cent in the last score of years; the annual expense of bridge operation, amounting to nearly $600,000; the interruption of pedestrian, railroad, and vehicular traffic by the bascule and swinging bridges, together with the excellent facilities for dockage at the municipal pier and the development of the Calumet harbor, on which $600,000 is to be spent this year, are given by Ald. Woodhull as reasons for advocating fixed bridges.

Ald. Woodhull points out that almost annually for the last twenty years some far-sighted Chicagoan has declared that "sooner or later Chicago must adopt fixed bridges." The alderman believes that the "sooner" should have arrived years ago and that the "later" is the present.

What Survey Shows.

In 1921 Ald. Woodhull made a survey of Chicago river traffic which developed that in the year 1920 vessels to the number of 2,406 entered the Chicago river. Fewer than 10 per cent, or 239, went beyond the Wells street bridge, and these vessels could have been cared for at the Municipal pier. Fewer than 15 per cent of the boats went west of Clark street and 80 per cent of them did not go farther than the boulevard link bridge.

"Why should we longer penalize Chicago?" Ald. Woodhull asked. "Soon a gigantic hand will wipe out the blot of South Water street. For years there was talk of that. Now it is coming. Fixed bridges will be next, wiping out the blot of interrupted traffic and permitting the development of the downtown district northward and westward, as well as skywards.

Urges Use of Lighters.

"Most of the grain now leaves Chicago by rail. We receive some hard coal, lumber, and sand by the river. These could be lightered up the river at a cost which would be only a fraction of what the swinging and bascule bridges cost Chicago annually.

"Beginning work this year, Chicago will have a harbor in the Calumet district with better facilities for dockage than the river ever afforded. If work goes ahead at the rate proposed for 1923 the Calumet harbor will be completed in six years."

Col. Judson's Opinion.

In December, 1920, in a paper entitled "Memorandum No. 1 on the Chicago Harbor Problem," Col. W. V. Judson, then the resident federal engineer, wrote:

"The Chicago river in response to inexorable urban requirements has become unfit for navigation by large vessels.

"Its commerce now is but little more than one-fifth what it was many years ago and what lake commerce now utilizes the river places indirect costs upon this community for bridge operation and interruptions to land traffic which could not longer be endured if they were fairly envisaged."

As early as 1911, Wallace Heckman, replying in behalf of the University of Chicago to a query from Lieut. Col. George A. Zinn of the United States corps of engineers, wrote:

"The imperative necessities and value of street uses for vehicles and passengers, whether afoot or in surface or elevated trains, will not only demand but will secure fixed bridges as against decreasing and relatively inferior river uses by vessels requiring swinging bridges."

U. S. MISSISSIPPI SERVICE PROVES WATERWAYS PAY

River Fleet Earns Big Profits.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—The war department declares it has demonstrated beyond doubt the practicability of water transportation on the Mississippi river by a test between St. Louis and New Orleans, authorized by congress.

On a government owned and operated fleet, acquired at high war prices, the department claims to have earned 7 per cent profit last year, after earning and setting aside a 7½ per cent amortization fund. That means an income over expense of $580,000 on a replacement value of $4,000,000—the equivalent of 14½ per cent. It is intimated that what the government can do private interests can duplicate.

While making this record the department shows that it saved the shippers—farmers, manufacturers, and importers of the Mississippi valley—$1.35 a ton on every ton transported. As the gross tonnage was about 655,000, the aggregate saving was therefore $884,250. Of this, Chicago shippers benefited to the extent of more than $109,000 because they shipped up and down the river 81,183 tons.

Difference in Rail Rates.

The government freight rate is reckoned at 80 per cent of the railroad competing rate, which railroad rate is asserted by war department officials to be about 60 per cent of a railroad rate which does not compete with water transit. In a word, the government water rate is 48 per cent of a railroad rate where the line is not in competition with water transportation facilities.

These accomplishments have come, the war department says, despite unfair division of freight costs between rail and water carrier when the shipment travels part of its distance by railroad and the remainder by barge, and also despite the fact that the boats cannot be loaded to capacity except during high water and at certain seasons navigation is impracticable on the river at certain spots.

Bill to Remedy Defects.

To remedy these navigation defects is the purpose of a bill presented to congress by Senator McCormick, on which hearings will be held in Chicago in April. He believes that the Mississippi channel can, within a year or two at longest, be made serviceable throughout the twelve months; with the result that a waterway south can be in operation ten years before the lakes-St. Lawrence system is ready for use, provided the state of Illinois expedites the digging of its section between Lockport and Grafton in the Des Plaines and Illinois rivers.

ROMANCE LEADS FROM DRAB DUNES TO NAPLES DEATH

Chesterton, Ind., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Dr. C. L. Mingis was a dentist here when the war came. Although he was married and had two young children, he was one of the first to enlist. He wanted to get away from a prosaic life, he told his friends.

He did. For during the war he met Gabrielle Congrau, famous beauty and artists' model. She was a nurse stationed with the dental corps. They fell in love. After the armistice they went to Naples.

He was Minguel and Gabrielle was introduced as his wife.

A few months ago Max Pilone, a sculptor for whom Gabrielle had once posed, came to Naples. He saw the pretty ex-model and got her to leave the doctor.

COST OF CANAL AT NICARAGUA IS $1,000,000,000

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—One billion dollars would be required for the construction of a canal through Nicaragua by the United States government, according to an estimate prepared for the war department by the chief of engineers. It was submitted to the cabinet by Secretary of War Weeks.

The fact that to construct the canal now would entail the expenditure of more than five times as much as the original estimate of $189,864,000 is explained principally by the higher wage scale prevailing for all classes of labor, and by the greatly increased costs of material.

Another cause is that the original dimensions proposed by the Isthmian Canal commission in its report given to congress on Dec. 4, 1901, are considered by engineers to be "impracticable for modern ocean going craft."

FAHERTY BOARD VOTES TO WIDEN LA SALLE STREET

Sentiment Is Divided on $10,000,000 Move.

Attorneys for the board of local improvements were ordered yesterday to begin work at once on an ordinance for the widening of La Salle street from Washington street to North avenue.

The order, issued by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board, followed a public hearing on the improvement at which the board voted for it unanimously. Although sentiment was sharply divided on the wisdom of immediately putting through the widening, which will cost somewhere between $10,000,000 and $13,000,000, Mr. Faherty ruled that the ayes had it and when a motion was made from the floor to recommend the project, it went through with cheers.

Changes Hearing Date.

Faherty moved the date of the public hearing from March 2 to yesterday when Building Commissioner Bostrom informed him that persons interested in the construction of a twenty story building at La Salle and Randolph streets on the site of the old Metropolitan block were asking for a permit which would allow the building to be built up to the present building line.

"I have also learned that the Hotel Sherman company now owns all except twenty-five feet of the property between Clark and La Salle street on Randolph," Mr. Faherty said. "If a twenty story building was built on the Quincy No. 9 corner and the Hotel Sherman company were to build up to La Salle street, the proposed widening would not go through for years."

City to Pay a Quarter.

Mr. Faherty announced that the board will recommend that the city contribute 25 per cent of the cost of the improvement and construct a new bridge at La Salle street.

Ald. John J. Coughlin objected to the widening calling it "a plot to rob the property owners." If twenty feet are taken on both sides of the street only a few feet of many lots will be left, he said. He predicted that these stub end lots would be leased for billboards.

KAVANAGH DIES OF GUN WOUND; WIFE VANISHES

A charge of murder replaced one of assault with a deadly weapon yesterday when P. H. Kavanagh, treasurer and manager of the National Athletic club at 116 West Madison street, died at St. Luke's hospital of a bullet wound inflicted on him a week ago.

His wife, Lucille Kavanagh, the supposed author of a "hate diary," who was held in $5,000 bonds for the assault, simultaneously disappeared from her home at 21 West Superior street and eluded all efforts of the police to arrest her on the new charge.

Leslie H. Whipp, her attorney, said she had left town for a few days, but assured the officers that, though he did not know her whereabouts, she would return.

ALD. MULCAHY AND GORMLEY IN FIST FIGHT

Aldermanic politics is beginning to warm up.

Ald. Robert J. Mulcahy of the Twelfth ward and William J. Gormley, who is running against him, passed—or almost passed each other at the door of the election board offices yesterday.

"You're sure proving yourself a big stiff," said Gormley.

Mulcahy retorted with a right that missed the point of the jaw. Gormley replied quickly with a left to the ear. Blood appeared there.

Mulcahy, who has an artificial leg, attempted a kick. He lost his balance. Onlookers rushed in and stopped it.

Ettelson Pleads He Isn't to Blame for S. Water St. Delay

JUDGE O. M. TORRISON.

Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson told Judge Oscar M. Torrison yesterday that he will resign as head of the city law department rather than desist from tactics which representatives of property owners in the assessed district declare will delay the South Water street improvement for months and may result in the defeat of the entire project.

For nearly an hour Mr. Ettelson, in speeches before Judge Torrison, endeavored to absolve himself from blame for delaying the improvement. He denied emphatically insinuations that his refusal to go through with the agreement between Michael J. Faherty and the property owners for an early settlement of all claims was made for ulterior purposes.

"Law Firm Not Involved."

After the hearing Mr. Ettelson denied that his former law firm, Schuyler & Weinfeld, have any South Water street cases. Such cases have come no nearer Mr. Ettelson's old firm than the firm of Wilson & May, which, like Schuyler & Weinfeld, has an office in the New York Life building, it is said.

Mr. Ettelson blamed George A. Mason, one of the attorneys for downtown property owners, for the charges made by Karl C. Loehr, secretary of the citizens' committee on the South Water street assessment, that Mr. Ettelson has been "throwing monkey wrenches into the machinery."

Reiterating his announcement that in view of Mr. Ettelson's "repudiation" of the agreement to settle, he and his associates will "fight the case to the limit, asking no quarter and giving none," Mr. Mason asserted that he was not responsible for the charges made by Mr. Loehr and printed in THE TRIBUNE yesterday.

Question of Veracity.

"The senator [Mr. Ettelson] states what he must know is a palpable untruth," Mr. Mason said.

"I believe you inspired it, absolutely," Mr. Ettleson shot back.

"You are entitled to your own opinion," Mason answered.

Mr. Ettelson finally withdrew his charges as concerned Mr. Mason, and then made a categorical denial.

Burst of Oratory.

In a final burst of oratory Mr. Ettelson pictured himself as the defender of the "men and women in the outskirts of our city that have their own homes and are paying taxes to the city."

"The rich and the powerful take pretty good care of themselves and it is my opinion that it is the first duty of government to protect the weak and the defenseless," Mr. Ettelson told the judge.

Declaring that Mr. Ettelson's speeches had "somewhat of a political or public tinge," Mr. Mason challenged him to bring in "the parties to the article appearing in THE TRIBUNE."

"Cannot his honor sit here as an examining magistrate to see whether this article does any injustice to Senator Ettelson and whether it contains any untruthful statements," suggested Mr. Mason.

Mr. Ettelson said, however, that he wanted to resume discussion of the question of public benefits. The hearing will continue today.

SINGER JAILED FOR SWINDLE OF WOUNDED YANK

Mervin R. Rose, formerly employed by the American Legion service department to assist disabled soldiers in adjusting their compensation claims, yesterday was sentenced by federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe to serve a year and a day in Leavenworth penitentiary for obtaining $706 on a fraudulently indorsed voucher belonging to Private Martin Hylan, an incapacitated veteran.

Mrs. La Vergne Quaitt Mitchell, said to be a well known soprano soloist, was convicted as an accomplice of Rose and sentenced to serve three months in the Wheaton jail. She became hysterical when sentence was passed.

According to evidence introduced before Judge Cliffe, Hylan was confined to the Drexel army hospital with paralysis and Rose was alleged to have intercepted his voucher, which was addressed to Hylan in Rose's care.

Mrs. Mitchell posed as "Mrs. Hylan" in obtaining money on the paper at a loop bank, it was said.

AKELEY TO FIGHT WIFE'S CHARGE HE DESERTED HER

Desertion charges made by Mrs. Delia J. Akeley, noted huntress, in her cross suit for divorce, will be bitterly contested, it was indicated in the general denial filed yesterday in the Superior court by Carl Akeley, famous African explorer and naturalist.

Akeley, member of the staff of the American Museum of Natural History of New York and former chief taxidermist of the Field Columbian museum, filed his bill for divorce several months ago. Mrs. Akeley, it was alleged, had technically deserted her husband, when she refused to accompany him on what was to have been their fifth journey into the African jungles.

Early in January, Mrs. Akeley filed her answer, denying the desertion.

HE STOOD 'TWIXT LOVE AND DUTY; DUTY CONQUERS

Policeman Has Daughter Arrested as Bandit.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Timothy E. Murphy is a member of the city police of Cambridge. When, years ago, he first put on the uniform and star, he swore to uphold the law. For two months, Murphy's life has been torn and his nights have been sleepless. An automobile theft, followed by a holdup, was the cause. Yesterday duty conquered and Murphy went to his superior officer.

"I read of that holdup," Murphy said. "From the descriptions given, I decided that the girl in the case was my daughter."

The daughter, Elizabeth, aged 16, was arrested at the home of William J. McDonald, 42 North Harvard street, Brighton. She appeared in court in knickerbockers, with bobbed hair, and pleaded guilty to stealing an automobile. McDonald pleaded not guilty to the auto charge. Both were held in $1,000. The automobile was the one which figured in a holdup at Lancaster.

"I worried myself sick trying to decide what to do," Murphy said, after the hearing. "I couldn't sleep. I finally decided that right is right. So I told Lieut. Coady of my suspicions. The night of my daughter's arrest was the first I had a good sleep for two months. Elizabeth was all right until she started to go around with a bad gang."

HUSBAND GETS $19,000 ESTATE OF MRS. KEITH

Mrs. Orlando Keith, who committed suicide on Jan. 31 by leaping from a Pennsylvania train near Liverpool, Ind., died intestate, according to the petition for appointment of an administrator of her estate filed yesterday.

Under state inheritance laws her entire $19,000 estate will revert to her husband, millionaire president of the Keith Railway Equipment company, who was named as defendant in a mysterious $100,000 damage suit filed several months ago by Miss Violet Steadman. No declaration in the suit was filed and it is said an out of court settlement caused its dismissal.

At the coroner's inquest it was stated that Mrs. Keith had suffered for some time with acute melancholia and intermittent fits of abberation, and a jury in its verdict held that she had committed suicide while deranged.

DEVER PREPARES TO QUIT BENCH FOR CAMPAIGN

Women's Roosevelt Club Applauds Lueder.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Judge William E. Dever, who, since he is unopposed in the primary, has the Democratic mayoralty nomination in his pocket, announced yesterday that he is preparing to retire from the bench and limber up for the election campaign against the Republican nominee.

"I am making arrangements now for the appointment of some other judge to my place in the Appellate court," he said, "but it may take some time. The Illinois Supreme court selects the judges who sit there, taking them from the Circuit and Superior courts."

Judge Dever held the first of his "open house" receptions at the headquarters at 10 North Clark street at noon and was kept busy shaking hands with delegations. Two of the largest came from the Nineteenth and Thirty-first wards. More than 100 women from the former ward were led by Mrs. Hannah McCarthy.

Women Cheer Lueder.

Arthur C. Lueder, the Brundage-Crowe-Deneen candidate, was cheered with unusual warmth by a record breaking crowd at the luncheon of the Women's Roosevelt club at the Hotel Sherman. He spoke to them along lines that he thought would interest them particularly—about the schools, the public library, and vice. On the latter subject he spoke most emphatically, declaring he would appoint a chief of police whose duty would be to stamp out commercialized prostitution.

Following Lueder's speech, the club made its first indorsements of aldermanic candidates. It followed the principle of nonpartisanship in this matter, and it was announced that further indorsements will be made at the next meeting

Realty Men Organize.

The Lueder campaign is being warmed up by the organization of special campaign units among different lines of business and some of the professions. The organizations of the Lueder Real Estate league is almost complete. Henry T. Carr, Brundage precinct captain in Thompson's own precinct—which always went against the mayor—is president. George F. Nixon is secretary and Paul C. Loeber is treasurer.

The campaign committee consists of more than 100 realtors, and the list contains such well known names as the following:

Ivan O. Ackley,
Wyllys W. Baird,
Frederick M. Bowes,
Horace L. Brand,
W. D. Cousin,

Edward R. Litsinger, who entered the Republican battle after a visit from Lundin-Thompson leaders, issued a long statement. His principal subjects were taxation, congestion of loop transportation, "an immediate start on a comprehensive subway program," and other planks similar to those already announced by other candidates.

MANUFACTURERS AND LABOR TALK OVER NEW BILLS

Illinois labor leaders and Illinois manufacturers got together yesterday and agreed to hold a conference which promises to lead to an amicable settlement of their controversy over certain bills now pending or which will be introduced in the state legislature.

John H. Walker, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, headed the labor representatives. John M. Glenn, secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers' association; P. A. Peterson, Rockford furniture manufacturer, and Andrew Lanquist of the Building Construction Employers' association, represented employers.

Among the bills to be discussed at the conference, which will be held soon, are these: Minimum wage bill, old age pensions, unemployment insurance, eight hour day for woman workers and the state police bill.

ITALIAN MURDER CASES TOP LIST, DETECTIVE SAYS

Asks Countrymen to War on Killers.

Italian murders in Chicago in 1922 outnumbered the murders committed by members of any other race. They formed 36 per cent of Chicago's total of 156 murders for the last year.

This was the statement contained in a talk given last night by Detective Sergeant Paul F. Riccio of the detective bureau before the Italian forum of the Chicago Commons, 955 West Grand avenue, in which he urged the members of his nationality to drive the Italian criminal out of Chicago.

How Nationalities Stand.

Chicago murders by nationality were as follows, he said: Italian, 57; American, 52; Slav and Polish, 21; Negro, 18; German and Bohemian, 11; Greek, 4; Chinese, 3. Whereas the Italian murder percentage was 36, the sergeant pointed out, Italians form only about 5 per cent of the population of Chicago.

On the Black Hand and the Sicilian code of revenge, which believes in personal retribution, Sergt. Riccio laid the blame. It is these factors, he said, which have made "Little Hell" and "Death Corner" city-wide names for a certain section of the Italian quarter.

Race Reputation at Stake.

"Chicago Italians should run these criminals out of town or put them in the penitentiary where they belong," Riccio said. "They cast a smirch upon the name of our race. We should remember that we have two Italian judges, Judge Barasa and Judge Borrelli; two representatives in Springfield, Michael Durso and Thomas Frole, and six assistants in State's Attorney Crowe's office. Let us emulate their example."

Sergt. Riccio has been a member of the police force for fifteen years, having served on the first "Black Hand squad" in the department. For the last two years he has "traveled" out of the bureau with his partner, Michael De Vito, working almost entirely among Italians. He has to his credit the arrest of thirty-five murderers, has cleared up over 200 Black Hand cases, and was recently promoted to his present rank of sergeant for meritorious service.

Sag Brawl Blamed for Wounding of Chicagoan

Policemen investigating the shooting of Michael Corbitt, former saloonkeeper at 5200 South Ashland avenue, who was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Joliet early yesterday morning with a gunshot wound in his head, said last night the gunplay took place in a saloon at the Sag near Lemont. After the shooting most of the participants fled to Chicago. Corbitt was picked up and put on a street car and carried to Joliet. Corbitt told the Joliet police that he did not remember what happened. They believe that Corbitt was the victim of a gang feud.

Lack of 20 Cents Sends Woman to Jail for Theft

For the lack of 20 cents, Mrs. Emma Rompelle, 55 years old, who lives at the Wisconsin hotel, was sent to the house of correction yesterday. The woman was charged with having stolen toilet articles at a 10 cent store. She offered to pay for them, but had only 50 cents and the bill was 70 cents. Judge Joseph Schulman fined her $5 and costs.

POLITICAL NOTES

Upon proof that he had not signed the affidavit withdrawing his candidacy, the election board ordered the name of David S. Meyers printed on the ballot for the Fourth ward.

Several hundred business men last night indorsed Ald. John A. Richert for reëlection from the Eleventh ward.

Arthur C. Lueder will address St. Mark Lyceum, 50th street and Wabash avenue, at 5:15 tomorrow afternoon.

Joseph A. Manning, 4436 North Sawyer avenue, a candidate for alderman on the nonpartisan ticket of the Fortieth ward, was endorsed by the regular Fortieth Ward Nonpartisan club last night at a meeting held at 4526 North Kedzie avenue. Booster clubs were formed in behalf of Mr. Manning. The Polish and Irish boosters' clubs presented him with a huge floral piece.

Miss Amelia Sears spoke last night at a meeting of women supporters of I. N. Chellew, "better council" candidate in the Fortieth.

The law classes of DePaul university where he is a student, have adopted resolutions commending Christopher W. Keane, candidate in the Thirtieth.

The Rev. John W. Robinson, Joseph Bibb, the Rev. John Smith and others will speak at Odd Fellows' hall, 3335 South State street, at 3 o'clock tomorrow in support of T. Arnold Hill of the Second ward.

The petitions of Ald. James McNichols, Twenty-sixth ward; Andrew Jackson, Third, and Eugene F. Manns, Fourth, were found insufficient by the election board.

JUDGE WOULD DEPORT WOMAN "MOONSHINER"

After imposing a fine of $200 and costs upon Mrs. Catherine Lawkowski, found guilty of operating a still in her home at 2550 Carmen avenue, Judge Henry M. Walker in the Chicago avenue court yesterday threatened to notify the federal authorities to institute deportation proceedings against her.

"You are a travesty on motherhood," said the judge. "You are the mother of four children, and yet you are selling moonshine which may poison other women's sons. I am going to notify the federal authorities, and I hope they will deport you."

The plea that he had been making moonshine for his sick baby failed to save Stanley Coval, 2398 Blue Island avenue, from a fine of $200 before Judge Joseph S. La Buy.

MELLON, WORK URGE $10,000,000 P. O. FOR CHICAGO

Ask $750,000 for Present Building.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Postmaster General Work and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today recommended to congress a new $10,000,000 postoffice for Chicago. They also urged expenditure of $750,000 for rearranging and renovating the present federal building.

These recommendations are included with others for seventeen other cities, totaling more than $42,000,000, and in all of which the government now pays about $2,500,000 annually in rents.

Site to Cost $3,000,000.

The plan for Chicago contemplates "a west side postoffice" of twelve stories and covering one block instead of two, as urged by prominent Chicagoans. The site is expected to cost about $3,000,000 and the building $7,000,000. An appropriation of $1,750,000 made in 1912 is available to apply on this cost.

The culmination of the project is dependent, of course, upon congressional action, but the postal commission asserts that the building should be available by 1931 at the latest, although it anticipates that the new Van Buren terminal station, the decentralizing of service and the use of released subtreasury space in the present federal building will relieve the congestion.

To Improve Old Building.

It is proposed to remedy the conditions in the present postoffice. The government's efficiency engineers and postal experts said that the sanitary conditions of the Chicago postoffice "were bad." On mechanical devices the two cabinet members propose to spend $450,000.

Overall Slickers Forge I. C. Road Pay Checks

Two young men in overalls and carrying switchmen's lanterns are busy in Chicago passing forged "pay checks" among the saloon and storekeepers of the city, Capt. J. P. Hustun, chief of the Illinois Central railroad police, warned last night.

HARVARD RALLIES TO YOUNG PEOPLE IN VICE "ATTACK"

Sees Move to Defame Town by Rival Community.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES.

Woodstock, Ill., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—In an effort to protect their town from a character attack by a neighboring town, citizens of Harvard, Ill., today made a frantic effort to block the attempt of McHenry county officials located here to recall the January grand jury to hear testimony on a shocking case of youthful delinquency which involves a score of Harvard young people and is thought to enmesh some of the city's prominent business men.

Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtleff tonight indicated that the grand jury would not be recalled and that the case would go over to the May jury, but other forces are at work to probe at once into an exposé of vice in the small town, which is said to equal any of the revels of a larger city.

Stand by Young People.

Harvard townspeople are standing by the boys in the case, and insist that officials, in their theatrical attempt to make a political cleanup just before election, have fixed upon the boys too serious a charge and at the same time have turned the girls back to the sidewalks to prey upon other boys.

"Send those girls to a reformatory school!" is the cry on the lips of Harvard mothers and fathers as they tell of the indiscretions of a group of girls, most of them motherless, all of them poor.

Frightened by threats of the Geneva Home for Girls, two of the four girls who revealed Wednesday to State's Attorney Vincent S. Lumley information which led to the arrest of seven boys fled town late last night.

One Girl Only 14.

The other two girls appeared today before Police Magistrate T. H. Brown in Woodstock and then returned to Harvard.

"These boys have learned their lesson," said Frank Barth, farmer, as he paid a $200 fine for his son, Harvey, aged 16, who because of his youth was charged only with disorderly conduct. The other six are out on bonds of $1,000 but are held to the grand jury charged with a serious statutory charge.

"These girls have been notorious for two years," Mr. Barth explained, "and now a mayor just about time for reëlection makes this cleanup to get votes," and the infuriated man waved a morning paper in which appeared the first campaign article in favor of Mayor J. G. Maxon, who, as a physician, treated one of the girls for a serious disease and thus learned of the juvenile vice ring.

Wild Auto Parties.

Harvard is small. The amusements are limited to dances and wild auto parties throughout the summer resort lake region. The girls involved in the case are all of the poor. They are not invited to the better sort of parties; they cannot afford to attend high school.

Some have been forced to leave grammar school. Employment for women is difficult to find in the town. The financial burden is great for many of them. In addition, it is pointed out, the girls socially outcast because they lived back of the tracks in tumbledown dwellings were driven to wildness through a false attempt to spite the richer girls with the fur coats, the automobile, and the steady fellow.

Lloyd McDonald, who drives a taxi, revealed facts which startled the community. Calmly he told of the practice among certain of the young people to rent closed cars and take a girl for a ride. The boy rented the car by the hour and often kept it for several hours in the evening.

In its effort to clean up its sister town Woodstock, it was felt tonight, has precipitated a local town war. Harvard citizens are hinting of a like scandal just about to break in the Woodstock high school, and maintain that six Harvard boys have been given too serious a penalty.

M'CORMICK IN SECLUSION AT MOTHER'S HOME

Detectives Keep Out Interviewers.

"Where you think you're going?" they demanded.

"Why, in to see Mr. McCormick," the reporter said.

"Hardly," responded the four in harsh unison.

"Well, who are you, anyway?" the reporter inquired.

Who They Are.

"Who are we? Why, we're mountaineers with hair in our ears—and as for you reporters seeking Mr. McCormick, you'll never get to first base."

Later it was learned that the four are Pinkerton operatives engaged to keep newspapermen who would interview Mr. McCormick away from Mrs. McCormick's grounds.

Mr. McCormick arrived in the morning on the Twentieth Century limited. He was accompanied only by a valet, Mme. Walska having remained in New York to finish up some details concerning her American concert tour.

Relatives Meet Train.

Mr. McCormick went directly, with his sister, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, and his nephew, Cyrus McCormick III., who met him at the station, to his residence at 675 Rush street. He remained there most of the day and was said in the evening to have motored to his mother's home in Lake Forest.

Sol Hurok, manager of the Russian Grand Opera company, members of which arrived in Chicago on Wednesday, announced that Mme. Walska probably will make several appearances with the Russian company. He said she will probably appear as Philina in "Mignon" and in the title rôle—Sniegurotchka—in "The Snow Maiden."

PORK TRIUMPHANT.

How is it that a rivers and harbors appropriation inflated to more than twice the size of the budget recommendation can be carried irresistibly through house and senate?

This is supposed to be a period of forced retrenchment. Congress and the executive both have been piously and passionately invoking the goddess of thrift. A drastic policy of economy has been imposed upon executive expenditures by the will of the President and for the first time in the history of the government. In congress a new system of orderly and balanced appropriation is just out of the legislative cradle. In other words, an efficient system for retrenchment exists and is in full working order in the affairs of the national government, yet a large majority in both houses proceeds to kick it into a cocked hat—to the tune of some $29,000,000 above the budget estimate and $19,000,000 above the sum finally determined upon by the appropriations committee of the house.

It is true the American people for years have let themselves be mulcted for their indifference to government waste in sums of millions. But now we are carrying the heaviest tax burdens of our history. This is a serious drain upon productive enterprise. It is a weight upon every citizen and there is supposed to be universal demand for such relief as the government can give us through the reduction of expenditure.

Yet pork wins—wins flagrantly, definitely. Why? The vote in the senate is significant. The party division is twenty Republicans for, twenty-nine against, twenty-six Democrats for, and six against. But it is the regional distribution of the vote that throws light on the pork situation and it is no new light. By regions we find the south and the seaboard states are the main support of the grab; the middle west the main support of the defense. The south and the east put it over the west with aid from the Pacific coast and scattering votes. Thus Florida, Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, and Virginia mustered 19 votes, with 4 from Kentucky, Missouri, and West Virginia, borderland states; California, Oregon, and Washington, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island, Massachusetts supplying 14 votes for the seaboard, east and west. Ohio throws its Democratic vote for pork, as did Massachusetts, but New York, Massachusetts and Maryland, to their honor, give 3 votes to the opposition.

The middle west and northwest are almost solidly opposed to the increase, though affirmative votes from the mountain states are significant.

This is an old story. The south and the east have fattened on pork for years. The offense is about as rank as it ever was in spite of the time's demand for economy. The presence of such a man as Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania among the accomplices of this wrong only emphasizes the grip the evil has upon us. We don't doubt this vote was forced by local demands, perhaps by local need. The barrel has always been log rolled, but we had hoped the time had arrived when men like Pepper could afford to stand on the principle of the budget against local selfishness.

But one thing is clear, the east and the south are a formidable combination from which the middle west cannot yet defend itself, even on such an issue as waste with the people presumably demanding retrenchment and relief from heavy exactions. The east has always had its way in legislation while the middle west carried the elections. We cannot defeat a combination of east and south, but we can make our resistance more effective than it has been by pressing our regional interests as vigorously and unitedly as east and south have always done.

Government economy is a national interest and the waste of public funds a national misfortune. It ought not to be a regional issue, but it is so far as the pork barrel is concerned, and the west should fight it to the last ditch, for our interest and that of the nation are in this case clearly one. We may hope therefore to draw strength from the more public spirited and courageous men of all sections, but the west should be clearer as to its own needs and learn to fight for them, as it has never done, with all its growing power. Let us be reminded by this pork barrel vote that the east and the south always have known exactly what they want and usually get it; while the west has known neither what it needs nor how to get it.

ABOLISH THE SCHOOL BOARD.

Judge Dever, the Democratic candidate for mayor, says he is for a small school board and that advocates of an elective board have not convinced him. He says elective boards have not proved successful in Chicago. He thinks that a small board, the mayor having power to fire as well as appoint, would give Chicago about as near the ideal situation as can be obtained in present conditions.

We believe that this is good, but not enough. If anything has proved wholly unsuccessful, in whatever form tried, it has been the Chicago school board. We have been promised the high grade men and women with the interests of the school at heart, but always comes the same spectacle.

One school teacher can keep a room full of children in order, but we have known the time when it required fifty policemen to keep the adults of the board, the high authorities of the school children, from rioting. A school board is such a misfit at its best for the administration of schools that we do not believe it will work, no matter how you change it, reduce it, appoint it, fire it, or elect it. It has been a demoralizing influence in the schools and in the minds of the school children, who cannot have any respect for adults whose control is a riot.

Administration of schools should be in the hands of one director, appointed by the mayor. Legislation for the schools should be in the city council, with the school committee in special charge. The director of schools should be an administrator fitted and prepared for that work. The school system of Chicago is a great and important enterprise. No such enterprise can be administered by a bickering board.

A FIXED BRIDGE FOR CHICAGO.

Information has come to us that an organized movement is under way to obtain the consent of the war department for construction of a fixed bridge across the Chicago river at Wabash avenue. Its backers are hopeful. Whether or not their hopes prove justified at this time, it is certain that their wish is justified. Fixed bridges are one essential to the unlimited growth of Chicago.

No great city allows its normal circulation of street traffic to be repeatedly and extensively interrupted by the passage of steamboats through its central district. New York, London and Paris have all overcome this handicap. Chicago can and should do likewise. Free and rapid flow of traffic is as essential to the healthy growth of a city as is free circulation of the blood to the healthy growth of a man. Fixed bridges will allow it. Draw bridges will not.

Two phases of Chicago life are likely to oppose such improvement. One is the elevator, lumber yard, and similar business which depends upon the river traffic to reach its docks. Such opposition should be overcome without loss to the businesses involved by condemnation of the property, payment of a fair price to prevent loss, and provision of new elevator, lumber yard and factory sites on an outer harbor—perhaps the proposed Calumet harbor—which would relieve the businesses in question of the expense of tortuous ship passage through the river.

Another probable opponent will be the steamer lines now using the Chicago river. They want to come as near as possible to the door of potential passengers. That is natural and justifiable. But they overlook an important point. The continued growth and prosperity of Chicago is one of their great assets, though an invisible one. A million more people in this city will mean more to them than present advantages of docking a few blocks from the loop. They will get that million potential passengers if they join with the other public spirited organizations in doing everything possible to improve and develop Chicago.

No one wants to drive them away from Chicago. Passenger boats can still dock at the Municipal pier. The coming subway and other improvements in transportation, unrestricted by open bridges, will put down passengers at the Municipal pier more easily than they are now set down at the river docks. United effort to these ends will make Chicago the city it ought to be. More power to those who seek the fixed bridge at Wabash avenue.

SUBWAY PLEDGES.

Mr. Lueder has declared himself for a subway, to be built as soon as possible where it is most needed and extended as rapidly as possible wherever it is needed. Judge Dever has about the same conviction. One of these two citizens will be mayor of Chicago, in all reasonable prospect, within a short time. Whichever one is elected there is a subway pledge. That, with a responsive council, ought to start the city on its way to metropolitan transportation.

Editorial of the Day

A UNIVERSE, NOT A POLYVERSE.

[Free translation from L'Italia.]

America's intervention for the true peace, just as she intervened for the war and decided it, is demanded by two categorical imperatives, one of a moral and the other of an economical nature.

The first mentioned consideration is not at all strange to the American soul, however contrary this fact may be to the view which holds the life of America to be woven only of greedy materialism. For the very reason that the Americans are immensely rich, they can once in a while afford to indulge in the luxury of listening to an ideal voice. A people of elevated conceptions, as ours has shown itself to be in the war, cannot hold aloof from the consequences of its actions, especially when these actions were dictated by humanitarian sentiments. America cannot possibly permit in the long run that the fruit of her immense effort is something directly contrary to the highest possessions which she wanted to defend; that instead of a Europe ennobled by peace and democracy there should exist one worse than before the war and more in the throes of imperialism than ever.

This sentiment indeed America has already manifested by rejecting the Versailles treaty and by repudiating all attempts to draw her into the intrigues of the entente. But for the quietness of conscience it is not enough to abstain from doing evil. It is necessary to do positive work for what is good and to throw into the scale all the moral authority and force at our command.

However, descending from the moral height to the consideration of mere economic expediency, we find even here a motive to intervene which in itself alone is irresistible. Europe is and remains the great market of the world, notwithstanding her undeniable disorder; without her, America's production and development is stunted. All Asia and South America are not as important for our export trade as is Great Britain alone. China and the British and Dutch East Indies do not represent as much as we export to Italy. All Africa will hardly absorb more American products than does little Holland. To recapture her normal market in Germany is for the United States, the greatest raw product country of the world, far more interesting than to exploit the various countries bordering on the Pacific. America is suffering from her very wealth; as happened to Midas in ancient mythology, everything has at our touch turned to gold. Now it appears that this enormous reserve of metal which has accumulated in our vaults is a dead asset and cannot possibly do us any good in that condition. We have to export it in order to employ it productively, and Europe is if not the sole at least the main field for it to bring results; hence the economic necessity for us to relieve that continent, so it can later on, when the time comes, pay back the gold with proper interest.

As old Midas had to bathe in the river Pactolus in order to free himself from being suffocated in gold, we have to seek our bath in the lively waters of European economical life; it will not do us any good to be afraid of such contact. Notwithstanding the barriers of nationalism, all parts of the world are united by bonds of solidarity, and these bonds cannot be ignored with impunity.

We are living in a universe, not a polyverse!

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

GEORGE, SHAKE, YOU'RE A REAL HE-MAN.

Say Brother: Gosh, I hain't the kind of a fellow that picks a fight, but them guys that jumped all over me for slammin' this here grand opera will find out that little old George F. Babbitt has got a few fights left in him yet. I said, and I say again, that this here opera stuff is the bunk. I'm still a rootin' for that fellow that wrote that straight from the shoulder editorial in the Trib and bawled Sam Insull out. What's made this here little old burg of ours what it is today? Grand opera? Not in a million years. Killing hogs, that what's done most of it. What countries do we find grand opera at? Italy, France, and Germany. Yes, and look at 'em; a lot of mildewed, out of date, old European dumps that we Americans have to feed and lend money to. What did their grand opera get 'em? Not a dam thing! What we want in this here burg hain't a bunch of wops and frogs and Heinies squalling in foreign languages that nobody understands, but a lot of lend-a-hand, up-standing good fellows who play hard and work hard and give this opera guff the square toed boot and who get out and boost and keep on boosting for little old Chi.

GEORGE F. BABBITT.

GREATHEART.

They took small note of him, the great, the wise, the rich,
Who saw him come from Illinois, a wild, crude State—
A country lawyer to decide a Nation's fate!
They held him foolish to accept so high a niche—
What, President! Unkempt, unlearned and unrefined
They called him, and withdrew for private talk.
They joked about his ancestry, and by his walk
They feigned to guess his farmer lineage. How blind
Were they who could not see the fire that burned within Those glowing eyes, who failed to note the mighty strength
Of those toil-hardened arms! His gaunt limbs' sprawling length
Should have proclaimed to them a giant's stride! Their sin
Was not to know the great, enduring heart of him,
Our most beloved, whose fame the ages cannot dim.

FLY FIGHTING IN PANAMA.

IN Panama and Colon comparatively little is done in the way of killing or screening against flies. They are geneticists and economists. This means that they solve problems of breeding and feeding rather than spend their time murdering adult flies. I am sure our antivivisection friends will rejoice to know that in Panama, while flies are starved to death and their procreative instincts are curbed, they are not killed.

The standards of cleanliness of the people are very high—far higher than with us. "The streets are spotless; the yards, the premises, the houses," as, paraphrasing what Sheridan said of the Shenandoah valley after his raid, "when a fly flies across Panama he takes his rations with him or he starves.

I attended Health Commissioner Goldthwaite's court one day. In these cities the health commissioner has the right to hold court. Court convened at 11 a. m. At 11:30 they adjourned, after hearing fifteen cases.

In the first case the charge was: "Dirty garbage can. Had not been washed with fly repellent." Inspector testified showed some maggots. Defendant testified. Health commissioner lectured defendant and imposed fine of $2. Second case, charge was "mosquito breeding." Inspector testified that neighbors complained of mosquitoes. Inspection of nearby houses was made. The defendant's premises were found to be the breeding place. A bottle of water containing larvæ was shown. Defendant testified. Commissioner lectured defendant and imposed fine of $2.

The charges were insanitary rooms, unclean yards, dirty garbage cans, fly breeding, and mosquito breeding. The smallest fine was $1 and the largest $10.

The outstanding features of the system are quickness of action and the explanation and lecture by the commissioner. For example, let us say that the neighbors complain of mosquitoes or flies on Monday. On Tuesday the inspector locates the trouble and cites the defendant into the health court. On Wednesday the case is heard, the normal fine is assessed, and the admonition and advice is given.

Incidentally, the defendant saves lawyer's fees and much other money, as well as time. The state is saved the expense of a formal trial. Fifteen cases in thirty minutes!

The cause of health is promoted by the prompt action as well as by the lecture. One case tried that morning was against the keeper of a stall in the public market; and let us use that as an excuse for a few words about the market. The market is not screened. If there were any flies around a market which sold fish and bananas they would be certain to get them. Yet the only measures of fly control which they find it necessary to employ are cleanliness and some fly catching. From the ceiling of the market some wires are hung perpendicularly. These wires are old barbing wires coated with the following mixture: 8 parts castor oil, 5 parts rosin.

SHE WOULD GET FAT.

Mrs. M. N. S. writes: "1. Is there such a thing as being naturally thin? Am 22 years old, 5 feet 2 inches tall, and weigh 125 pounds. People tell me I am too thin for a married woman. Besides, I'd like to gain six or seven pounds.

"2. What would you suggest, outside of eating nourishing foods?"

REPLY.

1. Yes.

When you get about ten years older you will find that people envy your "sveltetitude." Likewise, about that age, insurance agents will camp on your trail, for slender people 30 and over are prime risks.

2. If you want to chuck all these advantages and join the endless procession of the fat folks whom nobody loves, quit worrying and fidgeting; eat an average amount of plain, nutritious food. Every night about 9 o'clock eat a large bowl of milk and sugared cereal, and sleep nine hours.

WANTS PUGILISTIC ADVICE.

E. M. writes:

"1. Please tell me the normal pulse.

"2. My pulse, while lying down, is from 76 to 78; while standing it is about 82. After trotting a block or so it is about 100. Is this a sign of a weak heart?

"3. I am 22 years old and expect to become a pugilist. Would the action of my heart hinder me any?

"I have smoked moderately for a couple of years, but have not used tobacco for the last two months."

REPLY.

1. About 70 for the average adult.
2. No.
3. If you are to become a pugilist you will need a heart that is both sound and well developed. Before embarking on training for a career as a pugilist, have all your organs, including your heart, examined and sized up generally.

BRAN FOR CONSTIPATION.

O. M. B. writes: "I am 30 years old eat ordinary restaurant food at regular hours, seem to have a fair appetite, and have no complaints, except that my bowels move only once in three days at best.

"Have I cause for worry and, if so, what is there I could do to make bowels move more regularly?"

REPLY.

It is better to overcome constipation if you can.

If your restaurant does not carry bran, carry a small bag of it there and add a few tablespoonfuls to your morning cereal; or, when you arise, eat a handful of bran and an apple or two and drink a few glasses of water.

AN AROMATIC BEDFELLOW.

A reader writes: "I have heard it said that if a person slept with a slice of an onion under each arm, in the morning you would appear deathly white and also be sick for weeks.

"Is this true, and just what causes this effect?

"Is it dangerous or detrimental in any way?"

REPLY.

If you mean that the bedmate of the onion brooder would be deathly white and sick for weeks, I might agree.

However, the onion brooder would be normally healthy, however aromatic she might be.

NOISE.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Some time ago the builders of a hotel in the neighborhood, 2100 block and Sedgwick, made an opening in the road, which has never been properly filled in. The south park commissioners have only very recently taken over Loomis street from 67th street to 87th street for boulevard purposes.

In order to improve this street it will be necessary to spread a special assessment for that purpose, and this will probably be done some time during this calendar year.

VOX-POPULAR SCIENCE.

Maywood, Ill., Feb. 3.—Now comes J. V. Nash in his letter of the 26th and trots out that old four toed horse in support of evolution, and the poor animal must be very tired, for he has been pulling an exceedingly heavy load for a long time. His existence proves only one thing—that he was a horse, and his disappearance only one thing—that he is extinct, along with other birds and animals that have ceased to exist in our own time. I repeat that there is no evidence anywhere of the transition of one species to another. With such a principle operating there would be no species; merely a mass of beings, all different, in process of continuous change.

Instead of finding nature teeming with evidence as it should be with so cosmic a principle in operation and such a multiplicity of forms on which to operate, evolutionists are kept busy searching the dim and distant past and adding more periods and millions of years as each new discovery adds more difficulties to explain.

Mr. Nash will have to display something besides a four toed horse to explain the origin of force and matter, of life and species, of instinct and the power of reproduction, and while I am looking over the fossils in the museum, as he suggests, I will ask him to consult with Dr. Ethbridge, a noted expert in fossilology, of the British museum, who recently said "This museum is full of proofs of the falsity of evolution," or to the noted Dutch botanist, Hugo De Vries, who says "Species do not originate but disappear through the struggle for existence and natural selection," or to Gustave Geley, director of the Institut Metapsychique International of France, who says "The marvelous and intricate instincts displayed even among insects are utterly unexplainable on the basis of evolution," or if he is so inclined he might call up the shade of Darwin himself, who admitted that "not one change of species into another is on record," or of Huxley, who made a similar admission.

And I would further suggest that he refrain from dragging in the Bible, for he has trouble enough in the fields of biology and zoölogy without any Don Quixote attacks on theology.

WHO GOT WHAT OUT OF THE WAR!

Chicago, Jan. 30.—It is very interesting these days, when one hears arguments for cancellation of the European debts due the United States of America; also the confiscation of the Ruhr district of Germany by France to pay for alleged reparation debts due France, to read the October 1922 issue of the National Geographic magazine.

The distribution of mandates under the treaty of Versailles was the equivalent of distributing an ownership. The elimination of Germany from the continent of Africa made possible the following divisions (see p. 448):

France, more than twenty times the area of the home country; Britain, more than thirty times the area of the British isles; Belgium, more than eighty times the area of Belgium proper; Portugal, more than twenty-six Portugals-in-Europe; Italy, more than four times the area of the governing country; America asked for nothing but the island of Yap in the Pacific for a cable station, and that was given to Japan.

It is not unreasonable to say, if these debtors have no money to pay debts, they could at least, if sincere, offer to turn over the equivalent in spoils of war obtained from Germany. For example, how much could Alsace-Lorraine be capitalized for by France and the capital used toward paying her debt to America?

A POLICE CAPTAIN'S IDEA OF THE ONE HAND GUN.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—The following is a copy of a letter sent by me today to the Chicago crime commission:

"Having read your list of proposed new laws to be presented to the legislatures, it surprises me to learn that you forget the main cause of crime—the ownership of a revolver and the carrying of same by tough kids and crooks.

"Of course a law to prevent the carrying of firearms by crooks would hurt the crooks and maybe ruin the business of manufacturers of firearms, therefore somebody is always looking out for their interest and keeping this law off the statute books of the states.

"Your proposed laws are good, but all together are not as good as a law giving a thief with a gun ten years to life, and if he used the gun, hang him—the death penalty. Why not? He'll kill if he gets a chance.

"Business men are not sincere. And lawmakers? God deliver us! Grand juries are strong for investigating the police; why not investigate thieves and their backers? Who is keeping a good gun law off the statutes? Influence; money. The thieves are laughing at us all."

KEEP IMMIGRATION RESTRICTED.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—I have just read THE TRIBUNE editorial of today on the immigration question. It is well that a few public spirited persons raise their voices in behalf of the body politic in favor of proper restrictions of immigration, thus curbing in greater or less degree those specially interested minorities who are actively [and unscrupulously] engaged in seeking to break down the barriers.

The people of this country are not ambitious to overrun the earth, but we should be and we are ambitious [although not in a very articulate way] that we ourselves should not be overrun in our own territory either by warlike or by peaceful invasion.

It is imperative for the welfare of our country that our immigration be regulated in two ways—first, that it be restricted numerically, and, second, that a process of selection be imposed, administered by our own government, and not by foreign governments nor by any special interests in this country.

CITIZENS' ARMY IS PLAN TO BEAT VICE RING GRIP

"Minute Men" to Recruit Through Churches.

Vice as a trade for women and girls and as a source of revenue for politicians is to be fought to the death by a group of twenty earnest men who met yesterday in the office of Attorney William R. Moss to lay the battle lines.

WILLIAM R. MOSS.

They agreed to divide their present efforts into two attacks. One is to make known to the fathers and mothers of the city the dangers of social disease; the other is to prosecute relentlessly any public official or set of officials who permit, encourage, or collect from public vice perversion.

Broadcast Facts from Pulpits.

The conferees were the men who are to speak from the pulpits of twenty churches on Sunday with the intention of conveying to the general public vice conditions as they are and as they may be if not checked. Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley, Judge Daniel P. Trude, and Dr. Herman N. Bundesen health commissioner, were the only public officials present.

Dr. Bundesen and Judge Trude are to be church speakers. Justice McKinley will not, because, he explained he has under his charge the grand jury which on next Thursday will begin anew the task of bringing vice to light.

Call City "Equal to Worst."

Public support of the most intimate kind is to be urged on the church attendance in behalf of the investigation ordered by Justice McKinley on the affidavit and petition of the Juvenile Protective association that Chicago was a "horror spot" equal to the worst city in the world. Each speaker is to ask the appointment of a committee of five from the congregation.

These committees will be urged to call upon Judge McKinley in the Criminal court and familiarize themselves with the actual conditions relating to sex irregularities which come before the courts. Each committee will also be advised to visit State's Attorney Crowe.

Objects to "Shame" Title.

At yesterday's gathering Health Commissioner Bundesen took exception to the title of "The Shame of Chicago" for the subject of the speeches of the crusaders.

"Chicago is not worse than any other city," he said. "True, a large percentage of the lewd women who ply are infected, but the percentage here is not as high as in most large cities.

"I have reached the conclusion that individual immorality cannot be stamped out, but at least we can make our community safe for our children. You must drive home to the parents the great danger of America becoming a nation infected.

Again Puts It Up to Parents.

"You must destroy the fallacy of the single standard of morals. You must convince the world at large that the girl who makes a single false step is not damned forever. She can be again just as sweet and just as dear if the parents do their duty. All the public officials in the world cannot save future generations if present day parents fail to warn their sons and daughters of the pitfalls."

"Chicago might not be the worst city, but it is bad enough," Frank S. Harris replied to Dr. Bundesen. "We cannot accomplish much by taking a Sunday school attitude toward vice. We must strike terror into the hearts of the lewd and keep them forever from our midst."

To Fight on Own Basis.

"You have here three public officials, McKinley, Trude and Bundesen, who are on the square," Attorney Moss said. "This kind of official needs your support; they won't get any from the underworld. The vice lords are organized and carry great political weight. Only by uniting the decent element can we combat them."

Data prepared by Judge Trude for the information of the new "Minute Men" were taken from cases heard in the Morals court. He makes the assertion that four-fifths of the taxicab drivers in the city have in their possession the names, addresses and telephone numbers of women and "call flats."

F. M. SORENSON, VETERAN, SOUGHT.

An appeal to the police to assist in the search for Frank Miller Sorenson, who served in the A. E. F. during the war and who was later a patient at the Marine hospital, was received yesterday from Carl Sorenson of Glastrup, Denmark.

BETTER DEAL BY NEXT FALL, HOPE FOR CAR RIDERS

Expect New Chief to Take 6 Months to Plan.

WILLISTON FISH.

Mr. Richardson enters upon a six months' program of improvement of service, the six months' period being the estimate within which a new and constructive plan can be agreed to that satisfies the operators and the operatives in the first instance, and that will tend to quell present objections of the straphangers to service as it exists on the surface lines.

Silent on Fish's Plans.

The present general manager, Williston Fish, yesterday, following a conference with Henry A. Blair, president and chairman of the board of surface lines, said that he did not care to discuss his further relation with the street car system. He will report to Mr. Richardson and is said to contemplate remaining at his post for the time being.

Mr. Richardson has made a preliminary study of surface line conditions in connection with a technical investigation that he made comparatively recently of the elevated lines. It is understood that he is conversant with the Chicago problem of transportation, including the proposed subway and the amalgamation of the local transportation services.

See Remedy by Next Fall.

That he will have no immediate prescription to remedy Chicago's troubles was indicated yesterday, but that something is expected from him definitely before next fall in alleviating street car conditions appeared to be the hope at the surface lines offices.

Suggestion of a possible reopening of strike talk among the surface line employés with the termination of the present agreement next June seemed to die away yesterday.

COURTESY FOR CROWE HOLDS UP GRAFT INQUIRY

Purse Closed to Let Him Object Again.

As a courtesy to State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, members of the finance committee of the county board yesterday delayed authorizing Attorney General Edward J. Brundage to use a recent appropriation of $165,000 for an investigation of the city hall.

The consensus was that as State's Attorney Crowe was not personally present to voice his objections, and none of his representatives appeared, the board should give him the opportunity to tell the commissioners personally that he was adamant in his opposition to the city hall being investigated by any one else but himself.

Want to Hear It Again.

They admitted they knew his position, but decided to notify him to be present Tuesday at 1 p. m. to tell them again.

The lawyers representing the Bar association, who have previously given their time to aid in the school investigation, and who came yesterday to report that the Bar association was back of Brundage in the matter, were told to come again Tuesday.

Must Be Unanimous, He Says.

"If the Bar association, Attorney General Brundage, and State's Attorney Crowe agree on this you will find that the board will unanimously put the money at Mr. Brundage's disposal," Commissioner Peterson told Attorney William H. Sexton.

"We are not interested in whether Mr. Crowe agrees," Sexton said. "We merely want to report that we are here to suggest the necessary change in the appropriation so the grand jury can carry on as they voted to do."

CLING TO FANCY CARS

Members of the Thompson-Lundin school board yesterday refused to give up four expensive automobiles which they provided for themselves with the taxpayers money.

SADIE BAY ADAIR.

"Sell those cars and save nearly $30,000 for the children," Trustee Hart Hanser urged members of the committee on buildings and grounds. "Remember, some schools haven't any lights, in others there aren't enough seats."

"My time is money; I can't get around without a car," said Trustee Sadie Bay Adair, and she voted against the sale.

"I damaged my own car coming here once and had to pay $30," said Trustee Boleslaus Klarkowski, and he cast a negative vote.

Trustee Pauline Struwing didn't give the reason she refused to vote for the sale.

Dr. John Dill Robertson said he believed the board could save $50,000 a year by selling all its automobiles and hiring taxicabs. He voted for the sale.

Charges Joy Riding.

Francis E. Croarkin, trustee, but not a member of the committee, said the automobiles were "a scandal" and were used for joy riding. He said he regretted the rules would be not to let him vote.

Hanson in voting to sell the machines said they cost on an average of $7,000 a year each for maintenance and were "a crime against the children."

However, a proposition to sell the flivvers used by active employés of the board, whose duties call them to various parts of the city many times a day, was carried.

"You are still sitting on dynamite around here," Hanson said. "The grand jury is still investigating. I want to tell you to beware. There may be some more indictments. I'm going to keep on investigating until I get to the bottom of all this scandal."

JAILER TO GIVE ADDRESS.

Capt. Wesley H. Westbrook, county jailer, will speak before the Mary Garden forum at Colonial hall, 20 West Randolph street, Sunday afternoon. The subject will be "Crime, Criminals, and the Dope Traffic."

TOLL OF 2 MINE BLASTS LIKELY TO STAND AT 153

120 at Dawson and 33 at Cumberland.

Dawson, N. M., Feb. 9.—[By the Associated Press.]—Thirty-four bodies have thus far been removed from mine No. 1 of the Phelps-Dodge corporation, where an explosion yesterday entombed 122 soft coal miners. Only two men have thus far come out alive, and the search for the eighty-six still in the shaft goes on.

At 5 o'clock rescue workers engaged in the south side tunnels reported their belief that four men were still alive in the mine and presumably trying to make their way out without lights. This report, taken in connection with the statement of the two survivors of the disaster, that they also believed four men were still living in the pit, inspired hope for a time that others would be saved, but as the night wore on and no further trace of life was heard or seen, the hope died away.

Company officials believe no more men will come out alive and that the final toll of this latest Dawson disaster will be 120.

One Illinois Victim.

The mangled condition of the bodies recovered has made identification difficult. The list of missing contains the name of one Illinois man—Aaron Simpson of Springfield.

The error in the earlier report to the effect that three men had been rescued alive was compensated for in a way early today when Charles Candale and Filini Martinez walked out of the mine comparatively uninjured. They saved their lives by putting out their lights following the explosion, lying flat on the ground when the smoke fumes began to pour through the passageway and wrapping water soaked sweaters about their heads, through which they breathed when they later encountered the suffocating black coal dust.

Thus far, only seven families have been left fatherless by the explosion. Three-fourths of the identified dead were unmarried. Eight of the identified were American citizens.

Thirty-three Dead in Canada.

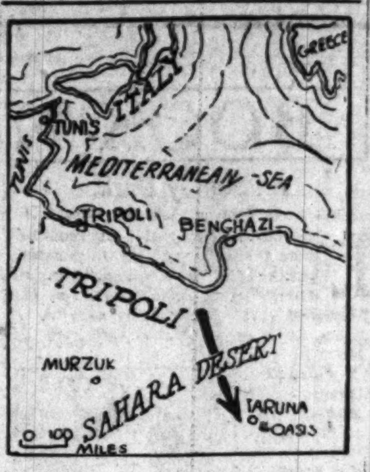
Cumberland, B. C., Feb. 9.—The death toll in last night's explosion in the mine at the Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir) Limited, two miles from here, was placed at thirty-three tonight.

The bodies of fourteen white men and seventeen Chinese had been recovered and rescuers expressed the belief that only two Chinese remained in the tunnel.

Six men, brought out by rescue parties, were taken to a hospital where they are unconscious, with a chance for life.

One Chinese miner made his way two miles through smoke filled passages to safety. His escape, through a passageway strewn with the bodies of others, is regarded as miraculous.

REBELS IN TRIPOLI FLEE WHEN ITALIAN ARMY APPROACHES



TRIPOLI, Feb. 9.—[United News.]—Arabian rebels in eastern Tripoli are fleeing before the advance of three columns of Italian troops. The Italians have employed 2,000 camels, 3,000 horses, and 100 automobiles to bring up their armies.

The Italian army, engaged in reconquering Tripoli, encircled the Arabian rebels entrenched at Taruna Thursday and occupied the castle which was the home of the local chieftain.

U. S. OFFICIALS WEARY OF ADER'S PRISON EVASION

Government officials last night made it clear they have grown tired of the "hide and seek" game they have been playing with Edward J. Ader, convicted as a swindler, and that efforts will be made Tuesday before Judge Wilkerson to have his bonds forfeited.

It is said relatives of Ader, formerly a well known Chicago attorney, have been vague in their reports to Marshal Levy regarding the convicted man's whereabouts since the Circuit Court of Appeals issued a mandate a week ago.

The mandate and commitments to Leavenworth penitentiary were issued after the United States Supreme court had affirmed decisions of lower courts ordering Ader to serve seven years and pay a fine of $10,000 for his part in the fraudulent promotion of the Consumers' Packing company, which became defunct in 1920.

Girl May Get Pardon.

Simultaneously with announcement that immediate action will be taken against Ader, it was said that friends of Miss Goldie Skolnik, former private secretary to Ader, sentenced to six months in the county jail and fined $1,000, have taken steps to obtain a presidential pardon for her.

Federal officials said additional evidence had been given Judge Evan A. Evans, before whom the packing company officers were originally tried, tending to show Miss Skolnik had been misled by other defendants.

The government has withheld serving of commitments on Miss Skolnik pending apprehension of Ader. Recommendations for a stay pending application for executive clemency probably will be made Tuesday when the status of Ader's position will be determined.

Hear Ader Has Sailed.

Reports that Ader had sailed under an assumed name for Germany on the steamship Baltic remained persistent about the federal building, although Marshal Levy said Ader's brother had assured him that the former attorney was at a hotel in New York. Efforts to reach him at the hotel named were unsuccessful, it was said.

Best Sellers of the Ages

Sixtieth Paper—The "Meditations" of Marcus Aurelius—A Treasure for the Tired Business Man.

The Book of Marcus Aurelius—

> A true and eternal gospel, the book of Meditations will never grow old, for it affirms no dogma. The gospel has aged in certain portions; science no longer allows the childish conceptions of the supernatural, which forms its basis, to be admitted. The supernatural element in the Meditations is but a slight and insignificant blemish which does not affect the marvelous beauty of the work as a whole. Science may destroy God and the soul, while the book of Meditations still remains young with life and truth. The religion of Marcus Aurelius, like that of Jesus at moments, is the absolute religion, that resulting from the simple fact of a high moral consciousness confronting the universe. It is of no race and of no country. No revolution, no advance in progress, no new discovery has any power to change it. ERNEST RENAN.

> The art of living is more like wrestling than dancing, in so far as it stands ready against the accidental and the unforeseen, and it is not apt to fall.
> Forward, as occasion offers. Never look round to see whether any shall note it. . . . Be satisfied with success in even the smallest matter, and think that even such a result is no trifle.
>
> Mark how fleeting and paltry is the estate of man,—yesterday in embryo, tomorrow a mummy or ashes. So for the hair's-breadth of time assigned to thee live rationally, and part with life cheerfully, as drops the ripe olive, extolling the season that bore it and the tree that matured it. MARCUS AURELIUS ANTONINUS.
>
> (The "Meditations"; circa A. D. 170.)

HERE is a book of conduct—a book about how to get on with the world—written by a man of large affairs; administrator, in fact, of the most extensive and intensely practical and highly organized enterprise in the history of mankind up to his time.

This enterprise was strictly business—no sentiment, no idle dreams, but roadbuilding, pacification, far-flung legislation, bridges, aqueducts, and no fantasy that something was to be had or given for nothing. As to business, this corporation had it all, and our author was the general director, a very conscientious man, industrious and skillful but with a celestial kindliness in him by which he tried to assuage the severity inherent in the character of his people. The concern dealt with a citizenry and clientele totaling 100,000,000, and Marcus Aurelius Antoninus directed it successfully for twenty years. After he gave up the task the enterprise slowly went to smash.

That enterprise was the Roman Empire.

No empiric, then, this Marcus, but a man who dealt so largely in life and affairs that his book about life and affairs is no dead "classic," notwithstanding the more than seventeen centuries that have crowned it, but a great steadier for young business men and a great fortifier for tired business men of all times and lands.

This man lived what he wrote—no prig; no prater—and, I think, suffered a great deal of what he wrote. The gist of his counsel is: Be square, be moderate, be simple; don't take the shortcomings of men too tragically; and, before you start to berate men, try what a little teaching will do. Above all, consider how much of life is mere superfluity. Easy, you might say, for an emperor, enveloped in revenues and adulation, to teach that. But recall, what he taught he lived. From age to age hath this been said of him—a monarch, but he scorned the millinery of monarchy; a stoic, but mild; a statesman, but he hated craft; a soldier, but pacific and merciful. He bent himself to business. He attained economy in the expenditure of the revenues of the state; he suppressed excessive and meaningless litigation; he secured goodly laws for the protection of minors; he did much toward correcting the brutality of gladiatorial combats; he insisted that the imperial roads be kept in fine repair; he took up the question of the regulation of street traffic and did much toward solving it; he insisted upon the appointment of worthy men to magistracies.

Our good Marcus—that is what great Renan, with his Breton warmth, calls him in his beautiful book about the man—our good Marcus knew trouble. He wrote from no bed of ease. As man and as sovereign he had trials a plenty. His wife, Faustina, was not above suspicion, and his son, Commodus, turned out as bad as a youth with all the chances in the world to be good ever has turned out. His early colleague in the imperial seat, Lucius Aurelius Verus, took to wine and women and disgraced the army. For fifteen years the bubonic plague—at least, medical men are now pretty certain it was that scourge—devastated his realms and killed half the people—in some areas all of them. Marcus directed Doctor Galen to do all he could, but that was little. During the pestilence came also famine, volcanic eruptions, earthquakes, and the first threats of those barbarian invasions from beyond the Danube that one day were to wreck the imperial concern. Two centuries of peace were drawing to a close.

But Marcus set his jaws hard and rose early and wrote this in his book of daily meditations, addressing it, as was his custom, to himself:

> In the morning when thou risest unwillingly, let this thought be present—I am rising to the work of a human being. Why, then am I dissatisfied if I am going to do the things for which I exist and for which I was brought into the world? Or have I been made for this, to lie in the bed-clothes and keep myself warm? But this is more pleasant—Dost thou exist then to take thy pleasure, and not at all for action or exertion?

There was nothing fanciful about that. He did what he had told himself he ought to do. War he detested—"detested it," in Gibbon's fine phrase, "as the disgrace and calamity of human nature." But he got out of his warm bed and he fought eight winter campaigns along the Danube, where the cold bites, and anybody who has ever steamed through the Iron Gate on a winter's day knows how it bites! Belike 'twas as cold in Marcus' time. In that time and by that austere river and on those dreary but fruitful Hungarian plains that roll away from the meeting place of the Gran and the Danube, in cold, in anxiety, and in fickle health, some of the finest parts of this wise, beautiful, patient, hardy book of the "Meditations" were written—written amid the clamor of a camp and the strain of a campaign. But Marcus could find quiet anywhere. He had a special refuge. He tells us about it:

> At what time soever thou wilt, it is in thy power to retire into thyself, and to be at rest, and free from all businesses. A man cannot any whither retire better than to his own soul; he especially who is beforehand provided with such things within, which, whensoever he doth withdraw himself to look in, may presently afford unto him perfect ease and tranquillity. . . . Afford then thyself this retiring continually, and thereby refresh and renew thyself.

His thoughts—"Thoughts," "Reflections," "Meditations" are the titles variously given to the book—his thoughts, I say, range from the most practical rules for every-day contacts to the loftiest utterance of aspiration. Sometimes he compasses that range in two sentences. Is not this, for example, alike shrewd and celestial, proud and humble, in its attitude toward fellow man:

> If he have sinned, his is the harm, not mine. But perchance he hath not.

He had a genius for the commonplaces—a genius so great that he made them heavenward guides. "How couldst thou," he asks, "enjoy thy customary hot baths should not the wood that heateth them first be changed?" Death, he adds, is but one of these innumerable changes. Why fear it? Scores upon scores of the Meditations are but a line or two; others run to one or two hundred words. Dozens of them are among the most popular and often quoted dicta in world literature. How many of Benjamin Franklin's sayings do you think the classic Bartlett contains? Twenty-four. And of Bacon? Sixty. And of Marcus Aurelius? Eighty-seven. There is a bite in many of his that is Yankee-like in its precision. Anybody could say that all fame is ephemeral, and that would affright nobody. But Marcus said "All is ephemeral—fame and famous as well."

> All men are made one for another: either then teach them better, or bear with them.
>
> When at any time thou art offended with any one's impudency, put presently this question to thyself: "What? Is it then possible that there should not be any impudent men in the world!" Certainly it is not possible. Desire not then that which is impossible.
>
>
> How much time and leisure doth he gain who is not curious to know what his neighbor hath said, or hath done, or hath attempted, but only what he doth himself, that it may be just and holy!
>
> In the matter of writing or reading thou must needs be taught before thou canst do either: much more in matter of life.

'Tis beautiful to read how the world hath treasured the book of this seeker and finder of sense. It was a favorite with Captain John Smith, the founder of Virginia, and he studied it every day. Emerson loved it, and especially loved a saying in it which he declared "it would be hard to mend." It was this:

> It is well to die if there be gods, and sad to live if there be none.

And Emerson put the "Meditations" in his list of "indispensable books," saying that it was one of the books that are "the majestic expression of the universal conscience" and are to be "read on bended knee." Senan called it "that gospel of those who have no belief in the supernatural . . . that book all-resplendent with the divine spirit, that manual of the resigned life." John Stuart Mill said Marcus was "a better Christian than almost any of the ostensibly Christian sovereigns who have since reigned," and that his writings "differ scarcely perceptibly, if they differ at all, from the most characteristic teachings of Christ." Guglielmo Ferrero, in his latest book, "The Ruin of Ancient Civilizations and the Triumph of Christianity," pronounces the "Meditations" one of the most beautiful monuments of human wisdom."

But let us look far, far back. What did his people do when their good Marcus died—the people of that far-flung empire? They set up little statues of him in their houses, and placed before them flowers, and after a hundred years travellers into remote provinces would see the little statues. The people knew their friend. They knew.

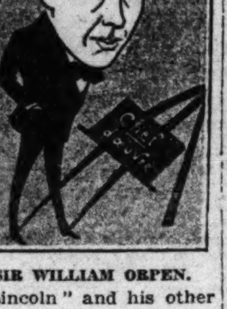
BOOK NEWS from LONDON

By Sidney Dark,

[Editor of John o' London's Weekly.]

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Some rather misleading paragraphs have appeared in the American press concerning the "Outline of Literature and Art," which is to be published this year by Newnes in England and Putnam in America. John Drinkwater, poet, dramatist, and critic, is the editor of the "Outline of Literature," and Sir William Orpen, R. A., the famous portrait painter, is the editor of the "Outline of Art."



SIR WILLIAM ORPEN.

In addition to "Abraham Lincoln" and his other successful plays, John Drinkwater has written a monograph on Swinburne and other critical papers, and he is eminently qualified to act as the general editor of an ambitious popular survey of literature from the classic ages to the present day. The contributors to the "Outline" include Canon Barnes of Westminster, who has written about the Bible; Granville Barker, who has written about Shakespeare; Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch, professor of literature at Cambridge university, who deals with the Victorian poets, and G. K. Chesterton, whose subject is the Victorian novelists. American literature is given considerable space in this "Outline," the various authors and periods being considered mainly by American critics.

It has been stated in America that I am acting as the editor of the "Outline," a mistake obviously arising from the fact that Messrs. Newnes are the publishers of the weekly literary paper of which I am acting editor. It should be added that the "Outline of Art" will be just as comprehensive as the "Outline of Literature," and that it will contain reproductions of several hundreds of the most famous pictures in the world. The serial publication of the "Outline of Literature and Art" begins in England at the end of January, and there is every reason to believe that it will have the same success as H. G. Wells' "Outline of History" and Prof. Arthur Thomson's "Outline of Science."

The veteran Prof. George Saintsbury's "The Scrap Book" is a series of delightful reflections and recollections compiled by a man who may be regarded as the last literary member of that old Tory party that had an equal love for high church and old port. Prof. Saintsbury writes with breeding and he also writes with almost unrivaled knowledge and authority.

R. M. Freeman's "The New Boswell" is a book in which all good Johnsonians should rejoice. It purports to repeat Samuel's reflections in Elysium on current terrestrial personalities and events. He dismisses golf as "the quintessence of the absurd, alike in the futility of its ends, the fatuity of its methods, and the grotesque inadequacy of its implements." Discussing Ireland and the Irish, he says: "We English made a good enough business of ruling the Irish, sir, so long as we did rule them; that is to say, while we controlled them in the only way in which barbarians are capable of being controlled."

Johnson has a long conversation in the shades with Shakespeare, and when the poet leaves the doctor declares him "the most sensible genius I have ever met." He adds: "He made his plays objectively to get money, and they will have it that he made them subjectively to propound some abstruse philosophy of life."

In view of the recent tragic happenings in Greece, G. F. Abbott's "Greece and the Allies, 1914-'22," is a work that may be read with advantage both by Englishmen and Americans. Mr. Abbott insists that in the early years of the war King Constantine was extremely popular in Greece. The great majority of the Greek people entirely approved of his policy of keeping out of the war, and there were manifestations of genuine public indignation when he was compelled to leave Athens in 1917. By means of the war censorship all this was carefully kept from the knowledge of the British people. On the other hand, Mr. Abbott declares that Venizelos has "done his best to aggrandize and to disintegrate Greece." Venizelos has become a tragic figure in European politics. In Paris in 1919 English diplomats waited on his doormat, and Lloyd George largely owes his fall from power to the fact that he backed the Venizelos policy that has brought Greece to its present condition of humiliation and disaster.

Possibly the belief that an England that has been brought up on snippet periodicals will only read poetry in snippets has led to the publication recently of a whole series of anthologies. Sir Algernon Methuen has edited a collection which he calls "Shakespeare to Hardy," in which the selection is admirable, though the arrangement is a little maddening.

"The Gentleman with a Duster" is busy on a new book, which is to be called "Men Who Failed Us." It will probably be quite a long book.

Robert Louis Stevenson's mother kept a diary in which she recorded her son's history when he was a baby. It is to be published in facsimile in a limited edition of 500 copies.

It is said that Mr. Winston Churchill's war book is to be called "The Amphibian." I imagine because Englishmen are "soldiers and sailors, too."

Author of THE SKY LINE OF SPRUCE

¶ A powerful tale of the regeneration of a waster, whose father, in a belated effort to restore his manhood, sends him on a fur-trading trip to Alaska, where he is wrecked on a desolate island inhabited by an insane Siberian exile.

¶ In "The Isle of Retribution" Mr. Marshall has given us a story replete with thrilling situations and exciting adventures. The grizzly bear and the gray timber wolf of his novels of Oregon, Idaho and British Columbia are here replaced by the terrible Kodiac bear and the ferocious white Arctic wolf, while the northern lights add a prismatic splendor to this gripping tale of the barren Arctic wastes.

"HOMELY LILLA"

By Fanny Butcher.

ROBERT HERRICK has written in "Homely Lilla," a book which will be much discussed, much condemned, and pitifully misunderstood.

I have often thought lately of that monster which the hero of "Frankenstein" made with such loving care. Mrs. Shelley might have been writing an allegorical tale of the present state of American literature. For years we have been pleading for more honesty, more frankness in our literature. For years we have been creating a fetish of candor. And quite suddenly the ideal has become a reality and it has taken things into its own hands.

Everything we have now is "frank." The good things are honestly frank, the bad things are dishonestly frank. And frankness has turned into a Frankenstein. It is simply plowing through our literature. There is hardly a novel nowadays which might not be marked with an X, showing where the author decided that he'd tell a few biological truths. Honest truth is the most precious characteristic that any book can have. Dishonest truth, bawdiness masquerading as truth, is the most despicable characteristic that a book can have. It is what gives readers the Puritan complex. It is what makes them shy of books which deal with sex.

It is because there is so much dishonest truth smeared over our literature today that "Homely Lilla" is likely to be misunderstood. It is one of the most intimate, one of the frankest stories of marriage that any one has ever written. It is unconventional in the extreme, and by unconventional I mean exactly what I say—not that it is "naughty," but that it is not according to the conventions of thought which every one pretends dominate the world.

The truth is, of course, that conventions in thought change just as conventions in clothes, and in games, and in dancing change. They are conventions so long as they are held by the majority of persons in the world, or in the little ring of the world which we call the "civilized" nations. Whether or not "Homely Lilla" is a prophetic vision of woman's thought in the future I cannot say, of course.

Lilla's slow realization of the futility of her life is, in a way, the history in the life of an individual, of the whole feminist movement. That movement, which is in reality a fundamental urge in womankind to find her place in a new, unpatriarchal, industrial world, is the generalization of Lilla's urge to find her place in her own mind. The movement in womankind as well as in Lilla's individual life has been a slow, unconscious, but fundamentally honest thing, almost involuntary. Lilla develops, involuntarily, into a feminist in the sense that feminism means finding one's self.

There are spots in "Homely Lilla" which don't seem exactly right—sort of out of tune, perhaps with the sturdy, uncompromisingly honest creature that is Lilla. But the whole is a truly impressive thing. It treats situations which romance demands shall be filled with "moonlight and fragrance of roses" with the cruel acridness of the disinfectants of the mental operating room.

Lilla, the "wronged wife," does not weep over her husband's infidelity. She finds the lonely and love-sick girl whom her husband has tired of as soon as his amour has been found out, and she is a friend to her. Lilla, the "wronged girl," does not weep in the arms of her lover and believe his protestations of love and his promises of marriage. She says that she is as much to blame as he, and that she never loved him. Lilla, the "adored wife," after hateful recriminations, does not sink into the arms of her loving husband in the belief that caresses are mutual forgivenesses. She sees him for the selfish, mean minded, lustful thing that he is. And she sees herself for the waster that she is, a waster of her natural sturdy honesty.

There isn't one thing in Lilla's mental life that can be said to be conventional, or what the world thinks is going on in the mind of a woman. And yet her married life has been almost utterly conventional—the wife of a riding school teacher, the mother of a boy, the maker of a little home in the suburbs.

H. L. Mencken in his "Prejudices III" says in his essay on "The Novel": "If I live to the year 1950, I expect to see a novel by a woman that will describe a typical marriage under Christianity, from the woman's standpoint, realistically . . . That novel, I venture to predict, will be a cuckoo. At one stroke it will demolish superstitions that have prevailed in the western world since the fall of the Roman empire. It will seem harsh, but it will be true. And, being true, it will be a good novel."

◆

I don't know whether Robert Herrick has described a typical marriage or not, though I suspect it's as typical as most "typical" things. But I do know that he has done it from the woman's standpoint, and that there is an aura of absolute truth about Lilla. It may be Mr. Herrick that has saved Mr. Mencken twenty-seven years of waiting.

* *

A Russian Phantasy.

In absolute contrast to "Homely Lilla" is "Futility," which is as fluffy, as fragile, as amusing as its title is ominous. That title reminds me of the translation which Arthur Ransome made of that really funny Russian legend of the soldier who played the jaunty trick on old lady death and was doomed to wander over the earth, the story that has had countless variants in the tale of the man from Oshkosh, or Rolling Prairie, or Chicago, or Red Dog, who wasn't wanted in either heaven or hell and was sent back to Oshkosh, or Rolling Prairie, or Chicago, or Red Dog. (They probably use the same tale in the less frequented parts of Mary Bradley's Gorilla Trail.)

Mr. Ransome in a jocose mood called the tale "The Soldier and Death," thereby warding off all possible readers of his amusing yarn. Mr. William Gerhardi has used the same jocosity in choosing a title for his first book, and since it is a Russian tale, it makes one suspect that the Russians are given to that sort of humor.

Anyway, "Futility" is futility, but a very dainty, amusing, well considered futility. It concerns a gentleman, by name Nikolai, who is the head of a family, consisting of three sisters—a bouquet of kittens—a lady neither their mother nor his wife (who has some relatives in Germany dependent upon her and therefore upon the broad shouldered Nikolai); two gentlemen about the house, one of them the prince and one later the husband of one of the girls; a real wife, who has a somewhat temporary mate, but who aspires to a more permanent relationship with a gentleman of large financial resources; a young girl whom Nikolai wishes to make his wife, but whom he cannot marry because his wife, who has refused for many years to give him a divorce, is now being kept by the lady neither the mother nor the wife from allowing the divorce to take place, although she, the wife, would really like to have it so that she may marry her well gilded suitor.

Attached to the young girl are dependents to the number of legion. And all of them, the whole inchoate mass, stick upon Nikolai like hatpins on a mound of black plush in a cheap jewelry display. And Nikolai roots himself in some theoretical gold mines which the bolsheviki and the Kolchakians, and the whatever, bandy about, but they never do produce anything for him. It sounds very mixed up—which it is—but a mere telling can never give the really amusing charm of it. It's all a jest, somehow, a gay, futile, charming jest.

Edith Wharton is so devoted to "Futility" that she wrote an introduction to the American edition, an extravagant introduction, in which she says that the young writer's people are as intelligible as those of Dostoievsky and Goncharoff, because Mr. Gerhardi has the power to depict Russians as the English see them. "Most of all for the laughter, the tears, and the strong beat of life in it, I should like to hand on my enjoyment of the book to as many other American readers as possible." You may not be so enthusiastic as Mrs. Wharton is, but you'll be very much amused by the book.

Mr. Gerhardi has little characteristics now and then of Rose Macaulay and Aldous Huxley and Katherine Mansfield (to whom the book is dedicated), though he isn't really like any one of them entirely. Every time I see the name of Katherine Mansfield I have a renewed sense of bereavement at her death. She did what she did so well, so cleanly, so honestly, so finely!

More Russian.

There is another Russian book—written by a real Russian this time, not a half one like William Gerhardi—which has caused much disturbance in England, and which comes to America with all the possible blue ribbons pinned on its collar. "The Gentleman from San Francisco" it is called, and it includes two other stories besides the title one. I. A. Bunin is the author, and the translators include D. H. Lawrence and S. S. Koteliansky working together, and S. S. K. plus 10 and Leonard Woolf working together. The translations are made the way that Amy Lowell and Mrs. Ayscough made theirs of "Fir Flower Tablets," an excellent method, it seems to me. The gifted literary craftsman these days is rarely a gifted linguist or a linguistic scholar. There is no reason why the translator's scholarliness should not be mated with the literary man's writing skill.

But about "The Gentleman from San Francisco." It does not stir me to the heights of praise to which it seems to have lifted others. It is a very good and very ironic tale of a man who worked hard all of his life, became a factor in San Francisco, and finally set out, when he was no longer young, to do what he had always wanted to do—take a trip abroad. The story—until the moment when he ceases to travel as a sentient body and starts traveling as a corpse—might well be used as a booklet for a Cook's tour. It describes in more or less amusing detail all of the sights of the trip.

It is a stabbing contrast that the author makes between the luxury of his trip over and the bareness of his trip back. Mr. Lawrence has put into it some of his most colorful words—and when he chooses he can splash color about like a Neo-impressionist. But it seems more than sufficient to say, as J. Middleton Murry said in the London Nation and Athenæum, that the "writer has given us one of the greatest stories of our age." England seems still to be suffering from the rash of Russian and imitation Russian literature that plagued it a few years before the war, when everything Russian, or in the Russian manner was automatically the superlative of all goodness.

Balloons.

Another volume of short stories which has caused something of a commotion is "Balloons," by Elizabeth Bibesco, certainly not so much because the stories are remarkable as because the author of them is a princess and the daughter of Margot Asquith. We're still dazzled enough by a title in America to think that kings and the lesser nobility can do no wrong. Or perhaps we feel that if they can do anything in the world but kinging or nobling they are remarkable. Anyway, Elizabeth Bibesco has a certain facility of phrase, a certain charm of expression which would probably grow into a real talent if she weren't the person she is. There is a jauntiness, a sophistication in her stories which is worth a great deal to a jaded reader. But the things she does are all too easy, too unimportant somehow, as if she were sure that she needn't try, as if she were showing that her left hand need never be gauche. If she were some one else, editors would encourage her with sincerity and some day she would do something that wasn't merely ephemeral. "Balloons" has one feature which makes me frankly cross. All but three of the stories are dedicated to some prominent person, as if it were priceless treasures, like La Belle Dame Sans Merci.

Two Closing Contests.

Two contests of interest to readers of books close on March 1, the Harper contest for the best first novel and the Doubleday-Page contest for the best drawing of Lady Caroline Dester in "The Enchanted April." Manuscripts have been arriving at Harper & Bros. at the rate of from five to twelve a day lately. The prize is an award of $2,000 outright in addition to the ordinary terms of royalty. The judges are Jesse Lynch Williams, Henry Seidel Canby, and Carl Van Doren. The judges in the case of Lady Caroline Dester's destiny are Joseph Cummings Chase, Stuart Hay, and Wallace Morgan.

The World Settlement.

"Woodrow Wilson and the World Settlement," by Ray Stannard Baker, may be taken as the official record of that trying time. To supplement the two volumes there has just come a third which contains the documents upon which Mr. Baker bases his history. Many of the documents are published for the first time in this illuminating volume. There is something almost ironic in the title of Mr. Baker's history. The world is less near a settlement than at any time in the memory of the present day man. It's like a kettle of boiling mush. Little volcanoes of political and economic mushiness will bubble up, burst, spurt steam into the air, and in a second another spot will go through the same absurd and unbelievable bubbling and spurting. Mr. Baker undoubtedly thinks, though, that Mr. Wilson was the man to lift the kettle off the fire.

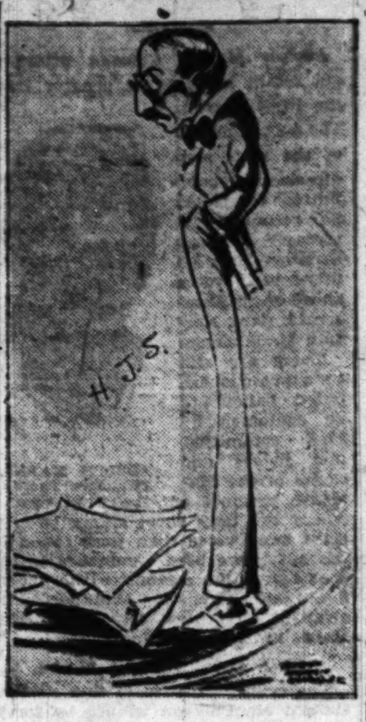
Few Figs from Thistles.

A new edition of "A few Figs from Thistles," by Edna St. Vincent Millay has been edited by Floyd Dell, although his name does not appear in the customary driver's seat, nor are there any words of wisdom from him. The new volume—which is a regular book, bound in cloth and everything—the other was just a delightful pamphlet—contains eight more poems, making a grand total of twenty-three. The new ones don't seem to be in exactly the same key of joyous cynicism that were the characteristic little hard stones in the first delightful figs. But anything that Miss Millay does is worth keeping. Many a social career has been made on a few of the most jaunty figs, and their recitation at exactly the proper moment. Many a bright young thing has won the reputation for cleverness because she used a bit from one of the figs at proper moments, as for instance, the—

FIRST FIG.

My candle burns at both ends;
It will not last the night;
But, ah, my foes, and O, my friends,
It gives a lovely light!

The more we think about it, the surer it seems that these Figs, which appeared first in 1920, contained almost the entire philosophy of the modern jazz queen, poetized, but the same impudent and delightful and shocking and amusing attitude toward life.



HENRY JUSTIN SMITH.

Henry Justin Smith's "Deadlines," is a volume of realistic stories of newspaper life. His friends say that he isn't nearly so ferocious as he looks here.

CONFESSIONS

When I asked Willa Cather what book she would rather have written than any other she answered with her characteristic generosity. For many years it has been my conviction that "My Antonia" is one of the finest things that any American woman has done. Knowing her has made clear why her books are what they are—she is one of the finest of American women! She writes:

Dear Fanny Butcher: You ask me what book I would rather have written than all others; I suppose you mean what novel. Well, since it's a wishing game, why be modest? I imagine you expect me to name some neat, obscure book, by some neat, obscure talent. To be really chic I ought to say that I'd love to be responsible for the high flying rhetoric of "Moby Dick," where one metaphor about the Musée de Cluny and the human soul runs to the length of a page and a half.

Thank you! If I can choose, I won't meekly say that the neck of the chicken is my favorite portion. I'd rather have written "War and Peace" than any other novel I know. I am not sure that I admire it more than any other, but I'd rather have written it; simply for the grand game of making it, you understand, quite regardless of the result. I would like to be strong enough to have, and to survive, so many gloriously vivid sensations about almost everything that goes to make up human society. I would like to have had that torrent of life and things pour through me; and yet to be well bred enough as an artist to unconsciously and unfailingly present it all in scale, with the proper perspective and composition and distribution of light; enough at least to hold the thing together. That much form, it seems to me, any satisfying work must have.

From this you may infer that I wouldn't choose to be swept away in Dostoevsky's torrent, though it's as big and full as heart could desire. The richer the welter of life, the more it needs a restraining intelligence. I choose "War and Peace" because it has both—and in what a degree! You remember what an experience it is to read that book for the first time; can you imagine anything more exciting than writing it? The actual writing of it, of course, was a much more concentrated and unadulterated and smooth running form of excitement than all the many, the countless excitements, long forgotten, which enabled him to write it at all. But there, of course, I'm getting into a matter which isn't for general discussion. Every trade has its compensations; but it's wiser to keep quiet about them, or somebody turns up and tries to spoil them for you.

Sincerely yours,

Willa Cather

HIRAM BALANCES HAT ON RIM OF RING FOR 1924

Urges Direct Primary for G. O. P. Candidates.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.], one of the contenders for the Republican presidential nomination in 1920, today tossed his hat to the edge of the 1924 presidential ring.

In a letter to Basil M. Manly, director of the people's legislative service, of which Senator La Follette [Rep., Wis.] is one of the main supporters, Senator Johnson urged the extension of the direct primary for the selection of delegates to the presidential nominees.

Might Shift Control.

The letter has a peculiar significance because of the fact that the adoption of direct primary laws by several more state legislatures this winter would throw control of the Republican national convention in 1924 into the hands of popularly elected delegates and would provide a real chance of success for an insurgent candidate contesting the nomination against President Harding.

Additional significance was attached to Senator Johnson's letter by reason of the fact that its publication follows so closely upon the launching of the Harding boom for renomination by Senator Watson [Rep., Ind.] in the senate several days ago. Although the Johnson letter was dated Feb. 1, several days before Watson spoke, senators have held the opinion for some time that there was little or no doubt that Mr. Harding would run again.

In his letter to Mr. Manly Senator Johnson denounced the present system of selecting the Republican presidential nominee as "little short of outrageous" and recounted some of his own experiences in the 1920 convention at Chicago. In doing so, he indirectly assailed the methods by which Mr. Harding was nominated.

Favors U. S. Amendment.

Senator Johnson said:

"In common with very many other Republicans, with differing political viewpoints and divergent choices, I am very earnestly in favor of presidential preference primaries in all states. I would prefer one under federal auspices, but the constitutional amendment I have introduced with that end in view has met with such determined opposition from southern members that I despair of passing it within any reasonable period.

"I feel, therefore, we must turn to the states, and in the respective states obtain what we so earnestly seek. The present system of nomination in the Republican party is little short of outrageous. A combination of southern states where there is no Republican party with northern states where there is no honest expression of opinion, enables a Republican national convention to register the choice of a few instead of the will of the majority.

"This system is unjust and can only be corrected by giving members of the party the right of expression of their preference, and then having that expression faithfully and honestly recorded."

Mr. Manly also made public a letter from Senator Capper [Rep., Kan.], head of the senate farm bloc, promising to use his influence to secure enactment of a direct presidential primary by the Kansas legislature this winter.

BLAMES POLICE AS HOTEL GUEST DIES AFTER RAID

Manslaughter charges by a coroner's jury were asked for yesterday against police officers and private detectives who conducted a raid on the Rex hotel, 21st and South State streets, several days ago. During the raid a resident of the hotel attempted to flee, fell from a fire escape, and suffered injuries which yesterday caused his death.

Attorney F. T. Jordan, representing the hotel, based his plea for a return of manslaughter charges on the assertion that the raid was made without a warrant.

The man who died yesterday was Nathan Caro, 344 East 56th street. "Caro had a perfect right to attempt to escape," Attorney Jordan told the jury. "This raid was made without the due process of law and the officers had no right to hold him."

After it developed that the raid was made by officers under the command of W. C. Dannenburg, private detective, the inquest was continued until Feb. 14.

HELD FOR THEFT OF DIAMONDS.

William James, colored, 2132 West Erie street, was arrested yesterday charged with having stolen two diamond rings, valued at $400 from Mrs. George Jackson, also colored, 1956 West Austin avenue.

CAPITAL IS AGOG OVER REPORTED CABINET MOVES

White House Denies Rumored Changes.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Washington political circles were agog with rumors and gossip of cabinet upheavals today.

The latest product of the "inside information" factory was a report that Secretary of the Navy Denby would resign to accept appointment as ambassador to Japan and that Senator Poindexter [Rep., Wash.], defeated for reëlection in November, would succeed him.

This report drew denials from both the White House and the state department, and Senator Poindexter said he knew nothing about it.

Poindexter Is Curious.

"It's all news to me," said Senator Poindexter. "If you get any confirmation let me know."

The Indiana congressional delegation held an indignation meeting over the rebellious goings-on of one of its members, who issued a statement yesterday opposing the proposed appointment of Senator New [Rep., Ind.], defeated for reëlection last November, as postmaster general in place of Dr. Work, who is to be moved up to succeed Secretary of the Interior Fall.

Only One Dissenting Voice.

"With one exception, the house members of the Indiana delegation, all Republicans, made public a statement voicing their keen appreciation of the reports that Senator New of Indiana is being seriously considered as a member of the cabinet. The Indiana members said these favorable reports were very gratifying and gave bright hopes of additional honors to the Hoosier state."

PROMISE FIFTY BUSSES ON WEST SIDE BY AUG. 1

Sixty busses in operation on the south side by July 1, and fifty buses on the west side by Aug. 1, were promised yesterday by J. A. Ritchie, president of the Chicago Motor Bus company, in the hearing before Assistant Commissioner James R. Clark of the Illinois Commerce commission on the bus company's petition for a certificate granting the west side service.

The south side petition has been granted. Operation on the west side is contingent on the approval of the commission.

MARKS TO KEEP SEAT IN SENATE BY MARGIN OF 57

ADOLPH MARKS.

The subcommittee of the state senate elections committee completed its recount yesterday, showing Senator Marks fifty-seven votes ahead of his Democratic rival, Norman MacPherson.

There are still twenty-one disputed ballots to be examined by the committee, and judges and clerks of the Sixteenth precinct of the First ward, where the tally sheet shows twenty-eight more votes than were found in the box, have been summoned to appear before the committee this morning. But even if MacPherson is awarded all these ballots Senator Marks remains the winner.

First Count Against Marks.

The county canvass in this election showed MacPherson winner by forty-six votes. The state canvassing board overthrew these returns and declared Marks winner on evidence of gross fraud in the Seventh precinct of the First ward. This gave the Republicans supporting Gov. Small one more needed vote in the senate and the action was attacked bitterly by the Democrats.

The anti-Small Republicans in the senate refused to press the case against Marks after they heard the evidence, which was to the effect that ballots were marked for the voters in the Seventh precinct and money was paid the voters as they stood in the polling place.

Clean Bill for Second Ward.

The alleged Republican frauds in the Second ward precincts did not materialize. Judges and clerks of the Seventh precinct of the First ward have been summoned to appear before the commitee and the evidence will be heard openly, with MacPherson having full opportunity to refute it. This move, however, is planned to show that the canvassing board acted on good grounds. It will not change the result.

TEXAS RANGERS TO GUARD NEGRO WHO SLEW EIGHT

Governor Acts as Mob Is Forming.

Waco, Tex., Feb. 9.—A detachment of state rangers is on its way here, according to word from the statehouse at Austin, to defend the county jail in the event an attempt is made to lynch Roy Mitchell, colored, who is said to have confessed to eight murders. Rumors of the forming of a mob reached the authorities and extra police were thrown around the jail.

A series of crimes which have baffled officers here for the last year were cleared today by the alleged confession of Mitchell to having committed eight murders, three assaults to murder, and a number of attacks on women during the period of Feb. 12, 1922, to Jan. 19, 1923, according to Sheriff Leslie Stegall and County Attorney J. S. Farmer.

Women Assaulted, Escorts Slain.

Three women were assaulted when their escorts were killed, two of the women having been subjected to two assaults, according to the alleged confession. A colored woman also was assaulted by Mitchell, the confession says, according to the officers. The confession was made to the sheriff and county prosecutor last night, put in writing, and signed by Mitchell.

The crimes said to have been confessed by Mitchell follow:

Murder of W. H. Barker and his wife and Homer Turk at Concord, nine miles east of Waco, Feb. 12, 1922; W. P. Driskell, May 7, 1922; Harrel Bolton, May 25, 1922; Grady Skipworth, Nov. 10, 1922; Holt and Mrs. Ethel Denecamp, Jan. 19, 1923.

One Lynched for Mitchell's Crime.

Two colored men were tried and convicted for the slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Barker and the Turk boy, the killing of whom Mitchell now has confessed. One of these men, Cooper Johnson, was given the death penalty, and the other, Bennie Young, life imprisonment. Their cases are now on appeal.

In addition, one colored man has been lynched for a crime to which Mitchell is said to have confessed. When Harrel Bolton was killed his girl companion was assaulted. A colored man was later identified by the young woman and was shot by the girl's father. A mob then burned his body.

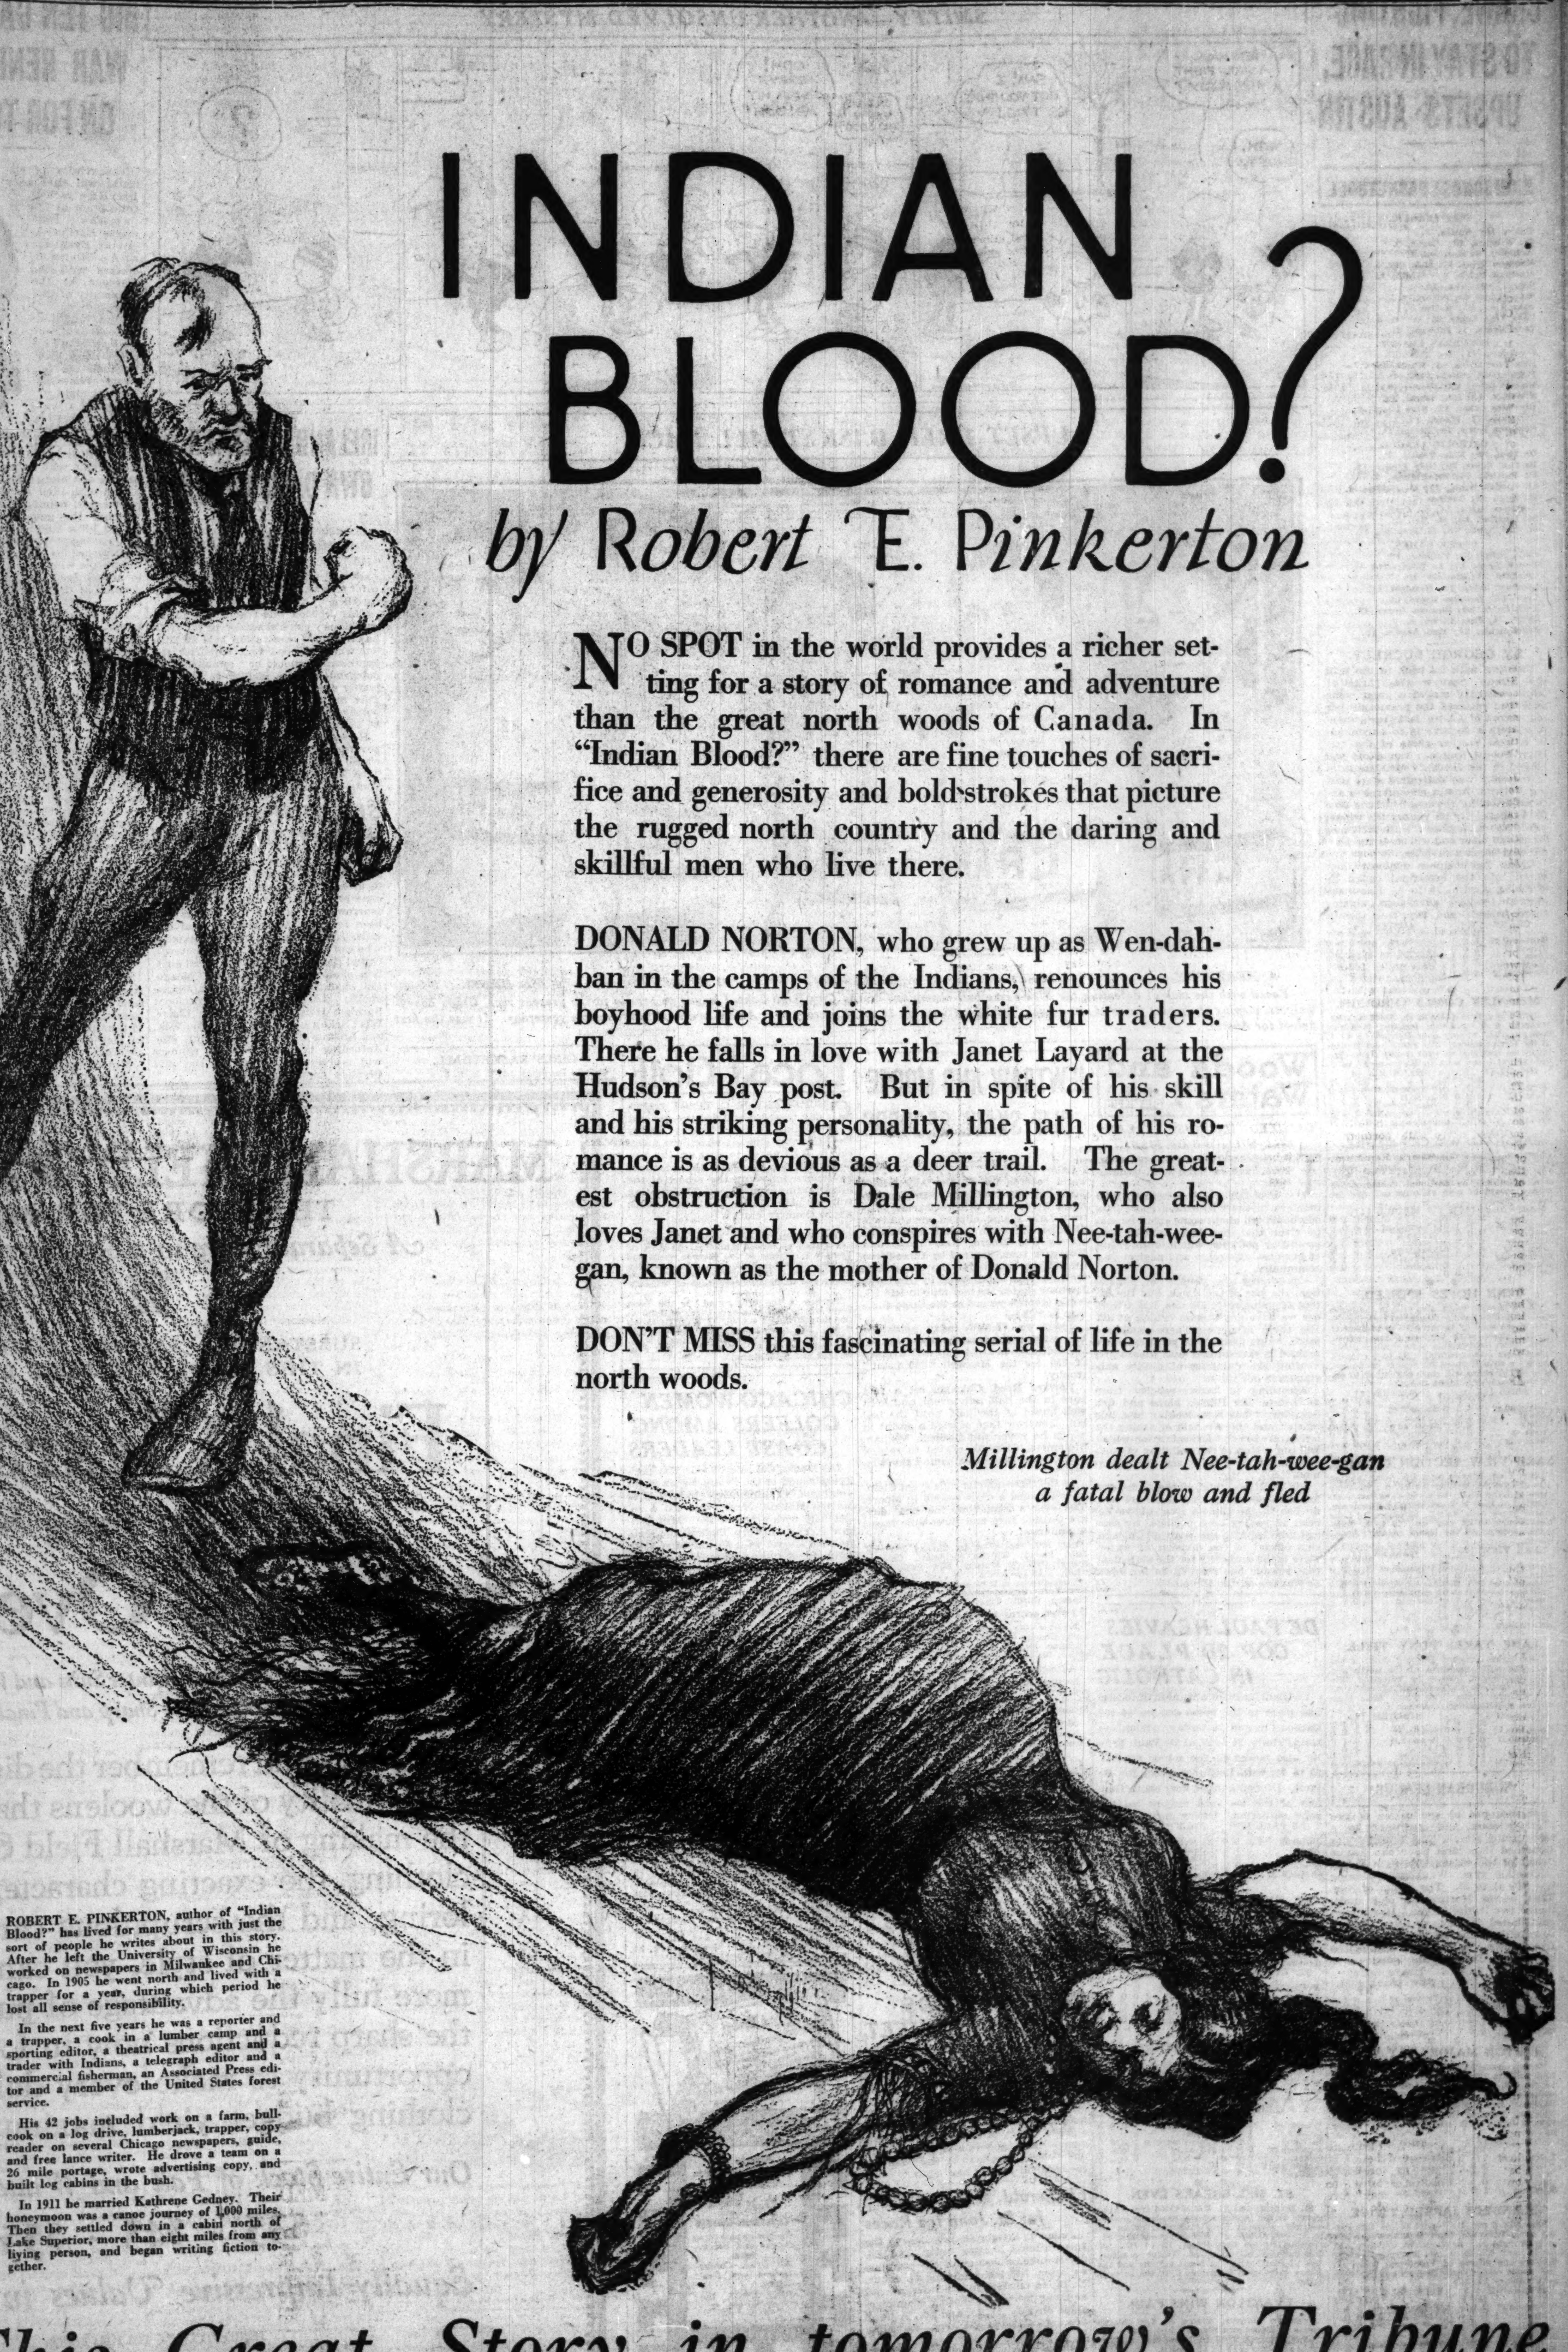
INDIAN BLOOD?

by Robert E. Pinkerton

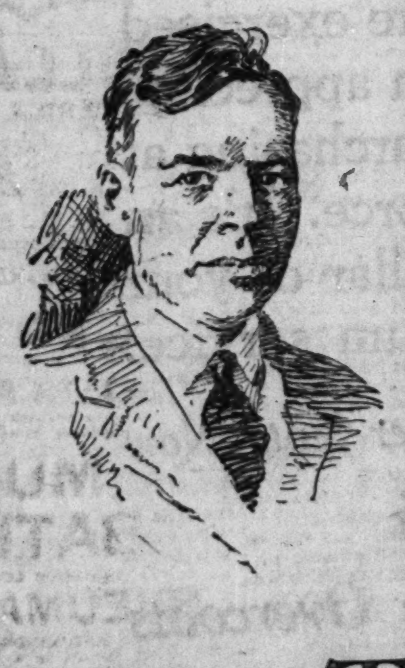
NO SPOT in the world provides a richer setting for a story of romance and adventure than the great north woods of Canada. In "Indian Blood?" there are fine touches of sacrifice and generosity and bold strokes that picture the rugged north country and the daring and skillful men who live there.

DONALD NORTON, who grew up as Wen-dah-ban in the camps of the Indians, renounces his boyhood life and joins the white fur traders. There he falls in love with Janet Layard at the Hudson's Bay post. But in spite of his skill and his striking personality, the path of his romance is as devious as a deer trail. The greatest obstruction is Dale Millington, who also loves Janet and who conspires with Nee-tah-wee-gan, known as the mother of Donald Norton.

DON'T MISS this fascinating serial of life in the north woods.



Millington dealt Nee-tah-wee-gan a fatal blow and fled



ROBERT E. PINKERTON, author of "Indian Blood?" has lived for many years with just the sort of people he writes about in this story. After he left the University of Wisconsin he worked on newspapers in Milwaukee and Chicago. In 1905 he went north and lived with a trapper for a year, during which period he lost all sense of responsibility.

In the next five years he was a reporter and a trapper, a cook in a lumber camp and a sporting editor, a theatrical press agent and a trader with Indians, a telegraph editor and a commercial fisherman, an Associated Press editor and a member of the United States forest service.

His 42 jobs included work on a farm, bull-cook on a log drive, lumberjack, trapper, copy reader on several Chicago newspapers, guide, and free lance writer. He drove a team on a 26 mile portage, wrote advertising copy, and built log cabins in the bush.

In 1911 he married Kathrene Gedney. Their honeymoon was a canoe journey of 1,000 miles. Then they settled down in a cabin north of Lake Superior, more than eight miles from any living person, and began writing fiction together.

BY GEORGE BUCKLEY.

Fighting with its back to the wall, the Crane heavyweight basketball team yesterday staged a great comeback and smeared the previously perfect record of Austin, last year's champion, with a decisive 18 to 8 trimming in a west section game of the City High School league. The game was played at the Jewish People institute.

Kerensky was individual star, holding Votjech, Austin ace, scoreless and twice dribbling the length of the floor for baskets. By its victory the winner went into a deadlock with McKinley for second place and will enter the playoff next week a favorite.

Crane lightweights clinched their entry into the semi-final round by drubbing Austin, 18 to 9. Kaminsky showed to best advantage, sinking three baskets and two free throws.

Handicapped by graduation of two of their stars, and confronted by a fast scoring attack, New Trier heavies sustained their first Suburban league defeat of the season last night at the Winnetka gym, Waukegan winning the tiff, 41 to 32. The defeat of New Trier leaves Morton the only undefeated five in the league. Harrington contributed largely to New Trier's downfall, sinking six baskets and nine free throws. ISLANDERS JARRED TWICE.

Blue Island met its second defeat this season when Riverside High beat the Islanders in both light and heavyweight divisions, 18 to 12 and 12 to 9, at Riverside, chiefly through the efforts of Viner and Guest on the major squad and Denker on the midgets. Heavy lineup:

A. KERENSKY, J. COOPER. A. ROMANOFF. G. GILBERT. E. DREW.

Faced with the task of defeating the 1922 basketball champions of the City High School league to remain in the present race, Crane heavyweights, playing their best game of the season, responded with an 18 to 8 victory over Austin in a west section game yesterday. It was the first defeat for Austin.

POLLUTED ILLINOIS STREAMS KILL MILLIONS OF FISH.

Probably every fisherman who indulges in the "blameless sport" today could tell about some small stream or river that has been tainted and spoiled by pollution which is the result of business expansion and neglect in a community.

Considering the density of population, the size of the cities, and the extent of industry in Illinois, it's a wonder we have any stream fishing at all. But there is some. There would be more if this problem of pollution were tackled in earnest and laws passed preventing the dumping of deadly substances in our rivers.

According to latest reports from downstate, the Illinois game and fish department has been looking into this matter, and there is talk of asking the legislature to consider legislation which will put a stop to the polluting of such streams as the Illinois and the Sangamon.

Bill Stratton, chief of the game and fish division, states that there are now no fish in the Illinois river above Peoria, all having been poisoned by sewage dumped into the river at Chicago. One official in the division of waterways is the authority for the statement that sewage has reached as far down as Havana on the Illinois.

JEWTRAW AND MOORE CLIP SKATE RECORDS

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Two world records fell in the Adirondack Gold cup ice skating championship races here today when Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid, clipped one and two-fifths seconds from the half mile record set by Joe Moore, New York, and Moore, in turn, lowered by three-fifths second the record for the three-quarter mile race established by Jewtraw. Jewtraw skated the half mile in 1:16 1-5, while Moore's record in the three-quarters in 2:02 1-5

Jewtraw's victory today gains for him a 390 point total in the quest for the Adirondack Gold cup and a score of 250 for the Maxwell "300 point" trophy.

Edward Reed, Chicago, set a fast pace in the half mile event and kept well ahead of the field until the bell lap. Jewtraw then started a sprint in which he never was headed. William Steinmetz, Chicago, skated to second place, some three feet behind the winner.

In the three-quarter mile event Steinmetz finished a close second to Moore. The events tomorrow, the final day, are the 440 yard and three mile races. Summaries:

Three-quarter mile race—Won by Joe Moore, New York; Steinmetz, second; Edward Reed, Chicago, third. Time, 2:02 1-5.

Jewtraw, 60; Moore, Steinmetz, Reed, 40 each; Charles Gorman, St. John, N. B., Paul Forsman, New York, 20 each; Murphy, Valentine, Bialis, Lake Placid, 10 each.

LAKE FOREST, I. A. C. IN TITLE HOCKEY MATCH

Lake Forest will be the scene of two hockey games on successive days, the home team of the North Shore league playing Kenosha today and a picked team of the league playing the I. A. C. sextet tomorrow afternoon.

With the field practically barren of city representatives, the latter clash will determine the championship of Chicago. The two aggregations met a year ago and a stubbornly fought game resulted.

IRELAND TO ENTER OWN DAVIS CUP TEAM

LONDON, Feb. 9.—[By the Associated Press.]—Ireland, both north and south, has decided to break away from England in lawn tennis affairs and will enter its own team in future Davis cup matches.

This decision was reached at an extraordinary general session of the Irish Lawn Tennis association held at Dublin, which decided that hereafter the organization should be "established on independent lines similar to the governing associations of the dominions." This resolution was approved by the northern Ireland tennis clubs meeting at Belfast.

Heretofore Ireland's tennis has been governed by the British association, whose Davis cup team has represented "the British isles," and it must now find a new name.

SKI JUMPERS OFF FOR MINNEAPOLIS

Local ski jumpers and a number of rooters left last night for Minneapolis to attend the National Ski association championships to be held today and tomorrow. Among the better known experts who will compete are: Ragnar Omtvedt, Grand Beach, Mich., 1922 national amateur champion; Einer Jensen, Chicago, 1921 champion; Anders Haugen, Minneapolis; Lars Haugen, Steamboat Springs; Henry Fleming, Eau Claire, Wis.; Erling Landvick, La Crosse, Wis., and Andrew Olson, Stevens Point, Wis. According to present plans, winners will represent American in the 1924 Olympic games in France.

BIG TEN CAGE WAR RENEWAL ON FOR TONIGHT

JAMES LAUDE.

The rivalry of six Big Ten cage teams will flare anew tonight when Purdue tackles Ohio State at Columbus, Iowa meets Northwestern at Evanston and Minnesota clashes with the Maroons at the University of Chicago.

Iowa, undisputed leader of the western conference race since Purdue's victory over Wisconsin Tuesday night, did not make a creditable showing against the Maroons in the first half of their battle last week. In the second half, with Laude of Iowa in and Barnes of Chicago out, the Hawkeyes played with their usual speed and effectiveness, coming from behind and winning the game. If the leaders should hit a slight slump, Northwestern, playing at top speed, has a chance.

Refreshed by two gameless weeks, the Purple will make a second attempt to unseat Iowa from its commanding position at the head of the conference race.

The invaders will depend upon Laude, left forward, and Funk, right guard, to spread grief among Northwestern followers. Funk is an ace at free throwing and Laude runs the floor and rings the basket in masterly fashion.

Purple Shooting Improves.

Northwestern's lineup will be unchanged. Coach Maurice Kent, an Iowa alumnus, has his men—McKenzie, Paterson, Holmes, Stegman, and Franzen—worked into a smooth running machine. Purple basket shooting, which lost a game to Ohio State recently, has been improving.

Seats for 4,000 spectators have been erected in Patten gym and a record breaking crowd is expected to witness the contest.

Whether Purdue has hit a faster stride than hitherto evidenced will be determined tonight at Ohio. The Buckeyes crave vengeance for their poor success in preceding battles and will do what they can to flop Purdue in the latter's efforts to forge toward the head of the column.

Purdue Strong at Guarding.

The Boilermakers have developed a strong guarding team, and will force Ohio to try only long shots for the basket, and with Holwerda and Gullion to bear the brunt of an attack, should be able to try for ringers with short shooting.

Minnesota may have a chance to score its first conference win tonight. The Maroons are going fairly good, however.

The fourth scheduled match for tonight between Michigan and Wisconson, which promised to be the most interesting of the day, has been postponed until next Wednesday night.

The Old Copyreader

BOTH TOO ROUGH.

A twosome (scribes of wide acclaim)
Have teed off in a squabble
Anent the conduct of the game:
One says it's wrong to hobble
The common, ordinary chaps
With waterhole and bunker
And divers other handicaps
That make punk shooting punker.

The other boosts the toughest course:
The rookie and the wizard
Alike should feel identic force
Upon his nerve and gizzard;
He thinks the links a jinx should be:
The roughest and the "pit-est";
For golf, he 'lows, like life, is the Survival of the fittest.

The former has the better plea:
The millions cannot hope for
The thrill of woe-scorned victory
The hundreds have the scope for;
Admittedly the world is hard,
But it would gain consistence
If only fewer troubles marred
The fairway of existence.

Both life and golf for stars are soft
But for the dubs con-trar-y;
There are too many hills to loft,
Too many streams to carry;
So let us draw for each a map
Outlined with less misgiving,
And take the hazard and the trap

ROCKY WALLOPS CHARLIE WHITE; WINS ON POINTS

TRIBUNE DECISIONS

At New York—Rocky Kansas beat Charlie White [15]; Pete Latzo beat Johnny Nichols [12]; Tommy McAleer knocked out Irish Fagan [3]; Jack Lawlor beat Phil Logan [6].

On U. S. S. Commodore—Frankie Garcia beat Sammy Mandell [10]. Rocky Joyce and Harry Gaba draw [6]. Joe Stiners and Kid Taylor draw [6]. Tom Dorsey knocked out Kid Perkins [2].

At Duluth, Minn.—Dave Shade beat Morris Schlaifer [10].

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Charlie White's lightweight championship aspirations suffered a severe setback tonight before a crowd of 13,000 people when the Chicago lightweight went down in defeat before Rocky Kansas, sturdy little Buffalo Italian, in a spectacular fifteen round battle. Kansas won the decision of the judges and and Referee Patsy Haley by a margin so wide that not a dissenting voice was heard in the huge crowd which jammed the arena where the verdict was announced.

CHARLIE WHITE.

The result furnished a startling upset for the followers of pugilistic form. White entered the ring a 1 to 2½ favorite over his Italian rival and the money in support of the Chicagoan went begging before the battle.

Rocky Showers Wallops.

Never, save for infrequent occasions when a sporadic left hook or right cross from White brought him up short, did Kansas cease in his aggressiveness. The Italian showered on White a volley of battering rights and lefts to the face and jaw at long range, and at close quarters the Italian subjected White to a severe body battering.

For his part White placed his hope of victory in his ability to land one crushing punch. The Chicagoan, it seemed, placed too much reliance on the destructiveness of his right hand cross and wicked left hook. The confidence White holds in his punching power brought about the Chicagoan's defeat for as he waited for the opening that never came, White let slip by many opportunities which he might have used to advantage had he cared to discard his timidity.

Charlie Always Beaten.

Through the fifteen rounds, however, Kansas handled his rival like a toy. The Italian administered one of the most severe beatings it has ever been the misfortune of White to experience in his seventeen years' of ring service. Forcing the action from start to finish, Kansas carried off eleven of the fifteen rounds. White earned the second, twelfth, and thirteenth. The other session, the ninth, was even.

The unrelenting offensive of Kansas and White's lack of initiative, produced a result surprising to the major part of a crowd, which had paid $45,278 in net receipts to witness the battle. Kansas swarmed all over the Chicagoan from the time the opening gong sent the men on their way.

In the latter rounds Rocky bounced White against the ropes and in the fifteenth, when White tried desperately for a knockout, Rocky was still so vigorous that he had his man on the verge of a knockdown.

Costly Defeat for White.

It was a costly defeat for White. He entered the ring three-quarters of a pound over the stipulated weight of 135 pounds, while Kansas weighed 133. When White was unable to reduce to the required poundage within one hour's extra time, Dan Rogers, Kansas' manager, promptly put in a claim for White forefeit of $2,500. The result about knocks out White's chances of securing another title struggle with Champion Bennie Leonard. Prior to tonight's scrap, White's chances for this desired ring engagement were remote.

Far from his usual aggressive form, White appeared weak from the beginning, possibly due to the time he spent in Turkish baths this afternoon trying to reduce his 12 ounces overweight to save his $2,500 forfeit.

Kansas entered the ring with hardly a chance for victory in the minds of the majority of those who witnessed the scrap. He won friends as the bout progressed and he forced the action tirelessly. In the closing rounds Kansas was the favorite of the large gathering.

HESTER ABBOTT TO PILOT PURPLE WOMEN'S TEAM

FRANKIE GARCIA.

Frankie Garcia of Memphis, a 5 to 1 shot, upset the dope bucket last night by winning the popular boxing decision over Sammy Mandell of Rockford on the U. S. S. Commodore. For four of the five opening rounds Garcia was on the catching end of the fight. In the sixth he caught Mandell flush on the jaw with a right cross and sent him to the canvas for the count of eight. From this point until the end of the tenth round Garcia was the aggressor and won by a mile.

ANDERSON FACES BIG RING CARD NEXT WEEK

Eddie Anderson, hard hitting Moline bantamweight, who will meet Harold Smith of the stockyards in the main bout of the boxing show at a suburban club on Monday night, will finish strenuous training at the Arcade today. Smith will wind up preparation at Ferretti's.

Anderson is one of the most natural fighters in this locality. He likes to fight and unlike other boxers does not care to rest between bouts. As evidence of this fact, Eddie will make three fights in eight days. Following the Smith bout on Monday night, he goes to Minneapolis, where he is slated to mix matters for ten rounds with Sammy Mandell of Rockford on Thursday night. On the following Monday he will meet Jack Eile, rugged west side 118 pounder, in the main event of the Racine A. C. show.

* *

Eddie Long, manager of Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., who will meet Pal Moore at Indianapolis on Tuesday night, was around the Arcade gymnasium yesterday after being confined to his home with a stiff neck. Manager Long announced that Taylor has been training in Terre Haute and in in tip top shape. Moore worked at the Arcade and will complete the harder part of training by boxing six rounds today.

* *

Eddie Kane, manager of Tom Gibbons, St. Paul heavyweight, came into the city after an extended absence. Kane expects to get Tom on with some of the heavyweight contenders in New York. He asserted he has signed with McAuliffe of Detroit, one of the promising big fellows.

* *

George Ferguson, manager of Ever Hammer, closed a match with Sid Barbarian of Detroit on Feb. 26. The match will be staged by the American Legion. Hammer and Barbarian were originally slated to meet in Detroit on Monday night, but the local fighter called off the contest because of a slight attack of the flu.

* *

According to Dick Curley, manager of Sailor Freedman, local lightweight, Bennie Leonard, lightweight champion, has been offered $50,000 to meet Freedman in a fifteen round decision contest in Indiana this summer. The offer was sent by Johnny Torrio, local sportsman.

Matchmakers for suburban clubs are trying to match Ever Hammer and Sailor Freedman. The latter leaves for the east tomorrow to make three fights and may meet Hammer on his return late in the month.

GARCIA BEATS SAMMY; WINS SCRAP ON BOAT

TRY TO STOP BOUTS

THE Chicago Law and Order league last night directed a broadside at the boxing matches conducted by the Naval post of the American Legion aboard the U. S. S. Commodore, characterizing the matches as "prize fights." !

Efforts were made to get in telegraphic communication with Washington to stop the bouts and, failing to get an answer, the league sought in vain to have local authorities interfere.

An investigator was then dispatched to the scene and in his report of the Frankie Garcia-Sammy Mandell bout, he observed, "if this bout was a harmless boxing match, God help the poor prize fighter."

He also objected to the presence of women and youths at the ringside and declared that while the bouts were supposed to be for the entertainment of soldiers and sailors, the ship was crowded with civilians, few service men being present.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Scoring a clean knockdown in the sixth round and forcing the milling for the remainder of the bout, Frankie Garcia of Memphis won the popular decision over Sammy Mandell of Rockford in the main event of the boxing show conducted by the Naval post of the American Legion on the Commodore last night.

The knockdown, which resulted from a short right cross to the jaw, came at a time when Mandell was winning off by himself. In fact, he got careless and started to wade into his opponent without the proper defense. The boxers had just been broken from a clinch and Mandell started to rush his opponent. Frankie saw him coming and let go with all he had in his right hand.

Up at Count of Eight.

The blow landed on its intended mark. Mandell crumpled and fell to the mat. He sprawled on his back and then turned over on his left side as the packed house stood up in amazement. Referee Phil Collins tolled off the seconds and Mandell gradually got himself together. At the count of five he arose to a sitting position and regained his feet at the count of eight.

Garcia went after him in relentless fashion. Mandell, however, with a fighter's instinct, hung on and allowed the referee to break them. This sort of work was repeated during the remainder of the round. Mandell's seconds, including Manager Eddie Kane, tried their utmost to bring their fighter around during the minute rest, but all the fight had left Mandell.

Garcia Takes the Lead.

In the following rounds Garcia forced him to the ropes and tried to feint Sammy into openings to land another right. The Memphis boy tried uppercuts, hooks, and body punches, but Mandell kept covered and allowed Garcia to take the aggressive and win the remaining rounds. In fact, it looked as if Mandell tried to stay the limit, although he made a few attempts to fight back in the tenth round.

The opening round was about even, but Mandell by superior boxing and leading won the advantage in the second, third, fourth, and fifth rounds. In the fifth round Mandell drew blood from Garcia's nose with left jabs and crossed his right repeatedly to the Memphis boy's jaw. At this stage of the mill it looked as if Mandell would win by the K. O. route until the one punch landed in the sixth.

One Punch Did It.

The bout afforded the large crowd an idea of what one punch means in a fight. Scarcely a fan on the boat would have given a nickel for Frankie's chances until the punch was delivered. During those fatal eight seconds the entire complexion of the bout shifted and made a winner out of what appeared to be a hopelessly beaten loser. When they met at Memphis last summer Garcia knocked Mandell down for the three count with the same punch.

In the six round semi-windup Rocky Joyce and Harry Gaba went six rounds to a draw. Gaba was the better boxer and Joyce the harder hitter. If a hair line decision were drawn the verdict would go to Joyce. They met at 135 pounds.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: Not long ago a "Whenner" recalled the old saying "Meet me at the fountain" as referring to Siegel & Cooper's store. When I Was a Kid I thought it meant the fountain in the old lake front Exposition building.

What enchantment there was in the sound of many waters" mingled with the music of the band as one entered the exposition on a happy Saturday afternoon.

Speaking of S. and C., do you remember at Weber and Fields' show Fields would ask Weber, "Who are your parents?" and Weber would reply meekly, "Siegel and Cooper"?

Ex-West Sider.

big billboards, with a puzzling inscription that made us all do some guessing—"Trade Mark S. T. 1860 X"

It meant "Started trade in 1860 with $10 capital" and advertised a brand of bitters which were used by some people who patronized drug stores instead of the regulation thirst dispensaries of ancient memories (1865-'70). L. G.

JACK-JESS GO SCENE SHIFTS TO TIA JUANA

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—According to a wire received here tonight from Tom Andrews, Milwaukee promoter, at Los Angeles, Cal., Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey have been signed for a fight to be staged at Tia Juana, Mexico, by James Coffroth. Evidently the match was signed before Dempsey departed for New York, although no one was notified because there was then probability of the match being held in New York or New Jersey.

JAMES C. COFFROTH.

Promoter Andrews stated that he had seen the bona fide agreement between Coffroth and Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager. No date has been set for the contest, according to Andrews' impression, except that Kearns had signed the agreemnt with the understanding the contest would take place before July 4.

Denies Title Bout in Mexico.

New York, Feb. 9.—Ray Archer, business manager of Willard, tonight denied reports from Milwaukee, Wis., that Willard has been matched to meet Jack Dempsey, the titleholder, in a bout at Tia Juana, Mexico, under direction of James Coffroth.

HEARKEN TO BECKETT

SOUTHAMPTON, Feb. 9.—[By the Associated Press.]—Joe Beckett, English heavyweight champion, has signed articles to meet Jack Dempsey in New York next July or August, he announced today. He understands that Dempsey's signature also has been secured.

"I am to get a good sum for my end of the purse," Beckett added, "but it won't be so large as Dempsey's; I can't expect it to be, because he is the champion of the world.

"The only condition made, as far as I am concerned, is that I must beat Dick Smith on Feb. 19, and if I fight Carpentier I must beat him, too, but it doesn't matter whether I meet Carpentier or not."

"Bronx Cheer" for Joe.

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Reports from London that Joe Beckett had made the announcement that he had signed articles to meet Jack Dempsey in New York next July or August for the world's title evoked little more than guffaws in local fight circles today.

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, declared it was all news to him. He said if the New York boxing solons would not permit a Dempsey-Wills, Dempsey-Gibbons, or Dempsey-Willard battle there certainly would be no prospect of putting on a match between the Manassa mauler and the British canvas kisser.

The articles that London dispatches said had been signed by Beckett for a match with Dempsey were those forwarded to him by Tom O'Rourke, matchmaker of the Republic A. C., which plans to conduct bouts at the Polo grounds. It does not appear here, however, that Beckett will meet Dempsey in a bout for the world's heavyweight championship this year, as O'Rourke hasn't a contract with Dempsey.

MAROON TRACK AND MAT TEAMS ABROAD TODAY

The Maroons are in pretty good shape, and while neither Russell, pole vaulter and high jumper, nor Rudnick, quarter miler, will compete in the dual track and field meet, two conference victories and the belief that Krogh, Brickman, Stitt and Stackhouse are sure point getters, make the Chicagoans rather sure of themselves. Coach Stagg will use Krogh, Jones, Stitt and MacFarlane in the relay, Spruth and Bisno in the mile, with Frida and Gowdy in the weights. Frida will take care of the high jump and will enter with Mallory in the vaults.

GRIGIEL HANDBALL WINNER.

Walter Grigiel of Hose Company 32 defeated former Champion Lieut. Michael Furlong, Hook and Ladder Company 9, yesterday, in two out of three closely contested handball games at the winner's court. Furlong won the first game, 21 to 18, but lost the other two, 19 to 21 and 20 to 21.

CHALLENGE TO BIKERS.

Augie Benson, one of the best local amateur bicycle riders, last night issued a sweeping challenge to all amateurs for an unpaced race over any distance. Benson will appear at the Coliseum tonight to accept any challenges.

PALUSO NEW ENGLAND CHAMP.

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Lew Paluso of Salt Lake City won the junior featherweight championship title of New England by defeating Red Chapman of Boston last night, and is to be given an engagement in the Garden soon.

EUSTACE TWICE PINS DUGUIT AND EARNS A TRY AT S. ZBYSZKO

ALAN EUSTACE, the giant from Kansas, demonstrated beyond a doubt that he is master of Wallace Duguit, the Canadian mounted policeman, by registering two straight falls at the Star and Garter last night. He won the first drop in 44:05 with a head scissors and bar arm and the second in 18:20 with a body scissors and double bar hold.

Up to the first fall it looked as if the gentleman from the north would win through superior knowledge of the game, putting on various holds, the toe grip appearing to be his favorite. Now and then, Alan would clamp on a head lock that seemed to be the extent of his repertoire. Just before the first fall, Wallace got a little rough for the Kansan, who peevishly clamped on a double wristlock from a standing position and on the roll had Duguit in trouble. The fall was called immediately after. The second fall was only a matter of time and patience on the part of Eustace.

FACULTY HELPS IOWA FLOP PURPLE MATMEN

BY WALLACE ABBEY.

Iowa's wrestlers and the Northwestern faculty combined last night to play havoc with the Purple mat team in the conference dual meet at Northwestern. The invading Hawks devastated the north shore outfit, 23 to 10, after the faculty, a few hours previous to the meet, declared three of Coach Henry L. Szymanski's stars scholastically ineligible as a result of semester examinations.

Arthur Jenness, Howard Berolzheimer, and Larry Horton all were forbidden to take the mat. Jenness after the meet was reinstated and his ineligibility declared a mistake by Registrar Fred Kerr. Horton's loss was the severest blow to the Purple.

Iowa took five of the seven bouts, two by the forfeit route, as Northwestern had no substitutes handy for Jenness and Berolzheimer. Guy Goodman, replacing Horton, fell before D. W. James of Iowa in 4:13, James clamping a body scissors on the Purple contender. Capt. Bryan Hines of the Purple pinned A. W. Grisberg of Iowa in the 125 pound class and Dave Rost added the final points for Northwestern by throwing C. R. Lane in 3:58. Capt. Heldt of the Hawks won an easy fall over Lew Howard of the heavyweight division by an arm lock. Summaries:

SIX-DAY RIDERS IN EXHIBITION RACES TONIGHT

Riders of national and international reputations who will start in the six day bicycle race which begins officially tomorrow night at 9 o'clock, will unlimber tonight when a series of match races will be held over the ten lap track at the Coliseum.

[Und. & Und. Photo.]

In addition to the pros, some of whom are well known to local followers of the bicycle racing game, there will be a number of amateur contests which have attracted the best of the local talent. In all there will be thirty events, ranging from one to fifteen miles.

Team Match Features.

One of the big features will be a team match race, best two in three heats at one mile each, between Alfred Grenda and Maurice Brocco and Reggie McNamara and Willie Lorenz. This will be Brocco's first appearance in Chicago and local Italians are preparing to give him an ovation. Another feature will be the alternance match race between Alfred Goullet, Bobby Walthour Jr., Eddie Madden and Oscar Egg. It will be run in four heats at one mile each.

All of the professionals will start in a ten mile open in which there will be prizes for the winner of every lap. There will also be a half-mile handicap for the pros. The amateurs will have two big events, a half-mile handicap and a two-mile open. Each will have to be run in several heats because the entry runs close to 100.

Track and Camp Ready.

The ten lap track, highly banked at the turns, was completed yesterday and tested late in the afternoon. The training camp with a temporary hospital, which includes X-ray machine, has been established in the basement of the Coliseum. The thirty riders who composed the fifteen teams will move in tomorrow afternoon to remain for a week.

Three physicians, half a dozen cooks, more than a dozen trainers and others make up the training camp retinue necessary to take proper care of the riders every minute of the day and night. Some of the riders are already laying claims to the big prizes and as a result bad feeling is beginning to assert itself.

Tonight's program will begin at 8 o'clock and Manager Paddy Harmon has placed tickets on sale at 153 North Clark street.

UMP MORIARTY IN CITY AFTER TRIP TO ORIENT

George Moriarty, American league umpire who officiated in the games played by the major league team which toured the orient, and who acted as official representative of Commissioner Landis, has returned to Chicago. Moriarty reported to the commissioner that the players gave a good account of themselves. In Manila, Maj. Gen. Wood entertained the players and attended the games.

EDDIE COLLINS TO COACH PENN NINE

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Eddie Collins, at present a White Sox but who has hopes of transferring his interests to the New York Yankees, is preparing for his season's work. The great second sacker has consented to aid in the coaching of the University of Pennsylvania diamond squad and while so doing Eddie will be getting himself into condition. It is likely that Collins will be instrumental in getting Rommel, the star Athletic hurler, to assist in coaching the Penn moundmen.

Old Timers to Attend Norton Funeral Today

The funeral of Peter J. Norton, organizer and captain of the old Dreadnaught baseball team of the '70s, will take place from his late residence, 427 Wisconsin avenue, this morning. President Lawlor of the Old Timers' Baseball association requests members to be at the Norton residence at 9 o'clock. The funeral services will be at St. Edmond's church at 10 o'clock.

SHEELY TURNS BACK CONTRACT; DEMANDS THREE YEAR CLAUSE

EARL SHEELY, the able citizen who guards the initial sack for Bill Gleason's White Sox, has kicked over the traces and joined the holdout band. Word from the Pacific coast is to the effect that the tall first sacker received his contract for 1923 and was satisfied with the salary named, but when he noted it called for only one year of toil he slapped it back into the mail box along with a demand that the document be altered so that it would call for three years at the same annual salary.

Sheely spent part of the winter at Walla Walla, Wash., and then migrated to California, where he will remain until he gets his call to the spring training camp.

CHICAGO'S NATATORS SUBMERGE MILWAUKEE

BY TED ISERMAN.

University of Chicago tankers last night got vengeance against Milwaukee A. C., by dousing the Cream City squad, 37 to 31, in a return swimming meet at the Midway pool. Milwaukee took the water basketball contest from the Maroons, largely on account of the absence of Janovsky. "Red" Crawford, formerly of the Maroon natators, was an outstanding performer for Milwaukee. Thomsen and Protheroe put up a thrilling battle for first place in the 220 yard free style swim, the visitor copping in 2:31 2-5 after the Maroon had led for nine of the eleven laps.

Hedeen, Chicago, scored a first in the plunge, making 60 feet in 21 seconds. Capt. Livingston Hall of Chicago was second; Lewis, Milwaukee, entry, taking a minute to complete the distance.

Bill Gleason scored two firsts for Chicago, copping in the 40 and 100 yard free style events.

In the first engagement between the two squads, the Maroons were sunk by the Milwaukee paddlers, 28 to 38. Summaries:

150 yard relay—Won by Chicago. Time, 1:22.

Fancy diving—Won by Dorf [C.]; Bendzler [M.], second; Koch [M.], third. Points, 98.5. Bendzler's points, 97.75.

150 yard backstroke—Won by Thorsen, Milwaukee; Hildebrandt, Milwaukee, second; White, Chicago, third. Time, 1:59.

100 yard swim—Won by Gleason [C.]; Crawford [M.], second; Van Deventer [C.], third. Time, :60 2-5.

OAK PARK WINS AND LOSES TO MORTON TANKERS

Oak Park High's senior swimmers defeated Morton High at Oak Park last night, 42 to 17. The Morton juniors scored a victory over the village midgets, 30 to 20, Stamplin of Oak Park standing out as the individual star with 8 points. Ellis, Oak Park, garnered a total of 10¼ points in the senior division. Oak Park's winning relay team was composed of Ellis, Davenport, Lamb and Einseldt. Summaries for the major meet:

They Alone Insure Him Foreign Market.

that two-thirds of them were Canadian and one-third only were owned in this country. Further, take the logical supposition that the Canadian trucks cost less to operate because they cost less in the first place, and that their chauffeurs were paid less, in the second place.

The farmer, in dickering to have his load of wheat moved to some market, will be quoted a low rate by the Canadian trucks. The American trucks are obliged to meet this rate or get no business; yet, because of their higher costs, such a rate involves a loss in every load they carry.

Where Difficulties Begin.

It is only a short time, obviously, before all the American truck owners give up the business, sell their trucks at a sacrifice to their successful foreign rivals, and turn their energies into other channels, leaving our farmers entirely dependent upon the foreign trucks.

Now, suppose Canada should become involved in war or some other serious national emergency, and should call home for national purposes her trucks (for all nations realize that their carriers are an essential resource of the nation and subject to requisition in time of national need), where would the farmer be? Where would be his fancied savings derived from the few cents that the Canadian trucks underbid the American carriers? He would lose in a monthly loss of his export market, and by glutting his local market, more than he fancied of saving in a score of years.

Hazards of Foreign Transport.

This fanciful analogy is not overdrawn. The ocean carriers are free agents that in no sense can be compared to the railroads. Ocean carriage is open to the competition of ships of all nations, any of which can carry for less than can we, and each of which is subject to be abruptly withdrawn from serving our commerce at any time the needs of the nation whose flag it flies prompt such a measure.

This happened in 1901 when the British government withdrew tonnage from the north Atlantic services to move troops and supplies to South Africa. It happened in 1914 and 1915 when the British withdrew tonnage normally engaged in transporting cotton, and when the southern cotton growers faced—almost overnight—utter bankruptcy. Only the magnitude of the world war prevented the cost of this interruption to our transport from being felt by every man woman and child in the country. Only because so many producing nations were involved that those powers that commanded the seas and controlled sea transportation were obliged to come to us for the essentials to prosecute the conflict, prevented this country from becoming involved in a commercial disaster of the first magnitude.

Insuring Against Disaster.

It is to our great interest to see the economic conditions of the world stabilized and to find all nations returned to their normal conditions of production at the earliest moment. Thus we can again erect a commercial edifice in which we may live in comfort. And when we are back in the old mode of living, will the farmer again blindly say that another catastrophe cannot happen, or will he be the prudent business man, and at a trifling cost take out a valid insurance against such national catastrophe, just as he now insures against such local and individual risks as fire, cyclone, and hail.

For a national merchant marine is an insurance policy against general and calamitous disaster to our commerce by national or international catastrophe. It is true that for this country there will be a small premium involved, a premium of a few cents on the dollar when compared to our foreign trade, yet because of the magnitude of that trade a premium which none should cavil at paying.

Providing Safety at Home.

If any one will assure us that we will never again see the major nations of this world engaged in a war which will lead to demoralization of commerce (and who would be so rash a prophet in the present international outlook); if any one will assure that we will never so ourselves be engaged as to demand ships for vital wartime trade and for reinforcement to our fighting forces; if any one will assure that we will always be served as faithfully and as unselfishly as we would serve ourselves; then we may do without an American merchant marine and save its slightly higher cost.

Until that time comes when we can be guaranteed against all these possible eventualities, we must follow the only safe and sane policy of protecting our producers and their welfare and assure ourselves of a merchant marine adequate to carry the greater part of our commerce and capable of serving as an auxiliary to naval forces in time of war.

LEGION NOTES

VOLIVA BEGINS DEFENSE WITH FIGHT ON ELDER

Efforts to impeach the testimoy of the Rev. Thomas H. Nelson, pastor of Grace Misionary church in Zion City, as prosecuting witness in the criminal libel trial of Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, were made by attorneys for the defense yesterday afternoon.

Five men and a woman, members of the Pentecost band, a religious organization in Indianapolis, of which the Rev. Mr. Nelson was formerly head, were placed on the stand by Attorney Henry A. Berger to tell of the Rev. Mr. Nelson's régime in the band. This line of evidence will be resumed when the case is taken up again next Tuesday.

The state rested its case after pamphlets printed by Voliva and a number of his letters calling the Rev. Mr. Nelson a "tomcat," and other names were read into the record.

HAIRPIN TAKEN FROM ABDOMEN; BABY WILL LIVE

Physicians of the Columbus hospital yesterday announced that baby Vivian Bock, 3 years old, who swallowed a hairpin last Sunday, will in all probability recover. The child is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Bock, [illegible] North Central avenue.

Baby Vivian swallowed the hairpin last Sunday afternoon, but did not become ill until Wednesday, when Mr. and Mrs. Bock took her to the Columbus hospital. An operation was performed Wednesday night and the hairpin was extracted from the baby's abdomen. Dr. Thomas Carter performed the operation.

The Marriage Flaw

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

John Corbeyne is devoted to Sylvia, his second wife, and their young son. He is one of England's great financiers and, just after his appointment to the cabinet, his first wife, Katharine, whom he had divorced because of her unfaithfulness, threatens to reopen their divorce case on a technicality unless he returns to live with her as her husband. He goes back to her in order to avoid staining Sylvia's honor and his son's name, and, to stiffen Sylvia's back to the blow by arousing her pride, pretends he has been lured away by the other woman. He disappears.

Carfax, Sylvia's guardian, announces that Corbeyne is ill. After a month Corbeyne's absence creates a slight panic in the financial world. There is a run on an important bank and, out of curiosity, Corbeyne goes to the scene. He has changed his appearance slightly, but Carfax sees and accosts him. He denies that he is Corbeyne. Carfax apologizes, but appeals to him as a patriot to take Corbeyne's place to avert a great financial crisis. Corbeyne consents. Sylvia agrees to the arrangement and, although she knows he is her husband, she will not permit him to explain.

Katherine, who is evidently being coached in her part, objects to his double rôle of Corbeyne in town and Brierly at Ealing, and renews her threats. John insists on carrying out his agreement with Sylvia and Carfax. He discovers that Deagle, head of the woolen industry and a power in politics, is his chief enemy, and that it is he who has incited Katherine to take action against him. A public scandal is threatened, but John and Sylvia agree to face it rather than have him resign before his work is finished. Sylvia bravely sets for herself the task of unraveling the mystery surrounding John's actions. With the help of Rason, the detective, and Bayliss, the solicitor, she turns up a clew.

INSTALLMENT LXVI.

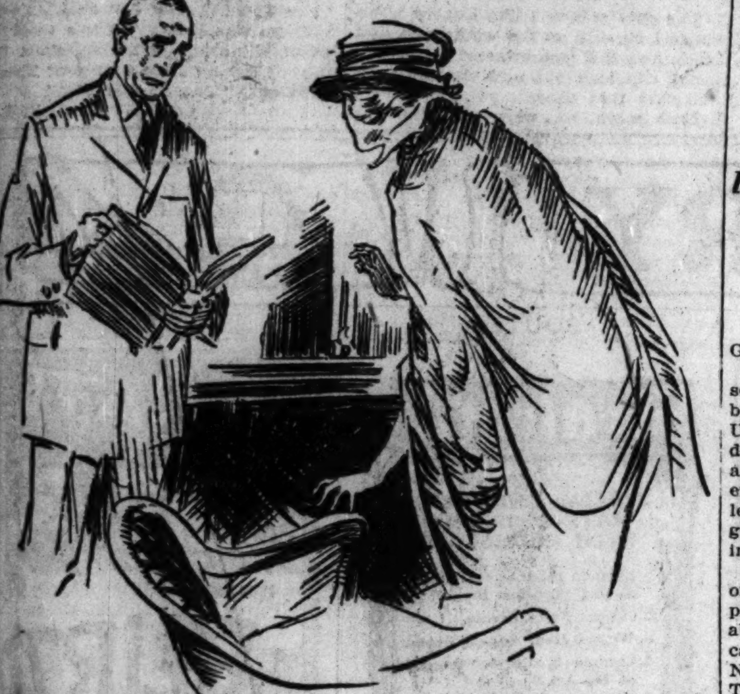
THE STEAMSHIP COMPANY OFFERS A CLEW.

Sylvia opened the pass-book. The last debit entry was "Pac. Gen."

"Pac. Gen.," repeated Sylvia aloud. "What does that mean?"

"Pacific and General," explained Mr. Hepplethwaite quite kindly. "A shipping line. It has now amalgamated with Eastern and Antipodean. Its ships go to India, Japan, and Australasia. As I have said, Mrs. Corbeyne, the entry is somewhat significant. In fact, the only thing that we can safely state as to the whereabouts of the original depositor is that he left this country a little over ten years ago."

Ten years ago! Although Sylvia had no cause for surprise, she felt dismayed. Ten years sounded an eternity. While Mr. Hepplethwaite broadened out into something approaching benevolence Sylvia tried to recover her spirits.



"That's the man we want, Mr. Rason."

It was nearly midday when she made her escape from the somewhat oppressive personality of Mr. Hepplethwaite. There would be plenty of time to see Rason, she reasoned—then a quick lunch and to the house to hear the second reading of the bill.

"I—I went down to have a look at that cottage yesterday, Mrs. Corbeyne," he began.

"And you found a town there?"

"No, but I found the next worst thing. There's been a munition factory there during the war, employing twelve thousand hands. The brewery combine has taken it over."

"It's a pity, of course," said Sylvia. "But I have some news which——"

"Of course, I didn't let the matter rest there," interrupted Rason. "I have set inquiries on foot, and I shall soon be able to get in touch with some of the original villagers—in the course of the next few days, I hope."

Sylvia realized she was expected to sympathize with the detective, and did so. Then she tried again.

"I've had a bit of luck on my own, Mr. Rason," she announced, "and I want you to follow it up."

"Indeed!" said Rason with a little bow. "I shall be most interested to hear it."

"I saw Lady Gavenbury on Tuesday afternoon," she said slowly. "Lord Gavenbury gave me this."

She gave him the pass-book. He said nothing, which told her that she had startled him. He cleared his throat.

"Lord Henry Graunham's pass-book——"

"No," interrupted Sylvia. "The pass-book used by a man who impersonated Lord Henry Graunham." Then she told him all about it.

She paused when she had finished her account of her visit to the Gavenburys. Rason's elbow was on the table and his fingers were pressed into his temple.

"I blame myself very much for not having suggested that you should see the Marquis of Gavenbury in the first place," he said. "You would, of course, be far more likely to succeed than I."

For saying that Sylvia forgave him for the hint of patronage, and told him about Mr. Hepplethwaite.

"So you see," concluded Sylvia, "I have come to the end of my tether. What do we do now?"

"We tackle the steamship company," said Rason eagerly.

"May I come with you?" asked Sylvia.

"By all means if you wish to," answered Rason. "May I keep the pass-book?"

Sylvia consented. She took him in her car to the steamship company's offices in the city.

"It has occurred to me, Mrs. Corbeyne—you know a shipping company doesn't welcome the idea of a detective proving their line has been used for criminal purposes—and I thought possibly if you would be willing to approach the manager and obtain permission——"

"Certainly," said Sylvia. "I was just going to suggest it myself."

The manager was none too helpful. He foresaw a great deal of tedious work in fulfilling her request. Perceiving his trend of thought, Sylvia asked for the managing director, and continued to ask for him until she and Rason were taken to his room. The managing director was a far easier proposition. Looked at from his angle, it was only necessary, in order to please the beautiful wife of an influential man, to give a few orders to his manager. He sent for the manager.

"We wish to trace the man who wrote you this check," explained the detective carefully. "It was drawn, as you will see, in favor of the company which amalgamated with you. We think he sailed in the autumn of that year—at some date subsequent to September 17."

"It's a tall order, as I implied just now, Mrs. Corbeyne," he said, and then to Rason:

"You want us to trace the man who wrote that check. Well, to begin with, as the check was apparently cleared without difficulty, there will be no special record in our books—nine-tenths of our payments are received by check. There is the possibility that there may have been some correspondence, and I'll have that turned up at once. But I must ask you to allow me a couple of hours. In the meantime, if you would like to look through the passenger lists for that quarter, will you come this way?"

The study of the files was a complicated business. There were five sailings to be examined for that quarter alone. Rason was studying one file, Sylvia another. Sylvia's was that of the S. S. Gershonia from Tilbury to Auckland.

"Mr. Rason!"

The detective was by her side. Sylvia was pointing at an entry which read:

"Brierly, Jas. W., care of Homer Bros., Ltd., Wood Lane, E. C., Auckland, N. Z."

"I don't quite see——" began Rason.

"Yes, but—it's a common enough name," Rason pointed out. "I don't think we ought to build too much on that, though, of course, it may be worth following up."

"Who are Homer Brothers, Limited?" asked Sylvia.

"I don't know," answered Rason, and glanced round the room. There was a telephone book which he immediately consulted.

"Silk mercers," answered Rason.

Silk mercers! The walls of the waiting room faded away and Sylvia saw again that dreadful little room into which Mrs. Pelt had shown her. She heard again Mrs. Pelt's droning voice—"all I can say is it must have been before he went in the silk trade, which took him to New Zealand."

Wisconsin U. Victor in Glee Club Contest

Illinois Is Second and Grinnell Third.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Wisconsin, first; Illinois, second; Grinnell, third.

Orchestra hall's audience took on something of the aspect of an assemblage at an athletic field last night. University and college colors were draped about the boxes; yells filled the air; partisans were here, there, and everywhere. But instead of an athletic meet they were gathered together, Tannhäuser-wise, for a contest in the peaceful art of song.

Twelve glee clubs from twelve seats of learning of the middle west competed. In addition to the three named above there were Armour, Beloit, Chicago, Iowa, Millikin, Lake Forest, Northwestern, Purdue and Wabash. The judges were John Alden Carpenter, D. A. Clippinger, and Karleton Hackett.

Each glee was given three tests. In the beginning each sang a work of its own selection, anywhere from "Rolling Down to Rio" to "Deep River," and from the "Arion Waltz" to "The Old Folks at Home." Then the entire twelve set themselves to a competitive and comparative rendition of "The Hunter's Farewell," by Mendelssohn. At the end each sang its own song in celebration of its own alma mater. By the sum of the markings in the three events, the judgment was reached.

This was a contest on the merits of the singing rather than the merits of the songs, a question that it would do no harm to take up in the meets of the years to come. As it was there were striking divergences between manner and matter in the performance. Never have I seen singers enter a stage so briskly, so full of energy, and, at least in appearance, so full of confidence. But only too frequently what they went into was a thing of sentimentality and linked sweetness long drawn out, only a degree removed from the "barber shop chords" of a few years ago.

There was one striking exception Millikin, forming itself into an initial M, sang an alma mater song so bright so full of vitality and the real spirit of young manhood, that it ought to serve as a model for years to come.

Perhaps the years will bring it. Such contests, if they go with the vim of last night's, certainly ought to raise the standard of music as well as of singing.

ASK ME! ASK ME!

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

I always like Saturday mornings. It's so much like meeting you all face to face, to answer your "ask me's." Here goes:

MARION L.: No, Lillian Gish is not married. Dorothy Gish is the wife of James Rennie, the actor. Her hair is naturally light. She wore—and does still wear sometimes—a dark wig. She LOVES it. Write to Priscilla Dean in care of the Universal company. Y'wekkum.

HARRY J. N.: More truth than poetry in that all right. You're all wrong when you think "nobody appreciates funny stories." EVERYBODY does. The joker is—ARE they funny? There's a long, long trail awinding, dividing humor and so-called humor. Address me care of THE TRIBUNE—just as you did this time. No trouble at all.

WORRIED: DON'T! You'll get wrinkles. The mail has been heavy, and all letters must take their turn. Please be patient. Mighty glad you like the column. I will recommend some magazines if you care to send a stamped and self-addressed envelope. Repeat your request, please.

MRS. G. K. H.: I'm so glad the baby is better. Take care of yourself, now. Yes, Baby Peggy is a darling. You have the right idea. It is a real pleasure to read your leters, Mrs. H. If you have time, write again. I'll be glad to send you a personal answer if you care to send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

ELMHURST: Monte Blue will be Dr. Kennicott in the screen production "Main Street." Warner brothers are putting out the picture. Mabel Normand once starred in Mack Sennett comedies. Yes, a lot of folks think she did her best work in those days.

DAVID: You say you "mean what you say." Then, why apologize? Stick by your guns, for heaven's sake!

ALTO: Josef Swickard was Desnoyers in "The Four Horsemen." Claire Adams is the girl you refer to. You're welcome.

V. O. U.: Florence Reed played in "The Black Panther's Cub." I agree with you. It WAS a wonderful picture! She was born in Philadelphia in 1883. No, thanks!

CLUB MAN: The "funny drunk" you mention was played by Billy Bevan. I'LL SAY!

OLD TIMER: Yes, Annette Kellerman appeared in a couple of pictures. She didn't seem to care much for the screen, however. She was lame as a child, but through exercise rightly directed—principally swimming — overcame her trouble. Don't thank ME. I thank YOU! It is nice to be remembered to pleasantly.

Girl Pianist Gives Promise of Greatness

BY EDWARD MOORE.

In presenting Josephine Rosensweet, pianist, as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra—her first time in these concerts, though two or three years ago she played at one of the "pops"—Mr. Stock once again gave encouragement to young and promising talent, the kind of talent that has already accomplished much and bids fair to do considerably more.

Miss Rosensweet is the daughter of the late David Rosensweet, for eight years one of the first violinists of the orchestra. She is not yet 19 years old, but she has gone far enough to play the Chopin E Minor Concerto in a highly ingratiating manner. The big, resounding tone of the piano will come to her in a later period of her development, but she would seem to have nearly all the rest of the necessary pianistic equipment, agility, suave and mellow touch, fine sense of rhythm, and the kind of imagination that glorifies her music with fanciful loveliness. Agility and good touch may be taught; the rest is the personal possession of the pianist. Wherefore Miss Rosensweet arouses hopes for future years.

Two unfamiliar pieces were on the orchestral section of the program. One was Glazounow's Symphonic Poem, "Stenka Razine," about as long as the same composer's "The Kremlin," which was played early this season, and otherwise not particularly noteworthy. The other was "Pause del Silenzio," by G. Francesco Malapiero, a somewhat recent novelty from Italy.

BEG PARDON!

An error was made in yesterday's paper in using the picture of Miss Charlotte Cary in connection with a story about Miss Grace Saxe, both of whom spoke at the founder's week meetings at the Moody Bible institute.

The statement that Fred Merrifield was a member of the divinity school faculty of the University of Chicago is an error. Mr. Merrifield is assistant professor of New Testament history and interpretation in the departments of arts, literature, and science. He has no connection with the divinity school.

CLOSEUPS

Harold Lloyd announces that Mildred Davis will retire from the screen after she has become Mrs. Lloyd.

Mr. Ince, who is to produce Mrs. Wallace Reid's "dope" picture, announces through his press agent that the production will have its premiere in Chicago.

See you tomorrow.

The Question.

What do you think of prohibition?

Where Asked.

Madison street at Dearborn.

The Answers.

Charles Weisen, 4223 North Avers avenue, retired — I never was a booze fighter, but I drank liquor and beer in my time. The way I look at it, every man ought to have the privilege of drinking if he wants to. But I believe the saloons ought to be regulated so that people couldn't get more than enough.

Charles E. Milroy, 69 West Washington street, attorney—I am for prohibition for the reason that the general use of liquor does more harm than it does good. I believe in the principle of the greatest good for the greatest number. Prohibition is right in principle, and for that reason will finally prevail.

L. G. Rapp, 214 East 53d street, salesman—In my estimation, prohibition has been a failure. We are worse off than we were before. Although it is a failure at present, in the future it is going to be a mighty good thing. But it will take several generations before prohibition becomes a fact.

H. A. Izard, 2425 Broadway, clerk—Prohibition, so far as this generation is concerned, doesnt' do any good because people with money can get what they want. The only thing is the younger generation that is coming on. It wouldn't hurt me, or you, but we have to consider the children.

V. W. Berna, 7122 Ellis avenue, electrician—I believe in the liquor question, but not in saloons. The solution of the problem is to have stores where the public could make their purchases, but no goods to be opened there. What they did with it after leaving the store would be up to the proper authorities.

Strensky Is Out as Conductor of N.Y. Philharmonic

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—With New York's musical circles buzzing today over the "politics" that is reported to have been involved in the resignation of Josef Stransky as conductor of the Philharmonic orchestra, Willem Mengelberg, present guest conductor of the orchestra, a Hollander, loomed as the most probable successor to the man who has held the organization's baton for twelve years.

Mr. Stransky today was silent.

Clarence H. Mackay, chairman of the executive board of the society, which yesterday accepted Mr. Stransky's resignation, also was silent, although all the other members of the board referred questions to him as their spokesman.

Mr. Mengelberg talked sparingly and that with European diplomacy.

"Have you been offered the conductorship of the Philharmonic orchestra?" he was asked.

"There is nothing I can say," he replied. "Such matters are up to the directors of the society."

It was learned, however, that Mr. Stransky's contract expired this year. This, it was pointed out, was significant in that for several years there have been undercurrents of dissatisfaction with the conductor among certain of the orchestra's patrons. It is said that Mr. Stransky's opponents gained control of the society about two years ago, but, because of his contract, were forced to await an opportunity for definite action. This opportunity came two weeks ago, when Mr. Stransky conducted his last concert under his contract.

THEATER NOTES

"Elsie," generally supposed to be doing well at the Illinois, was given walking papers yesterday and will depart at the end of next week, making way for "In Springtime of Youth," a musical comedy with almost as many authors as players. A good cast is promised, its members including George MacFarlane, the baritone; Harry Kelly, and Harry K. Morton, comedians; Miss Olga Steck, Miss Zella Russell, and Robert Halliday.

Herbert Corthell will come to the Olympic on Feb. 25 to act for a time in "The Blimp," a new comedy by Conrad Westervelt, which is now being given trial performances in the York state hinterland. The piece concerns, not a balloon, but a fat man, nicknamed as per the title, who surprises every one by amounting to something. Corthell, of course, is the "Blimp."

The Players club of Chicago will present two one act plays tomorrow evening at the Chicago Hebrew institute. "Campbell of Kilmhor," by J. A. Ferguson, and Lord Dunsany's "Fame and the Poet" make up the program.

DAILY HOROSCOPE
Doris Blake Says:

TODAY IS LUCKY FOR SOCIAL AFFAIRS.

Astrologers read this as a fortunate day. It is a day especially favorable for the pleasurable activities of life, the rule making for light spirits, enjoyment in social affairs and meetings with strangers who may become dear friends. An encouraging day for shopping and profitable for those who deal in women's wear.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of happiness and prosperity. No radical changes or events are seen as likely to intercept the pleasant routine of life.

Children born on this day probably will be gifted with perseverance and a most active mentality, and should prove successful in life.

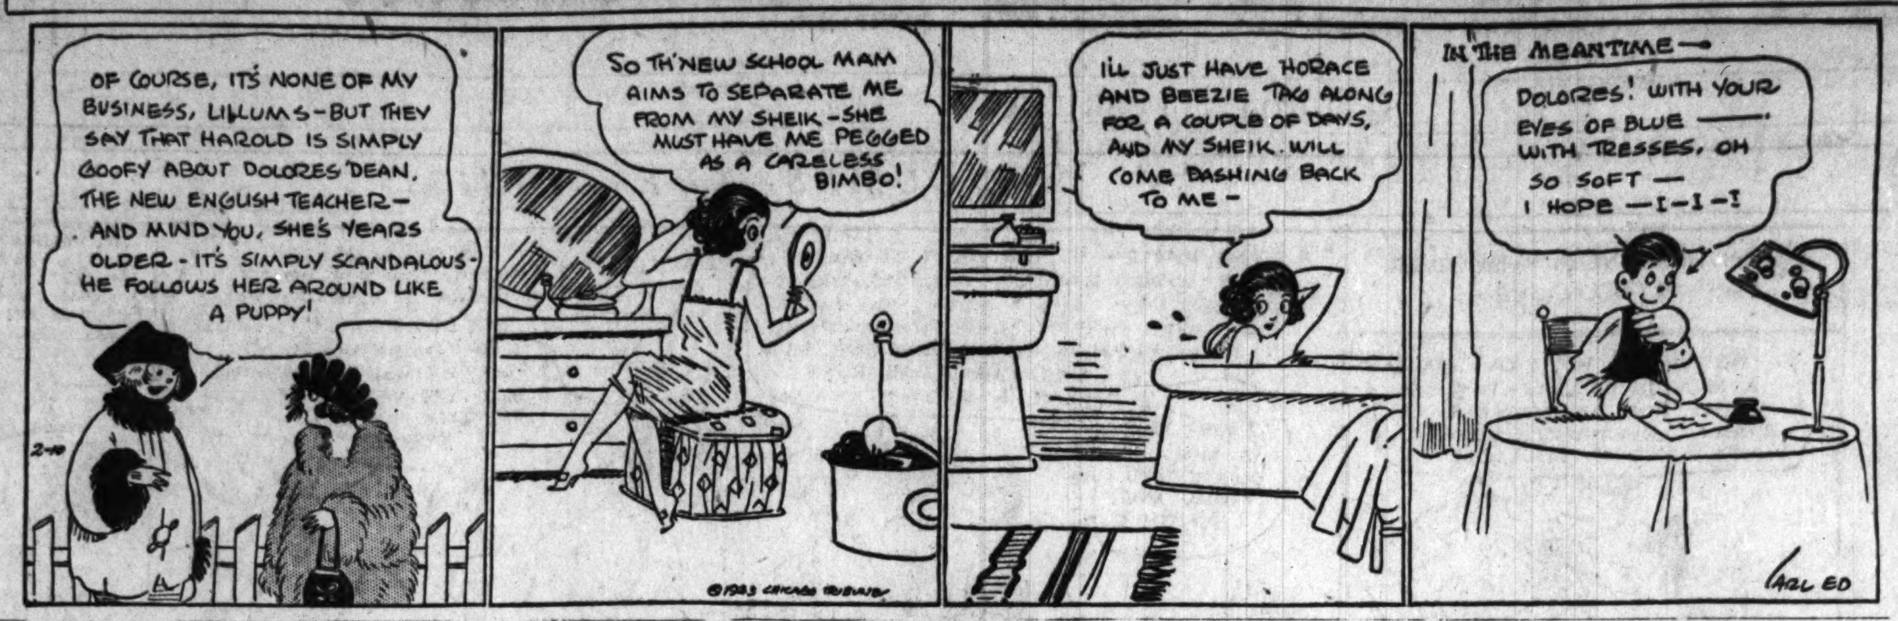
You of this birthday are, according to astrology, affectionate, most affable, courteous, and lovable at times. But you have a strong vein ofselfishness that takes the direction of self-gratification and makes you domineering at times. You are rather stubborn and wilful if things do not go your way, and some one else is always to blame for your mistakes. You are extraordinarily fond of children, and will take infinite pains to entertain them. You are exceedingly fond of home and its comforts.

Guard It Well.

"Dear Miss Blake—I am a girl of 16 in love with a boy two years my senior. I hear from his friends that he loves me also. He loves another girl, and as I do not care to play second fiddle or to tell the boy, so as he and the girl will think I am jealous, I am writing you to advise me what to do. UNHAPPY."

You amusing darling. Why fall in love with such a Don Juan? No, you just keep that secret between you and me, and don't you ever let them suspect that you might be jealous.

HAROLD TEEN—LILLUMS MIGHT BE MISTAKEN THIS TIME!



OF COURSE, IT'S NONE OF MY BUSINESS, LILLUMS—BUT THEY SAY THAT HAROLD IS SIMPLY GOOFY ABOUT DOLORES DEAN, THE NEW ENGLISH TEACHER—AND MIND YOU, SHE'S YEARS OLDER—IT'S SIMPLY SCANDALOUS—HE FOLLOWS HER AROUND LIKE A PUPPY!

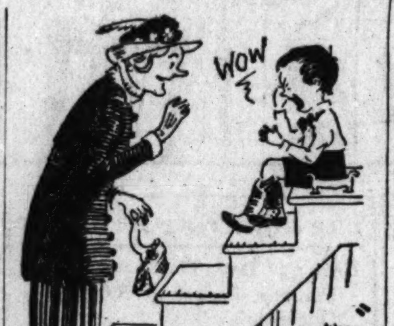
"You must not fight a boy smaller than yourself," I told Robert.

"Aw, how you goin' to stop to pick your mad-ats out?" he came back at me. C. A. R.

Harriet had been coaxing for a cookie. After making a thorough search through the cookie jar, she returned empty handed. "Where's the cookie?" asked mother. "Didn't want any," said Harriet. "They're all cripples." M. D. S.



A chubby, tiny lad sat atop a step, crying. Sympathetically I asked if he was hurt, and a sobbing reply came to me: "O, no, but my muvver don't un'erstan' little boys." V. M. B.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Both Need Clothes.

"My husband has been out of work for eighteen months and I have been in bed three weeks but am up and around now. My husband is working but he has no warm clothing and it is hard to be out all day in a short coat. He wears a 40 inch coat. I wear size 38. I could fix most anything over as I am handy with the needle. We live in a rooming house. "MRS. J. R."

Half the Cure.

"I am a patient in the Municipal tuberculosis sanitarium and need clothing, especially a suit of clothes—38 or 40—and trousers—35 waist. J. K."

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Rye Gems and Pancakes.

Given reasons for trying out rye breads, small and large, I noted the following for "rye drop cakes," which I think should be named gems: "One pint of milk, three eggs, one tablespoon sugar, one-half teaspoon salt. Stir in enough rye flour to make like pancake batter. Bake in muffin tins one hour."

That one hour is certainly a mistake! With an oven between 350 and 400 degrees, or what some people would call a hot oven, and others near hot, you can bake these gems in one-half hour, and get a fine crisp crust and a most excellently flavored hot bit to eat and something not so bad to toast. Or you will find that the batter cooked on the griddle makes an excellent pancake.

Method used: Having determined that I would make gems I had settled, practically, the amount of flour to use, that is, as much as of milk—two cups or a pint. The sugar and salt make these, with the crisp crust and much of it, excellent of flavor, but the sugar could be dispensed with to suit Mrs. A. W.'s needs, and whether it is used or not it seems to me that a teaspoon of salt is none too much. Separate the eggs and fold the whites in last after the batter has been beaten as smooth as possible. This process really makes a thicker seeming batter than it really is and one that stands up excellently in the baking.

More and more as I get here and there stiff, soft crusted muffins.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

WOMEN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

Here is a dress having the front, back, and sleeves cut in one piece; it is slashed for the neck edge, and the side edges—which are the selvedge of the material—are brought together and stitched, forming drapery.

The pattern, 1643, comes in small, medium, and large sizes. The medium size requires 3 yards of 36 inch or wider material.

A. W. O. L.

The only reason I like history is because I sit next to the window in that class, and if I lose interest in the lesson I can look out and watch people and cars that pass.

Last week we were studying the campaign of the Mexican war, and as I was not interested I gazed out of the window. An automobile passed by and this reminded me of Tom, a friend of mine who has just bought a car.

As I sat there thinking about Tom, and wishing I could see him, he suddenly came around the corner. If only the teacher hadn't spoken to me then!

But she did, and her question was, "Where was Kearny at this time?"

Not thinking of the question, but only of my surprise at seeing Tom, I cried out, "There he is now." P. R.

ANSWER TO COMMON ERRORS

The fork is held as low as the knife when cutting meats, never grasped in a belligerent fist. It is held with prongs downward, index finger placed on the shank so that it points to the prongs and is supported at the side by the thumb. The other fingers close underneath and hold the handle tight.

Works of Chicago Artists to Be Shown Abroad This Spring

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Chicago painters will be represented abroad this summer. The eleventh Swedish-American art exhibition opened yesterday in the galleries of the club, and a chosen group of the pictures hung will be sent at the invitation of the Swedish government to Gothenburg, where they will be on view beginning May 8.

The exhibition is a good one. There are landscapes and views of the sea, portraits and an occasional still life. A few pieces of sculpture balance the paintings. While there is no lover of the dune country to be heard from in this show, Hugo Von Hofsten has made himself again the speaker for the beauties of the forest preserves and especially the Skokie. His "Sunset on the Skokie" is beautiful and "In the Forest Preserve" runs a close second.

Alfred Jansson has two delicate, dainty bits of painting; Henry Reuterdahl is represented by a number of rugged, forceful canvases, and Arvid Nyholm has two portraits hung.

Among the paintings that will be exhibited abroad are "Winter Sunlight," by Gotthilf Ahlman; "Winter Silence," by John F. Carlson; "East River, New York," by Karl Larsson; "Springtime," by Axel Linus; "Sea Power and Commerce," by Henry Reuterdahl; "Self-Portrait," by Arvid Nyholm; "Evening Glow," by Carl Ringius; "Spring Morning," by Henning Ryden, and "Lapplandskan," by Christian Von Schneidau.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Miss Miles Carpenter gave a small dinner party last evening at the St. Regis hotel for Miss Cordelia S. Hepburn and Paul Cushman, who are to be married Feb. 20.

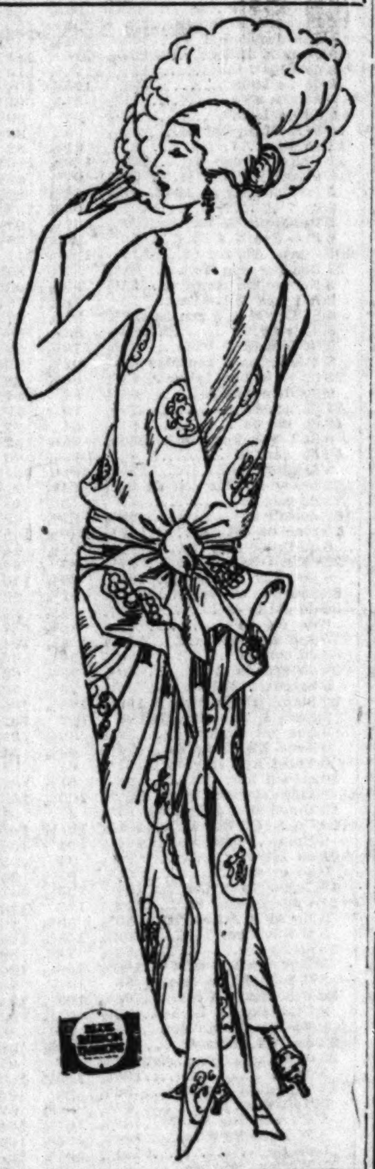
Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt of 49 East 65th street will depart for Florida during the latter part of next week.

Showing the New Jabot Whose Ends Form a Train

by Mary O'Connor Newell



NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—If the ripple cascade be here, can the jabot be far behind? The answer is: Jabots are on the way, and the illustration is a spring jabot running down a back of an evening gown.

Later on jabots, which are now decorating sides and backs of dresses, will be seen where fashion, if not nature, originally intended them to be worn. This is to fill the front of a long V waistcoat or suitcoat. Plaited flounces of chiffon, with edges pulled smooth and ruffly, and intended for use as jabots, are already seen in the shops.

A quaint mauve taffeta, with long fitted waist and big bertha, recently worn at a restaurant dance, had a jabot lined with French blue down the back of the full, round skirt. The formal evening gown illustrated is of orchid crêpe embroidered with silver. The jabot ends, parting in two points, make an effective short train.

Sunday fashion page will be found in the New Color Section.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

MRS. W. C.: I'LL WAGER THAT friend does not go around saying how old she feels; how different things were when she was young; that she is too old to take up this and that. That's why she seems younger than you—and looks it, according to your own admission. "Would you know the secret of the far famed elixir of life, perpetual youth? It is versatility—the power to coax and capture the new. "The ever young means the ever new," quoth the philosopher. Some of the more subtle attributes of age are setness of mind, chronic garrulousness, loss of attention, and a creeping paralysis of interest in affairs of the day.

MEN'S FASHIONS

Wing Collar Vogue.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Wing collars are more than ever this season being worn with business suits. The reason is probably because they are a pleasant change from the usual turn down stiff collar or the soft collar. They lend an air of dressiness which the other collars do not. Also they are extremely comfortable in comparison to a high turn down collar, especially the bold wing, which is shown in the drawing. This large wing is most in favor just now, both for daytime and evening wear.

When it is used with a business suit the wing collar looks best with a bow tie, as the ascot is worn only with the morning coat, and the four in hand isn't favored to a great extent with a wing collar. The bow looks smarter.

Fashionotes.

There is no more pleasing combination than light gray, black, and blue. An example of this I passed on 5th avenue. The man responsible for it wore a pearl gray hat with a black band, a smooth silk pearl gray muffler, and a dark blue chesterfield with a black velvet collar. The black band on the hat was better than a gray band because it went well with the black velvet collar on the coat. Trivial as some of these little details may seem, they are surprisingly important for the whole effect.

Answers.

H. A. P.—The only vent the well dressed man indulges in is a short one in back, or a short one at each side of the coat. The ventless coat is also extremely popular, and is becoming more so all the time.

Cannibals' Liking for Missionaries Is Told to Moody Graduates

Stories of hair-breadth escapes from cannibals were interspersed with anecdotes describing the humor of missionary life in addresses yesterday at the Moody Bible institute, which marked the close of the founder's week celebration in honor of the birth of Dwight L. Moody, and the thirty-seventh anniversary of the institute's work.

The Rev. Charles W. Abel described his work of thirty-two years among the man eating tribes of New Guinea.

"Most of the natives of New Guinea still eat human flesh," said the Rev. Mr. Abel. "Missionary work is largely confined to the coast and very few dare venture to penetrate the interior. An American named Weaver, who came in search of radium, was the last white man eaten by the cannibals. I was threatened with death, but escaped.

"The only way to Christianize the people is through converted native workers. We now have a church there where there was not a Christian when I want there."

The Rev. Mr. Abel appealed to the graduates of Moody to establish in New Guinea a branch of the institute.

TRACTION BONDS IN ACTIVE SPURT; SALES $239,000

Activity in Chicago traction bonds on the local stock exchange yesterday to the extent of $239,000, par value, revealed a revival of interest in these issues on the part of the general public in this city and in financial circles of the east. Careful inquiry from a dozen authoritative sources brought forth one unified answer—that the end of Thompsonism in city administration means that the traction question will no longer be treated as a political football and that the result will be better service and consequently better earnings.

Traction bond trading has increased day by day. Prices generally have become better and better, since the announcement the present mayor would not be a candidate for reëlection, and yesterday jumps from 1 to 6 points were registered. There were $30,000 of Chicago Railways series A 5s sold at 65, an advance of 6 points since the last previous sale.

C., C. & C. Fives at 53⅞.

Chicago, City and Connecting 5s sold at 53⅞, an advance of 3⅞, the sale being $117,000. A year ago these bonds were sold at 41. Chicago Railways 1st 5s closed at 81, compared with 70 a year ago.

Other advances were: Chicago City Railway first 5s, 2½; South Side Elevated 4½s, 2½; Northwestern Elevated first 5s, 2 points; and Metropolitan Elevated first 4s, a point.

Marked recovery in industry generally is shown in the annual report of E. I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co. for 1922, which shows net earnings of $13,254,000 before interest charges, taxes, etc. A small surplus for the year is left after taking out $9,445,000 for dividends. Last December the company capitalized $31,682,000 of its surplus by declaring a 50 per cent stock dividend.

Sugar Shortage Feared.

Accompanying the announcement of advances of from 10 to 25 points in the price of sugar on the part of all the big refineries, came a report from the commerce department at Washington indicating a world sugar shortage based on estimates on world production and consumption. Consumption needs for 1923 are given as about 350,000 tons higher than 1922 and are estimated to total 725,000 tons more of raw sugar than the estimated production. The estimated production this year is 18,308,000 tons, while the estimated consumption figures are given as 19,035,000 tons.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Ticker tape readers have come to the conclusion that the advances of some of the low priced rails are based on something more fundamental than reported buying for the account of the Van Sweringen interests of Cleveland. For a time report had it that these rapidly developing railroad magnates were interested in the contemplated acquisition of at least two of the smaller middle western roads, but in each case denials have subsequently been made. As a consequence the normal movement of quotations based on earnings reports and the prospects of either better or worse conditions in the next six months or a year ahead has had a better chance to reassert itself.

'Eating at the First Table'

How would you feel if, at a dinner, your host suddenly informed you that because of the presence of more important guests you would have to wait until the others had been served?

The man who buys securities which do not have first call on the assets securing them holds himself open, in case of liquidation, to just such a situation.

We aim to offer securities to our clients which are a first lien on the assets behind them—securities which entitle their holders to eat at the first table.

PITTSBURGH PLUS HELP TO CHICAGO, SAYS L. E. BLOCK

L. E. Block, chairman of the board of the Inland Steel company, almost succeeded in injecting a bit of industrial romance into the federal trade commission hearing on "Pittsburgh plus" before Special Examiner John W. Bennett in Chicago yesterday. Under the questioning of C. A. Severance of counsel for the steel corporation Mr. Block told an impressive tale of the expansion of the Inland company plant from a modest beginning to a vast manufacturing concern.

The underlying lesson, presumably, for the benefit of the steel producers' case before the commission, was that "Pittsburgh Plus" has had a stimulating rather than a depressing influence upon the growth and prosperity of the Chicago district. Mr. Block's testimony followed the continuation of testimony begun the previous day by Edwin S. Mills, general manger of sales for the Illinois Steel company. Mr. Mills elaborated testimony which showed that his company has operated and is operating on a Chicago base at present, with prices on plates, shapes and bars from $2 to $4 a ton above f. o. b. Pittsburgh prices, instead of the exact amount of the freight tariff from Pittsburgh to Chicago above f. o. b. Pittsburgh prices.

Humor Seen in Lengthy Hearing.

A high light in the hearing came with the adjournment. After looking at his watch twice in the last five minutes before the noon whistle, Mr. Severance was rewarded by the commissioner's announcement that adjournment would be taken until Feb. 13.

"Nineteen twenty-three?" inquired someone in the room. The touch of ironical humor as to the length of the hearings which have continued over long and weary months was not lost. K. E. Steinhauser of counsel for the commission subsequently explained that the complainant's case is in, that the corporation's evidence should be completed here, in Pittsburgh and in New York by spring or early summer, and that a decision should be reached early in the fall.

Asked later for an elucidation of the general subject, E. J. Buffington, president of the Illinois Steel company, explained the steel men's view of "Pittsburgh Plus" in some detail.

Quoted Erroneously.

"THE TRIBUNE cited my testimony somewhat erroneously this morning," said Mr. Buffington. "I did not say that 'from 1901 to 1908 the policy of charging the freight from Pittsburgh to destination, in addition to the Pittsburgh mill price for rolled steel, had been in effect continuously, and that it had continued till the present, with few brief exceptions.' We do not charge freight. We are not a carrier. We fix prices, based upon cost of production, supply and demand. Our business is competitive.

"We are selling now at prices slightly above Pittsburgh prices, but that difference does not represent the amount of freight which would be charged from Pittsburgh to Chicago. The so-called 'Pittsburgh plus' is a misleading slogan. It is not an arbitrary fixing of price by agreement or conspiracy between the steel producers.

"The advantages of having mills here under this arrangement have brought in and expanded mills in this district. Thus the Gary mills now are more than double the capacity originally planned. The advantage of putting production centers close to potential markets is what has produced this development, under a system which like all economic systems determines prices at the point of surplus supply. Thus the 'Pittsburgh plus' prices are the natural result of the free play of economic forces. The socalled 'Pittsburgh plus' prices at all places are the natural market prices at those places.

Similar to Grain Market.

"It is no different from the grain market. In effect, grain is sold 'Chicago plus.' There is always a market price for grain here. Vast quantities of grain come here from the farms and are distributed from here to points of consumption. The mass of wheat is produced west of Chicago and consumed east of Chicago. The price paid by grain dealers west of Chicago, where wheat is produced, is the Chicago price less the freight from the point of purchase in Chicago. The price east of Chicago is the Chicago price plus the freight to the point of consumption. The price of sugar offers another illustration.

"Perhaps you admit that this is a good thing for the steel development of this district but complain that the steel mills thus are developed at the cost of manufacturers or consumers using their product. It is unfair to say that there is $10 of 'Pittsburgh plus' in every tractor sold to a farmer, and that the farmer is thus 'taxed' improperly. Where are the big farm implement factories in this country? In the middle west. They are here because they are close to their best markets. They have prospered and expanded. When freight on steel from Pittsburgh to make a farm machine is paid, the Iowa farmer buys the machine and pays freight from the Chicago factory to his farm. He does not pay the freight on the machine from Pittsburgh to Iowa.

Easy Access to Markets Big Factor.

"Perhaps the comparative proximity of Detroit to Pittsburgh, and consequent lower price of steel in Detroit has helped Detroit's automotive industry. But the Kenosha factory does not have to ship its completed cars over this route to its western customers, and pay freight thereon. Easy access to markets as well as costs of finished products have their vital influence on prosperity. With all steel mills in this district operating under a government ruling which would say that we cannot charge a higher price for steel than does Pittsburgh, the steel market and the steel fabricators would be in a chaotic condition. For that reason, I believe, socalled abolition of 'Pittsburgh plus' would do this district great harm and no good.

"When demand falls off, prices go down, regardless of 'Pittsburgh plus.' When demand is heavy, this district cannot supply it, and purchasers go to Pittsburgh whic hproduces a surplus. Naturally they pay the freight from Pittsburgh. It follows logically then that buyers in the local market pay a similar price, because demand necessitates it."

BULLISH ACTION BOOSTS GRAINS TO HIGH LEVELS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Bullish sentiment predominated in the grain markets. War talk was responsible for considerable buying of wheat at times, and all deliveries sold at a new high on the present upturn, and while later cables claimed the situation was much more peaceable, the close was firm with net gains of ¼@1c. All futures of corn and July oats sold at a new high for the season, both grains closing ¼@½c higher, while rye gained ¼@⅜c.

There was rather persistent selling of May wheat by commission houses with eastern connections, especially above $1.22 for May, but on the reactions there was good support with evidence of a broadening in the outside interest and the advance was fairly well maintained.

May wheat closed 7½c over July, and has gained 2c on that delivery since the close on Tuesday, while Winnipeg May dropped to 7½c under Chicago, compared with 4½c a short while ago.

Strong Market in Corn.

A liberal trade was on in corn. There was a lack of pressure early, but at 76¼c and over for May cash houses sold against purchases of over 500,000 bu to arrive from the country which checked the advance, but the undertone was firm, and the finish was at the highest close of the season. Sentiment remains distinctly bullish.

Speculative interest is increasing in oats but selling at 45⅝c for May on resting orders checked the advance. At times the market showed relatively more strength than corn. Kansas City reported Texas after oats there.

Cables from abroad reported that Germany had bought 2,400,000 bu rye from Russia in the past few days, and will pay for it with agricultural implements.

Provisions Move Up.

Strength in hogs and moderate buying of lard by houses with eastern connections made a higher provision market. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export sales of 200,000 to 300,000 bu wheat, 100,000 to 200,000 bu corn, and 100,000 bu rye were estimated to have been made at the seaboard yesterday. An outstanding feature was the better tone in cables on wheat, with bids closer in line than they have been for a week or more. Corn bids were slightly out of line due to the advance in futures.

Chicago handlers sold 55,000 bu wheat, 95,000 bu corn, 110,000 bu oats, and 11,000 bu barley to the domestic trade.

Milling demand for cash wheat at Chicago is fairly good, but premiums on spot showed no change, with No. 2 red nominally 14@16c over May and No. 2 hard 1¼c over to 3c under the future. Receipts, 18 cars. Outside markets were 1@4c higher, with St. Louis leading. Premiums at Minneapolis unchanged to 1c higher.

Basis on cash corn was ¼@½c better as compared with May at the last, with No. 2 grades ¾@1¼c, No. 3 grades 1¾@2¼c under, and No. 4 grades 2⅝@3c under May. Receipts, 227 cars. Outside markets unchanged to 1c higher.

Choice No. 2 white oats are wanted for seed purposes, but the shipping demand is inactive. No. 2 white, May to ⅝c under, and No. 3 white, 1¼@1¾c under May. Receipts, 70 cars.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

All grain exchanges in the United States will be closed Monday, Lincoln's birthday. Winnipeg and Liverpool will be open as usual.

While a majority of commission houses express the belief that it would not be well to follow advances in wheat with buying orders, they generally believe that still higher prices will be witnessed. It is very noticeable that on the breaks good support is forthcoming, and while the market may be somewhat unsettled for a week or so, the crop scare period is rapidly drawing nearer, and with the cash grain situation showing improvement the bulls are disposed to pay less attention to the foreign political news. A betterment in the foreign demand is looked for shortly.

Corn bulls were in the ascendancy last night and freely predicted higher prices. They figure that there will be less resistance in the way of hedging sales on bulges from now on.

Yesterday's bulge in corn futures resulted in purchases of over 500,000 bu cash grain to arrive from the country, offerings increasing around 76½c for May. At the last, however, some cash handlers claimed that the advance had cleaned up the bulk of the grain for sale on resting orders around 60c per bu at Iowa and 65c at Illinois points, and while May closed at over 76c, one of the leading private wire houses booked only 1 car after the close. Bids for deferred shipment were advanced ½@¾c during the day without attracting much corn. It is expected that there will be moderate amounts of cash corn sold on every cent advance above the present level, but no great increase in the quantities until May gets to around 80c.

The New York Times.

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—Although most of today's markets moved as one might have expected on the eve of what was to be practically a triple holiday—that is to say, with cautious readjustment of speculative commitments—there were several points of interest in them. One was the unmistakable firmness of exchange rates, accompanied on the bond market by a fresh advance of 1½ points in the French republic bonds, which brought them nearly 9 points above their low prices of January and within 1½ points of the level at which they stood on Jan. 2, when the Paris conference assembled and hopes of a settlement of the reparations problem were apparently bright.

The early stock market was governed by continuance of the active demand of the day before, resulting for one thing in another "million share" total, the fourth in succession. During this advance there were numerous gains of a point or more. Some of them were wholly or partly lost in the later saes to realize speculative profits, but many ended around the best prices of the day.

In Wall street's existing mood of making the most of every favorable occurrence, the certainty of a safe majority in congress for the British debt settlement was an underlying motive.

The day's advance in all classes of Liberty bonds may have been connected with expectation of an early and favorable vote, which, in fact, was obtained in the house during the afternoon.

Sterling rose nearly 1 cent to $4.68. The gold premiums at London declined today to 3⅝, the lowest since the gold market was reopened. Both the franc and the mark were strong all day.

May Deplete Cotton Stock to Low Total by August

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—World stocks of cotton, including that produced in America, will have been depleted to an "abnormally low total" by next August, if the present rate of consumption continues, according to a summary of world production and consumption made public today by the commerce department. The indicated carry over Aug. 1, 1923, will amount to 2,775,000 bales of American and 6,621,000 bales of all kinds of cotton, including American, the report says, whereas the carry over last August was 5,123,000 bales of American, and 9,536,000 bales of all kinds.

This season's production of 9,964,000 bales of American, and 17,664,000 bales of all kinds of cotton, with the carry over of last August, the report stated, gave a total supply for 1922 and 1923 of 15,087,000 bales of American, and 27,200,000 bales of all kinds. Consumption for 1922 and 1923 was estimated at 12,312,000 bales of American, and 20,579,000 bales of all kinds of cotton, reducing the stocks of American cotton more than 6,500,000 bales, and of all kinds more than 8,000,000 bales.

TRADE REVIEWS OF WEEK

Marshall Field & Co. say:

"Wholesale distribution of dry goods during the past week has shown a substantial increase over the corresponding week of last year. Orders from salesmen on road showed an increase over last week. Collections showed improvement in comparison with those of the same week a year ago."

"Wholesale dry goods distribution continues ahead of corresponding period last year in immediate shipments and with a constantly broadening tendency on futures. Buyers are in market in larger numbers, especially from the south and far west. Retailers are taking advantage of present prices quoted on white goods and are buying freely. Hosiery orders are coming in for spring delivery in good volume."

Another day of big shipping orders helped yesterday's hog market, best light selling 30c above Thursday's summit, at $8.70. Prices advanced 15@30c, notwithstanding the fact that the Armour and Swift houses purchased an average of less than 400 each. Shippers absorbed 15,000, taking the cream of the offerings. General average price advanced to $8.20, against $8.05 a week ago and $9.75 a year ago. More than half the 10,000 carried over were held off the market.

Yesterday's cattle receipts were rather small but quality graded better than usual for Friday. General demand was fairly active at fully steady prices. Yearlings averaging 757@1,039 lbs topped the market at $10.50. Best heavy steers offered sold at $9.75. Comparatively few beef steers sold below the $8.00 mark. Butcher stock and calves closed strong and feeding steers steady.

Heavy Lambs Slow.

Medium and weighty lambs sold slowly at the recent discount, sales reflecting fully 50 cents decline since Tuesday and in some cases even more. Strictly desirable handy kinds met ready outlet for shipment yesterday at steady prices, being only 25 cents below the week's high point and a shade higher than a week ago. Top fed westerns brought $15.10, with 86 lb, Colorado lambs at $14.85, and 93 lb choice fed westerns at $14.25. Sheep cashed steady, 106 lb ewes reaching $8.10.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 500 cattle, 6,000 hogs, and 1,000 sheep, against 426 cattle, 8,024 hogs, and 3,962 sheep, the corresponding Saturday a year ago.

Union Refrigerator Transit.

W. K.—The Union Refrigerator Transit company furnishes refrigerator cars to railways and shippers for transportation of perishable commodities. With the 500 cars now being built it operates 3,679 cars. It is now issuing, under the Philadelphia plan, $937,500 series B equipment trust 5½ per cent certificates. These are secured by 500 new steel refrigerator cars costing over $1,250,000; more than one-quarter of the cost to be paid directly by the company. Title to these cars remains with the trustees until all the certificates have been paid. These certificates, together with $1,875,000 series A previously issued against 1,000 cars, constitute the company's only funded debt. The company and its predecessor have successfully operated for thirty-one years. Net earnings, after maintenance and replacements, but before depreciation and federal taxes, for the last six years have averaged 2.3 times maximum annual dividend requirements on the present funded debt. For 1922 such earnings were 2.9 times such requirements. These earnings include almost no revenue from the 1,500 new cars now being acquired and earnings for this year are expected to be much greater. These certificates mature $35,000 semiannually from Aug. 1, 1923, through Aug. 1, 1930—the remainder maturing Feb. 1, 1931. These certificates are a sound investment.

Brief Answers.

The $114,000 Lawrence, Kansas, Board of Education 4½ per cent school bonds are in denominations of $1,000 only. They are the obligation of the district—which includes the city—and are payable from taxes. The assessed valuation for taxation is $16,842,920 and total debt, including this issue, is $591,000. These bonds are a conservative investment suitable for savings. They are exempt from federal tax.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1923: Fairchild News Service.]

VIENNA.—Germany has turned from Paris to Vienna for spring fashion inspirations. The Viennese hope to consolidate gains in the world fashion market and redouble efforts to obtain American trade now centered largely in Paris.

FALL RIVER, Mass.—The Fall River print cloth market is quiet but steady. Sales are estimated at about 6,000,000 yards. Twills are strong; sateens in fair demand; narrow goods somewhat quiet.

NEW YORK.—Very good business was reported again today in the New York gray goods market, the demand still continuing for almost entirely the 64x60, 5.35 yard, and the 68x72, 4.75 yard, print cloths. Prices were firm and unchanged.

TOKYO SUBWAYS TO BE BUILT BY NEW YORK FIRM

New York, Feb. 9.—[Special.]—A preliminary contract, which is expected to result in the largest piece of foreign, industrial financing accomplished in New York for many months, has just been signed by The Foundation company for the construction of subways in Tokyo, Japan. The present contract which has been obtained on a cost plus basis, amounts to $15,000,000 and provides for the construction of the first of three subways which will, in their entirety, mean a construction project totaling between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000.

"Katy" of Texas to Issue $50,000,000 in Bonds

Austin, Tex., Feb. 9.—Preliminary steps to the issuance of approximately $50,000,000 bonds for the reorganized Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad were taken today when C. C. Huff of Dallas, attorney for the road, appeared before the railroad commission and presented the plan. The bonds probably will be submitted to the commission for final approval within a short time, it was said. Final approval of the railroad commission is required.

Mohairs: Best combing, 78@83c; best carding, 70@75c. The wool market, while somewhat quieter, has been very firm, and any tendency in prices at all may be said to be upward. Further openings of goods by the American Woolen company have confirmed the former openings as conducive to good business and the market is correspondingly more confident concerning the future. In the west contracting is spreading very slowly. Up to 46 cents is reported paid for half blood and three-eighths clips. Mohair fleeces are in limited supply and firm. Mohair noils have been sold freely, especially of the medium to coarser descriptions.

LONDON.—At the wool auction sales today 12,693 bales were offered. The wool was of fair selection and there was a good demand on the part of the home trade and America, the latter buying superior merinos and medium to fine slipes. Compared with the close of the December series, good merinos were par to 5 per cent higher and others 5 to 10 per cent lower. Fine cross breds closed 5 per cent, medium, 10 per cent, and coarse 10 to 15 per cent higher. Capes declined 5 per cent, while Puntas and Falklands advanced 10 and 15 per cent, respectively. The home trade bought 95,500 bales, the continent 57,000, and America 12,000.

RECORD DEALS IN SIXTY-THIRD ST. MARKET FEATURE

Building Permits

1400 Lake Shore-dr., fourteen story brick flats, 1400 Building Corporation, owner; David Alder company, arch.	$650,000
409-415 N. Elizabeth-st., two story brick storage, Kavanaugh Brothers, owners; R. C. Fletcher, arch.; Scown Building company, mason and carp	50,000
1430-32 E. 69th-st., three story brick flats, Martha Keefer, owner; Jacob Lewis, arch.; Sigfrid Monson, mason	70,000

BY AL CHASE.

Sixty-third street stepped down stage yesterday and kept center with the realty spotlight on it as a result of the closing of several big deals, one of which is claimed to be that thoroughfare's record breaker.

The last piece of 63rd street property owned by the Mandels, the southwest corner of Kenwood, acquired by the late Leon Mandel in 1897 for $35,000, was bought by D. R. Phillips at a consideration reported to be in excess of $500,000. Fred A. Gates of McKey & Poague represented all parties and will manage the property. It is 250x125, and is improved with one story stores.

Second Big Woodlawn Deal.

The second big Woodlawn deal, also is indicative of advancing realty values. The Drexel Stores syndicate sold through Fred M. Lorish of W. K. Young & Bro., to David Schetnitz, the four story building at the southwest corner of 63rd and Drexel 125x100, for $205,000, of which $135,000 was cash. The buyer, who owns the Coconut Grove cafe-dance hall on the opposite corner, will spend a reported $100,000 in installing a terra cotta front on his new purchase.

The interesting angle to this deal is the rise in prices. The syndicate bought it eighteen months ago from Henry Wolf for $125,000 and what with rentals and advance in selling price claims a $100,000 profit. Mr. Wolf himself didn't fail to make a good profit, for he bought it five years before for $65,000.

A third Woodlawn deal was the sale of the old Woodlawn Trust and Savings bank property at 1204-06 63rd street, 50x43, three story building, to Bismarck Feilchenfeld for $80,000.

The entire business block on the north side of 63d, between Eberhart and Rhodes, 256x125, was sold by L. Lelivelt to Walter Worth, through the George Stewart company, for a reported $200,000.

Leon Errol at Realty Board.

The first of a series of Saturday noon programs of vaudeville and talks at the Chicago Real Estate board will be given today at 12:30 p. m. sharp with Leon Errol, one of the stars at a loop musical show, and the sixteen piece banjo club of the University club of Chicago.

The Chicago Title and Trust company has taken title for an undisclosed purchaser from Frank O. Lowden and Francis J. Carolan to the 264x125 at the southwest corner of Calumet and 18th, once occupied by the Pullman conservatory. The price was $150,000 cash. Oliver & Co. represented the buyers.

SUGAR MARKETS.

Testifies Frisco Quake Caused D. & R. G. Trouble

New York, Feb. 9.—E. T. Jeffrey, former president of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, was the only witness examined today in the interstate commerce commission hearing on financial practices and relations between the Denver and Rio Grande, Western Pacific, and Missouri Pacific railroads as the result of a Denver and Rio Grande stockholders' suit against twenty defendants for $200,000,000 damages. The Denver and Rio Grande is in the hands of receivers. Mr. Jeffrey said that the building of the Western Pacific railroad by the Denver and Rio Grande had been one cause of the downfall of the road. The engineers and bankers underestimated the cost of construction, he said, and the San Francisco disaster in 1907 brought about an increased cost of labor and materials. Mr. Jeffery said he never knew why payments of interest on $50,000,000 bonds were defaulted because the Denver and Rio Grande was financially able to pay them.

6 Bargains AT THE Peerless FACTORY BRANCH.

WESTCOTT SEDAN MODEL 6-68 1921. This is a light economical 5 passenger high grade Sedan and has just been turned in to us in almost new car condition. It is a Continental motor job and is very well equipped throughout. Has bumper, front and rear, heater, sun shade, spotlight, and other extras. We are offering it at a price that will appeal to buyers with keen judgment, as this car represents an exceptional bargain. See it and ride in it and you will wonder how we can sell such a perfect little automobile at such a low price. Special for today, $875.

PEERLESS TOURING 1920. Rarely have we had the opportunity to offer to the public a car as late as this one in the same fine condition that this car is in. It has just recently been refinished a Dustproof Gray. Mechanically it is way above the average. It has not had the average use and we know that some lucky purchaser will be given the utmost of satisfaction for many thousands of miles. The equipment is very complete. The tires are excellent and an inspection and demonstration will prove to you, without a doubt, that it is a rare bargain at our price of $900.

CHANDLER SEDAN 7 PASS. 1920. This very late model Chandler Sedan is one of the best looking cars of its type that we have had in our possession for a long time. Mechanically it will make a most satisfactory demonstration. The coach work and tires are exceptionally fine. Rarely is a car as fine as this one offered to the public for so little money. It represents a tremendous saving as compared with the price of a new one today. Very quick action will be necessary if you would avail yourself of this bargain. Do not let the price that we have put on it influence your judgment as it is being sacrificed for immediate sale. Price, $950.

HAYNES LIMOUSINE. This automobile should be seen to be appreciated. It has been privately owned and carefully driven. The top, paint, and mechanical condition are way above the average. Would make an ideal car for either private or commercial use. It will undoubtedly be sold to the first person who looks at it, so you will have to hurry if you would avail yourself of this bargain. It is priced low purposely for today's sale. $600.

PEERLESS SEDAN, 1918. We have just taken this car in on trade on one of our new series and feel very fortunate in being able to offer it at such a price. To equal it in transportation and comfort you will have to spend many hundreds of dollars more than we ask for it. Do not let the price we have put on this car lead you to think that it is "junk" or that you would have to add a good many hundreds of dollars on it before it would be serviceable because in its present condition it is ready to go out and give many thousands of miles of satisfactory service. See it today as it will undoubtedly be sold to the first person who looks at it. The price is $600.

PAIGE COUPE, MODEL 6-42, 1920. If you have a picture in your mind a very snappy looking late model 4 passenger Coupe and have been considering purchasing a car of this kind, see this one immediately. Tires are all practically new. The equipment is very complete. Has bumper front and rear, transmission lock, heater, sun shade, squeegee, rear vision mirror and other extras. It has its original finish of Dark Blue and mechanically it runs smoothly and quietly. We do not believe that we have ever had to offer a car that has had any better care or attention than this one has had. Its former owner is a man who has always given it wonderful attention. Here is a bargain that you cannot very well afford to pass up if you are looking for a Coupe that is way above the average in every condition. Mileage is unusually low and the condition exceptionally fine. It is being sacrificed at our price of $700.

PAIGE TOURING 1921, MODEL 6-44. This is our light "6" economical light 5 passenger touring car, has been "Bird-Sykes Rebuilt," and therefore in first class mechanical condition. It is most attractively finished and equipped. The paint, which is Dark Green, is new. Nickeled radiator shell, disk wheels with nickeled hub caps, spring bumper, wing cap, cowl ventilator, motometer, add much to the beauty of this car—in fact, we believe it to be the smartest looking car of its class to be found anywhere. Five very good cord tires, sun shade, tools, etc., included. Price, $850.

ROAMER SPORT 1921 6 CYL. Has been "Bird-Sykes Rebuilt" and repainted a rich Burgundy Wine. Very smart appearing car, with russet Spanish leather upholstering that harmonizes with the paint. Silvered radiator shell and headlamps, individual fenders, step plates, wire wheels and victoria rear curtain give this car a custom built appearance. Cord tires in first class condition. At our price this is a snap in a late high grade Sport model. Price, $1,075.

PAIGE 6-51 SEDAN. This 1918 automobile has had excellent care. It is an ideal family car that seats 7 persons comfortably. The original finish is still good, the whipcord upholstery shows wear only on the driving seat, and mechanically it is ready for instant service without repairs or expense. Is equipped with 5 good tires, bumper, heater. We consider this a very unusual value; $475.

LEXINGTON SPORT, 1921 MODEL. In appearance this car is identical with the famous "Lark" Lexington model and has been repainted a deep maroon color, black fenders and trim. The top and Spanish leather upholstery are in excellent condition and it is well equipped with an excellent set of cord tires, 2 spring bumpers, motometer, and other extras. Excellent value; $875.

HAYNES 1921 TOURING 5 PASS. This is probably the best conditioned Haynes touring car of this model to be found anywhere. A comparison will more than impress you. It is a high class, well built car and shows little service and very careful handling. Looks "young." Top, paint, and fenders conditions are excellent. Upholstery shows little or no wear. There is nothing to buy in the way of equipment and the cord tires are all in good condition. $775.

PAIGE ROADSTER 1921, MODEL 6-44. This ideal roomy 2 passenger Roadster is fitted with the Bird-Sykes full vision glass enclosure. Chassis has been "Bird-Sykes Rebuilt" and first class mechanically.
